15,000 CHEER DEWEY SPEECH IN LOUISVILLE

Hear Plea for World Peace Group.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky. Sept. 8.—Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, carried his campaign into this border state tonight with a plea that the United States join with other sovereign nations in an organization to preserve the future peace.

The governor spoke before cheering, whistling thousands who jammed the Armory building to hear his second address of his opening campaign tour. He spoke in Philadelphia last night. The armory, seating 15,000, filled 30 minutes before Dewey mounted the platform. Jouett Ross Todd, Kentucky national committeeman and treasurer of the Republican national committee, estimated the throng at 18,000. He said many others were turned away. Aisles and entryways were jammed. Many in the audience were delegates to the convention of the national federation of women's Republican clubs.

Predicts G. O. P. Victory.

Gov. Simeon Willis, whose election in 1943 broke a Democratic grip upon the Kentucky statehouse, preceded Dewey with a speech. Willis, predicting a Republican victory this fall, said the "people of the United States have had enough of being pushed around by petty tyrants in high positions."

Gov. Dewey, in proposing a world peace organization, said it should be able to resort to force if that is necessary to smash aggressors. He said the small nations should be equitably represented in the organization. He said there should be an assembly, a council, and a world court. He pleaded for American discussion of the issue upon a nonpartisan basis.

Dewey said it is America's responsibility to establish its rightful position in world affairs thru the justness and sincerity of its own efforts. He accused the New Deal of trying to establish international good will for the United States by the profligate expenditure of American resources and money. "The Washington wasters," he said, "proposed to buy themselves international power out of our pocketbooks."

Emphasizes Women's Role.

"It is good to be in Louisville again and to be the guest of Gov. Willis and the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs," Dewey said. "I am particularly happy to be able to attend this biennial conference of the women of our party because it symbolizes the vital influence of the women of America in our public affairs.

"Your influence is needed. Your help is needed in our government. It is especially needed to bring about the thing that is closer to our hearts than life itself—the achievement of a permanent peace at the end of this war. We are willing to fight for it. Thousands of our sons have died for it. We must be willing to struggle, to work, and to sacrifice for it in the years to come.

"Twice within 25 years the American people have gone to war to defend their liberties from attacks that had their beginnings thousands of miles away. As a result we Amer-

Strike Shuts Plant Making B-29 Engines

Because an employe was promoted for efficient work, production of B-29 Super Fortress airplane engines was stopped last night at the huge Dodge Chicago plant on the southwest side thru a strike by disgruntled CIO union members, the company announced.

The company said the strike was caused by the promotion of a worker on the basis of merit and ability, whereas the strikers insist that advancements must be based on seniority.

The strikers, members of local 274 of the United Automobile Workers union [CIO], said not a single engine had left the assembly line since Thursday noon. Company officials said production was not stopped entirely until late yesterday, but they refused to say how many engines had been assembled since Thursday.

Dismiss 665 Nonstrikers.

On the first shift yesterday 415 men stayed off their jobs, and 252 more struck on the 3 p. m. shift. The company was forced to send 665 nonstrikers home. More than 20,000 persons are employed at the plant.

The relatively small number on strike were able to choke the total production because they are employed in final assembly operations. Strikers said more than 80 per cent of the workers in various steps of assembly were off their jobs, and the company admitted that the strike was spreading last night.

Appeal to Head of Union.

The union's contract contains a clause that no strike will be permitted until after negotiations have continued for at least five days. Robert W. Conder, director of labor relations for the corporation, sent a telegram last night to R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW international, asking him to call off the strike in accordance with the contract provisions.

Henry Tough, president of the local, said the strike was not authorized. He said the strikers told him the walkout was due to unrest over unsettled grievances, and that they believed the company was too severe in penalizing slight infractions of rules. The strikers will meet at 6908 S. Western av. at 10 a. m. today and will be addressed by army air force officers.

RIGHT GIRL CAN TAME HITLER, SAYS CAPTIVE

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 8 (AP).—A German prisoner who said he had been Adolf Hitler's orderly for three years asserted today that Hitler had maintained a romantic liaison with a Munich stenographer for the last four years and that it was untrue that he was invulnerable to feminine attraction.

"The fuehrer is a difficult man to know," the prisoner added. "He is different every day. One day he is all fondness, the next brutish harshness."

The prisoner said he joined the Elite guard in 1937 and served as Hitler's servant until late in 1940.

Ignatz Makes His Bed and Is Stuck with It

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 7 [Special].—It took 25 Jersey City cops, equipped with all the ingenious devices with which police emergency squads are armed, 40 minutes to get Ignatz C. Banikonis out of bed this morning.

Ignatz, being a bit overcome by the rigors of pay day night, had gone to bed in a 15 inch deep patch of tar, which aided perhaps by his supercharged body heat became a pallet so soft that it well nigh engulfed him.

Banikonis, 58, of Brooklyn, a track laborer for the Lehigh Valley railroad in Jersey City, was discovered deep in his gummy resting place at 8:45 a. m. by a pair of passers-by.

Crossing a lot where an asphalt plant formerly was located they came upon what appeared to be the right half of a man lying on a shiny patch of black stuff. Fearing they had come upon the body of a weird murder case victim, they stirred the "corpse," which opened its right eye and yelled.

Just Half a Mustache.

There was a left half of the body, too, they discovered—immersed to the center of the body line, including the left half of a luxuriant mustache.

They tugged and tugged, and Banikonis yelled with half his mouth. The tar held the buried half of him fast.

Lt. Arthur Schultz and his emergency squad came and went to work on the half entombed Banikonis with gasoline, shovels and even longshoremen's hooks and knives.

"I've been 13 years on this squad, and I've seen some honeys," panted Schultz, mopping his brow. "But this is the one I'll always remember."

Pulled, Like a Tooth!

Finally they cut away Banikonis' clothes and the left half of his mustache, sheared off the tarry side of his hair and pulled him out like an aching tooth.

They rushed him, wrapped in a blanket, to Jersey City medical center and went to work on him with gasoline, kerosene, and alcohol.

Hospital attaches said his condition was not serious—just messy.

Lt. Schultz said there might have been a tragic conclusion to Banikonis' siesta if the passers-by had not discovered him when they did.

QUEBEC GETTING READY FOR F.D.R. AND CHURCHILL

QUEBEC, Sept. 8 [Canadian Press].—Quebec City will be the scene of the next meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt at a date yet to be decided. Quebec was thrilled to have the two leaders here a year ago and great preparations are being made for the forthcoming meeting. News correspondents and camera men are here in force and the great Chateau Frontenac, with its 800 rooms, has been taken over for the official delegates. The other hotels, the Clarendon and Chateau St. Louis, have been taken over for correspondents, camera men, and radio correspondents.

Jato Puts Zip in Bombers on Short Runway

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 [Special].—The navy announced today it "is now prepared" to use the method of jet-assisted takeoffs which it demonstrated to a group of correspondents at a naval air base several months ago, on both carrier airplanes and flying boats.

"Jato" units, as the navy calls them, make it possible either to reduce the length of takeoff runs by 33 to 60 per cent, or to "greatly increase" the airplane's load.

At the demonstration, it was shown how heavily overloaded bombers would take off after a remarkably short run when given extra push by the new device.

"Each jet unit," the navy said, "is an engine in itself—a cylinder full of a solid propellant which includes oxygen in the mixture so it can burn without air. It has an electrically controled spark plug which sets it off and a rocketlike vent from which the jet gases give their thrust.

Attached Outside Fuselage.

"Jet units look very much like bombs except that they are fastened to the fuselage, instead of enclosed within it or attached to the wings. They are easily mounted and replaced. Each unit delivers a thrust equivalent to about 330 horse power.

"Using these units a navy fighter can cut its takeoff run in half. This means that navy carriers can use more of their deck space for planes and get more planes, more heavily loaded, into the air sooner. It means that the planes can rendezvous more quickly to attack or defend, and it means safer takeoffs.

"Land-based navy and marine fighters and bombers can use the little island air strips safely and can scramble in a hurry, even without a wind, in defense of newly won positions."

Increases Plane Loads.

The statement added that big flying boats, such as PB2Ys and PBMs, would find Jato extremely useful in increasing their carrying power — "an increasingly important factor as lines of supply and communication lengthen toward Japan."

The Jato experimental program began in 1941 at the United States engineering experimental station, Annapolis, Md., under supervision of navy Capt. Calvin M. Bolster. Capt. William L. Gore, of the marine corps, made the first flight test on March 1, 1943, with a Wildcat fighter. On March 18, Comdr. Leroy C. Simpler of the navy made the first jet-assisted takeoff from a carrier.

"The speed of takeoff," the navy related, "made pilots gape."

The navy now has placed orders, it said, for "quantity production."

Bulgars War on Germany as Reds Pour In

LONDON, Sept. 9 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops swept unresisted into Bulgaria yesterday on a 135 mile front and captured the big Danube port of Ruse and the Black sea port of Varna.

Bulgaria, yielding to demands from Russia, went to war against Germany.

Two days after the declaration was prematurely announced in Ankara by the Bulgarian minister, Nikola Balabanov, Premier Constantine Muraviev broadcast a proclamation that Bulgaria had "broken off with Germany and has declared war on her."

Accept All Red Demands.

Muraviev said his government accepted all demands announced by Gen. Feodor I. Tolbukhin of Russia in a broadcast to the Bulgarian people, and shortly afterward the Moscow radio said Russia had "decided to consider the Bulgarian request for a narmistice."

Tolbukhin's demands were that Bulgaria must break with Germany and join the allied coalition, that German soldiers in Bulgaria must be handed over to soviet troops as prisoners of war, and that all German ships in Bulgaria must be handed over.

Muraviev's announcement said Bulgaria had been in a state of war with Germany since 11 a. m. [Chicago time] yesterday.

Ready for Early Parley.

Muraviev said he was prepared to begin armistice negotiations immediately. He also announced a reshuffling of the army command. A Bulgarian agency said Gen. Yantchulev had succeeded Gen. Philipov as chief of staff.

The Moscow bulletin said the invasion began yesterday, whereas a Berlin broadcast on Thursday said the Russians had entered Bulgaria on Tuesday.

Gen. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine army crossed into Bulgaria from Romania between Giurgui and Mangalia and advanced 18.6 to 43.3 miles, Moscow said.

Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army troops climbed thru Boita pass in the Transylvanian Alps and captured Sibiu, 128 miles from pre-war Hungary. A hundred localities were seized in the advance.

Russians Gain Above Warsaw.

On the front northeast of Warsaw, capital of Poland, other soviet troops were declared to have dislodged the Germans from several populated places southwest of Lomza, on the approaches to German East Prussia, in some of the bitterest fighting of the war.

The Polish press bureau asserted the Germans had evacuated the Praga defense lines, just east of Warsaw.

The German radio asserted that Gen. Bor's underground Polish army in Warsaw had been smashed, but Gen. Bor reported only that the situation was "very serious."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Germany's war bulletin said yesterday:

"In southeastern Transylvania and in the eastern Carpathians, numerous enemy attacks were repulsed and dents made by the enemy were sealed off in counter-attacks.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 9 (Saturday)—(AP).—The United States 1st army seized the Belgian fortress of Liege and pressed on three miles to within 18 miles of the German frontier today as enemy defenses buckled along a 200 mile front before the Siegfried line.

The United States 3d army planted three more bridgeheads across the Moselle river, last water barrier before Germany's Saar basin, and deepened them with tanks and infantry in violent fighting after smashing 6,000 enemy troops that tried to move behind it between Metz and Verdun.

British and Dutch forces burst across the Albert canal—which the Germans considered the bulwark of their northern flank—and pounded on five miles to within 25 miles of the Prussian border before colliding with German forces deployed in strength.

Ostend Is Captured.

Two Belgian ports on the channel—the famed tourist city of Ostend and the small fishing center of Nieuport 10 miles west—fell to Canadian forces, giving the allies their first landing points close to the front unhampered by enemy fire.

Canadian patrols said the Germans had cleared out of Ostend, which has a large inner and outer harbor and vast quays and piers. Other forces drove within five miles of Bruges, southwest of Ostend.

One British column, striking toward Germany in a drive coördinated with that of the American 1st army, sped 20 miles east of Leuven [Louvain] to St. Trond, which is 20 miles northwest of Liege.

[The Daily Telegraph quoted a Brussels radio report that Le Havre had been liberated by British forces. There was no confirmation.]

It was only 10 miles from a junction with an American column which pounded up 10 miles north of Huy to the town of Faimes.

The American forces pushing past Liege—where the Germans broke the Belgian defenses in 1940—were within 18 miles of the enemy gateway city of Aachen after reaching the village of Romsee, three miles east of Liege.

Average 12 mile Gain.

Along its 75 mile front, the first army gained an average of 12 miles east of the Meuse river and plowed deep into the Ardennes forest, reaching Maissin, a village 25 miles west of the Luxemburg border. Only dense mine fields and spotted German units in the forest slowed the advance.

On the extreme south of this front, the 1st army drove 12 miles east of Sedan to St. Cecile, and 12 miles southeast to Blagny.

The 3d army's drive into Metz and the 1st army move on Aachen were aimed at two of the most heavily fortified sectors of the Siegfried line. Aachen is an outpost of the line.

Big Battle Rages.

The 3d army was locked with the Germans in some of the grimmest battling since it burst out of the hedgerows of Normandy.

A front dispatch said the 3d army forced two new crossings just south of embattled Metz and a third farther south, near Toul, giving the doughboys a total of five bridgeheads on the Moselle.

Both infantry and armor were being shoved across to the east bank in spite of raking fire from artillery batteries, which were under heavy counter-fire from big United States guns.

The 3d army still stuck to footholds in the big city of Metz itself, and brought up other forces north of there along the Moselle.

Dunkerque Surrounded.

Events were moving fast on the channel. The Canadians surrounded Dunkerque and Poles on the east drove deep into the German rear guards coving the retreat of forces across the Scheldt river, from where they have been slipping by barge into the Netherlands at night.

The Poles had heavy going in driving to Roulers, 24 miles southeast of Ostend, but advance elements pressed on 10 miles northeast to Thielt, taking a large number of prisoners, including whole companies.

Allies Begin Fight to Shut Belfort Gap

AT THE FRENCH-SWISS FRONTIER, Sept. 8 (AP).—The battle for the Belfort gap, escape route thru which the battered German 19th army is trying to reach the homeland, began today with a preliminary allied artillery barrage and an all-day series of air attacks.

Three allied motorized columns were approaching, with the most advanced within 10 miles of the city of Belfort.

Allied artillery opened up at 4 a. m. and fired fairly regularly during the morning and occasionally during the afternoon.

Flyers Bomb Belfort.

Montbeliard still was in German hands this morning. Belfort, a fortress city, was bombed during the day, with the Swiss town of Delmont also a victim. Most of the air attacks were concentrated on German communications beyond the Belfort gap, with a heavy raid on the frontier junction of Montreux-Vieux, where big fires were set this afternoon.

Artillery fire also touched the French village of Balmont, which a French African patrol entered yesterday.

The Germans, in strength in good positions, appeared determined to defend the gap, but their anti-aircraft fire vainly tried to reach the allied planes, and not a German fighter plane appeared.

Besancon Falls to Yanks.

ROME, Italy, Sept. 8 (AP).—American forces stormed up the Doubs valley road to Germany today after capturing the city of Besancon.

Besancon, a communications center 50 miles southwest of Belfort's fortifications, was the scene of street fighting for hours after units of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th army encircled the city and then pursued the main body of retreating Nazis.

[The German war bulletin said yesterday: "Enemy attacks in the Toul area, at Besancon, and to the east were repulsed. Fighting in the mountain passes at the Franco-Italian border is continuing, with the enemy unable to achieve success."]

Smash German Tank Attack

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN 3D ARMY BEYOND VERDUN, Sept. 8.—A prowling German column of 35 tanks plunged into an American headquarters unit position early today, precipitating a battle in which 25 of the Panthers had been knocked out by afternoon. A big part of the 6,000 Germans in the attack also had been captured.

Lt. Col. Earl Sutton, 6322 Huntington st., Chicago, Ill., was in the artillery command post when the first of the Panther tanks [Mark V.] rumbled down. He said his men fired whatever they could lay their hands on until daylight came, when the Yanks were forced to evacuate, leaving most of their vehicles behind them.

Escape in Jeep.

Sutton and a one star general dashed to safety in the general's jeep.

"Those Panthers came in so fast they lost themselves behind our lines," said Sutton. "Now they will never get away—not one of them."

Maj. Thomas Andrews of Algonquin, Ill., was awakened by the firing and saw the German tanks, then watched as our tanks returned the fire from the woods. He said he saw the two leading Nazi tanks explode and burn under several direct hits, while others retreated.

Grenades Knock Out Three.

Four of the German tanks made a break for the woods, but our infantrymen knocked out three with grenades, and our tanks bagged the other.

In the darkness the battle was so confused that Capt. James McNamara of Minneapolis, Minn., press relations officer for the American unit, approached his commanding officer and requested permission to apprise the men of the situation. "Certainly you may," the other replied.

McNamara hesitated and then said: "What is the situation, sir?"

"Damned if I know," was the cheerful reply.

reached Dixmude, 13 miles south of Ostend, and captured Bergues, five miles from Dunkerque.

[The Nazi controled Norwegian radio said Berlin newspapers confirmed that a new western front commander in chief had been chosen for the climactic struggle—Field Marshal Gen. Walter von Model, Russian front veteran, the federal communications commission reported.]

A delayed dispatch from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said that, in the light of the general's recent statement that the war could end this year if every one did his part, most observers thought the jig would be up with Germany by early November.

The dispatch, written Sept. 3, said that the failure of the Germans to offer any kind of organized resistance indicated that Hitler already had lost the war in the west. Since then, however, German resistance has stiffened.

Drive for Belfort Gap.

The American 7th army, coming up from southern France to join the final battle for Germany, drove thru Besancon and headed down the last 50 miles to the Belfort gap—the best route into the southern Rhineland.

Without aerial reconnaissance and with few troops to man the pillboxes and forts of the Siegfried line, the Germans must guess where these masses of tanks, artillery, and infantry are going to deal the big blow.

One high United States officer declared the Germans cannot even afford an error of 50 miles, because they cannot shift forces that distance under allied aerial assault in time to save the situation.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Following is the German war bulletin, as broadcast yesterday from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"In the Ypres area, our rear guards in heavy fighting with enemy tank columns, screened the detaching movements of our divisions toward the north. Thirty-five enemy tanks were destroyed.

"On both sides of Liege, the enemy continues his strong pressure eastward."

300 NAZI CRAFT DESTROYED OFF NORTH FRANCE

ALLIED NAVAL HDQ., Sept. 8 (AP).—More than 300 enemy naval craft, including more than 100 "human torpedoes" and explosive motor boats, have been destroyed off the northern coast of France since D-day, it was disclosed here today at the headquarters of Adm. Bertram H. Ramsay, naval commander-in-chief for the western front.

There has been fighting in the channel almost every night—fighting which has been largely unreported—but convoys have been going across nevertheless at an average rate of 16 daily.

By D-day plus 28 the allied navies had delivered 1,000,000 men to France and with them 183,500 vehicles and 650,000 tons of stores—an average of one vehicle and more than a half-ton of stores for every five men. That period included a disastrous four day gale which started June 14 and destroyed an enormous number of craft.

KELLY TO NAME GROUP TO DRAFT V-DAY PROGRAM

A V-day "orgy of dissipation" in Chicago when the war with Germany ends would be a mockery to the men who were killed, as well as to the men still fighting the war with Japan, Mayor Kelly told the city council yesterday.

He was authorized by the council to appoint a committee of civic, business, and religious leaders to arrange a fitting observance of Germany's surrender. The committee will be announced, he said, in a few days, after appointees have accepted.

"News of the sweep of American and allied armies toward Berlin makes it evident that we are rapidly approaching V-day," Mayor Kelly said. "But we must not forget that thousands of our men will still be fighting in the Pacific after victory comes in Europe, and it is time that we concerned ourselves with how Chicago will observe V-day."

BRITON ASKS TO QUIT; HE CAN'T FATHOM WAR

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Capt. William Douglas-Home, now with a royal armored corps, is seeking to resign his commission because he objects to ordering men into battle when they do not know what they are fighting for, it was disclosed today.

In a letter sent from Normandy quoted by Peace News, Capt. Douglas-Home said he has asked his commanding officer for permission to resign as he feels unjustified in "asking men to battle for motives which our leaders will not publicize and which I therefore do not trust."

How U. S. Infantry Won Moselle Bridghead in Daylight Crossing Under Heavy Nazi Fire

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN 3D ARMY NEAR THE MOSELLE RIVER, Sept. 8.—Fighting American infantry men today held several precarious footholds on the eastern bank of the Moselle river. One of these bridgeheads was set up under German artillery fire at a point five miles south of Metz in broad daylight this morning.

The operation was carefully executed. Two units last night seized and held high ground on either side of a village to acquire artillery observation points. Then a third unit of infantry and vehicles drove straight down the road into the town of Gorze, southwest of Metz, where it routed strong enemy opposition.

Wipe Out Road Blocks.

The drive into Gorze was possible because engineers and mine platoons had cleared away five German road blocks within a stretch of 2,000 yards and also removed many mines with which the road blocks were flanked.

The road blocks had consisted of French wagons and felled trees. Many of the trees were booby trapped to make removal more difficult. The Germans also booby trapped mines so that a person picking up a mine would detonate a hand grenade.

One anti-mine platoon truck set off three mines which the Germans had hidden. The men on the truck suffered only minor injuries, however. The mine experts worked last night until 3 a. m. when the infantry moved down the highway and took up positions for the crossing of the Moselle.

Elements of another unit had reached the same area from another direction but after one attempt to cross was repulsed they left the area to the new arrivals. The unit which had driven down the road into Gorze then boarded assault boats manned by engineers and the actual crossing began. The river, at this point is about 150 yards wide, said Capt. Bruce Campbell of Lincoln, Neb., who outlined the operation for news men.

Casualties Suffered.

Casualties were numerous under very heavy German artillery and mortar fire as well as fire by small arms and machine guns.

So the crossing attempt was halted while our artillery blasted the opposite shore, concentrating on the green hills which rise at a fairly steep grade from the flatlands. The crossing was resumed at 11:15 a. m. under the protection of our guns and reduced German fire.

By midafternoon, units under Lt. Nathan F. Drake of Irvington, N. J., Capt. Jack S. Gerrie of Ripon, Wis., and Lt. Jack Brown of Ohio, got across, setting up defense positions some 300 yards beyond the far bank.

Campbell said we correspondents could safely drive along the Moselle—except for the possibility of enemy artillery, if we kept to the center of the road as a precaution against mines. So we went ahead.

Illinoisan Heads Unit.

Just beyond Gorze we found an artillery outfit headed by Capt. Fred Andrt, 6802 W. 26th st., Berwyn, Ill. He had entered the army upon graduation from the University of Illinois. He advised us that the road ahead had just been shelled and one vehicle hit. We halted and took Lt. Don Larson of Oshkosh, Wis., an artillery officer, as a guide and climbed a rolling ridge for a breath taking view of the east side of the Moselle.

We could see several little towns nestling in the foothills and in the distance, the Metz cathedral spire. Ours and the Germans' artillery were engaging in a furious duel and we saw our shells explode in the woods and open fields far across the winding river, sending clouds of dust and smoke into the air. There was no sign of life, however, except the occasional whine of German shells overhead.

We retraced our steps, took a new road and finally entered the town of Dornot after meeting Lt. Warren Enstrom of Bovey, Minn., an engineering company commander. The only traffic which passed us was made up of Red Cross jeeps en route to pick up the wounded. One of them halted just before entering the town and the driver said:

"Did they drop anything down there just now?" We told him they had just landed one in Dornot and he nodded as tho that was all he had been waiting for and went bouncing off toward the town.

Ready to Go Over.

All the way down the hilly sides of the main street men awaiting their turn to approach the river were crouched against walls, their guns in readiness. Among them were Pvt. Peter E. Walczak, 5807 S. Troy st., Chicago, Ill., a former furniture factory worker, and Pvt. Albert Eichenberg, 6925 Ada st., Chicago, formerly employed by a Chicago electrical company.

We found also Pvt. Hamor Martin, a Lerna, Ill., railroad worker, and Pvt. Floyd McBride, Cambridge, Ill., a former coal miner. Both were members of a machine gun squad, most of whose members had been overseas more than two years.

Other midwesterners in Dornot were Sgt. Albert G. Janowski, Michigan City, Ind., a railroad worker; Sgt. Frank Lynch of Kokomo, Ind., a bus driver; Pvt. George Pellan, Kewanee, Ill., a machine operator; Pvt. Walfred Wester of Negaunee, Mich., a trucker, and Pvt. James E. Prchal, 2041 W. 53d st., Chicago, a printer who now is a medical aid man.

We talked also with Pvt. Thomas Cosimo, 3033 Wells st., Chicago, who asked as a special favor that I send his love to his wife, Florence, and his baby daughter, Carol Ann. This seemed little enough to do for a guy waiting to cross the Moselle.

At Aid Station.

Then we went into a basement where a medical aid station was set up to handle the flow of wounded. There we found Corp. John Kurzer, 4020 N. Western av., Chicago; Corp. Lloyd O. Kamp of St. Louis, Mo., and Capt. Panfilo Diloreto, Detroit, Mich.,

We also renewed acquaintance with Capt. John M. Hoffman, 5316 Drexel av., Chicago, whom we last saw aboard a vessel en route to France early in June. Hoffman said he had had a letter from his wife Evelyn, yesterday, asking him where The Tribune man was who had written of his being in the first invasion wave. This will answer her.

That takes care of all the midwesterners we talked with today except Pvt. William Bruce of Pittsburgh, Pa., who, of course isn't a midwesterner, at all. Bruce writes articles for Prosveta, a Slovenian paper published at 2567 S. Lawndale av., Chicago.

His Time to Leave.

We left the aid post and went farther down the street until we reached a point where we could clearly see the river. Here men, leaving the security of a wall, were ordered to "double time across the fields" and were running across in full view of the Germans as a preliminary to reaching the river.

We turned around right there.

We met three Illinoisans at the front yesterday—Lt. Fred Pope of Springfield, whom we had last seen during a German counter-attack at Chartres; Lt. Ted Harvey of 666 Main st., Glen Ellyn, former Notre Dame fullback and once a member of the All-Star team, who is an aide to a one star general, and Lt. Henry Bowman, whose wife lives at 737 Case st., Evanston, and whose parents live at 4636 N. Paulina st.

End Near: Marshall

ROME, Italy, Sept. 9 [Saturday]—(AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall said today in a message on the anniversary of the Salerno landings that "the last phase of the German debacle is now at hand." Addressed to Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark and his 5th army, the message from the chief of staff added: "Today we momentarily anticipate the breach of the Gothic line and the occupation of the Po valley."

Anniversary congratulations also were received from Field Marshal Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the British imperial general staff, and from Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean area.

8 PERSONS HURT IN 'L' TRAIN FIRE ON NORTH SIDE

Seventy passengers were thrown into a panic and eight of them were burned or injured slightly last night in a fire aboard a northbound Evanston express elevated train as it approached the Belmont av. station. The injured were sent home after treatment in Illinois Masonic hospital.

The fire, in the last coach of a three car train, was laid to an explosion in a generator under a lengthwise seat, onwhich the eight were sitting. Flames flared up, the lights went out, and passengers rushed for exits as the train was stopped at the station platform. Some of the passengers climbed out thru windows and several were trampled in aisles.

HAPPY BELGIANS LINE ROADS AS YANKS DRIVE ON

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 7 [Delayed].—Belgium's roadsides were lined today with hundreds of natives cheering, waving flags and rushing to shake hands and say, "Welcome" or "Thank you," to all Yanks marching toward Germany.

One marveled at the speed with which American, British and Russian flags, as well as Belgian, appeared. In the industrial section Russia's hammer and sickle was more prominent than anywhere else along the march. One house even had an Australian flag, probably a souvenir of the last war.

One marveled, too, at the generosity of these people who insisted upon sharing their beer, wine, and soft drinks, their bread, tomatoes, plums, pears, and apples with the American soldiers. One priest passed out German cigars when the column halted. A nun gave us bread, and one worker handed us sweet bread baked in the shape of a waffle.

Finds Street Cars Running.

It was incongruous to see, in towns like Charleroi and Chatelet, electric street cars running while American tanks rumbled past on the way to battle. It was equally incongruous for me, in the midst of an armored march, to receive a package from home.

Because of my beard, which had created small sensations on the entry into Paris, some Belgians mistook me for a priest. One woman who spoke English remarked audibly, however, that the correspondent did not have the face of a priest.

Crowds pressed in close around our jeep. Mothers held their babies up to be kissed and I wished I was clean shaven. A general came by, watched the scene, laughed heartily and went back to the head of the column.

Old Mayor Takes Over.

At Huy, the town's pre-German burgomeister, Emile Vierset, resplendent in a sparse white beard and a slight paunch, welcomed the first soldiers.

"The German appointed mayor, Antoine du Peont, and his assistant fled three days ago when the Germans started pulling out," said the American born Belgian interpreter, William Foster, a hotel owner. "Vierset and his deputy, Eugene Charpantier, took over at once, altho the Germans were still here.

"The Germans also released 400 French and Belgian political prisoners from our ancient Fort Letchestia. This had been a way station for political prisoners on the one-way road into Germany." The chief of the fort has fled. So have many women and girls who had associated with the Germans or who had denounced patriots. Some 30 others, as well as nearly 100 collaborationists accused of denouncing patriots, already have been arrested.

In the last two days before the American entry, which had been expected ever since the capture of Mons, Foster said, the Germans had been frantic in their search for automobiles in which to escape. They also had offered stocks of tobacco to get any kind of bicycle, even one held together with wires, which might sustain them long enough to get behind Germany's borders.

MATRON IS HELD FOR LONG ISLAND JEWEL THEFTS

Admits Taking Gems from Hostesses.

Riverhead, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—Mrs. Job Taylor II., New York, was a prisoner in Suffolk county jail tonight on charges of grand larceny. She is accused of having stolen and sold jewelry worth $27,750, including a $25,000 star ruby clip owned by Mrs. E. C. Stollenwerck, also of New York City.

Mrs. Taylor is the mother of two infant children. Her husband, an attorney, is overseas with the army. She is the former Anne Flinchbaugh, daughter of the late Episcopal Bishop Frederick Lincoln Flinchbaugh of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. She is a great-great-granddaughter of William Henry Harrison, ninth President of the United States. Benjamin Harrison, her great-great-great-grandfather, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Admits Taking Jewels.

Local police said that the attractive, dark haired Mrs. Taylor—she is 24 years old—readily admitted having taken the jewelry, and named a Philadelphia jeweler to whom it was sold for $2,300.

She was arrested yesterday after investigation by Stanley Teller, chief of police at Westhampton; Trooper Henry J. Resling of the New York state police, and Francis Leddy, chief of police in Easthampton.

On Aug. 12, the authorities said, Mrs. Taylor was Mrs. Stollenwerck's guest in the Stollenwerck summer home in Easthampton, Long Island. She sat with Mrs. Stollenwerck, as Mrs. Stollenwerck fingered thru her jewelry, according to the police, and watched her hostess put some of the costlier gems in the pocket of a coat.

When Mrs. Stollenwerck went to the shower, police said, Mrs. Taylor removed from the coat one of a set of specially made clips.

Compare Guest Lists.

Mrs. Stollenwerck did not miss the clip until Aug. 19, when she notified Easthampton police, who had her submit a list of her most recent guests. Among these Mrs. Stollenwerck included Mrs. Taylor's name.

On Sept. 2 Westhampton police were informed by Mrs. Robert Glaenzer of Park av., New York City, who also has a summer home in the fashionable Long Island beach section, that some one had stolen $1,750 worth of jewelry from her cottage. Included were a $400 wedding band guard and a $600 diamond sapphire clip.

Investigation disclosed that Mrs. Taylor also had been a guest there, and she was questioned. Police said she admitted the thefts and told them she also had taken $1,000 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. Constance Travis in Sutton Square, New York City.

Held in Two Courts.

Justice of the Peace Charles Ludder Jr. of Westhampton held Mrs. Taylor in $5,000 bail for a grand jury hearing on charges of grand larceny, and Justice of the Peace William H. Strong held her without bail on a similar charge at Easthampton. In both cases she waived examination.

Police said ample funds were left to Mrs. Taylor by her parents when they died, but that most of it was in trust. They said she sold all her own jewelry some time ago when her income reportedly diminished.

GUNMEN ROB TAXI DRIVER.

Two men, one armed with a sawed off shotgun, robbed Nicholas Henderson, 1807 Cleveland av., of $12 after forcing him out of his taxicab at 3030 W. Congress st., he reported to police yesterday.

IKE GIVES PARIS WOODEN PLAQUE, BADGE OF VALOR

PARIS, France, Sept. 8 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower stood today beneath the Arc de Triomphe and presented a commemorative liberation plaque to the French people.

The ceremony brought together one of the greatest aggregations of high allied officials ever assembled.

Tanks Surround Arch.

Precautions were taken to see that the occasion was not marked by shooting, as was Gen. Charles de Gaulle's procession thru the city just after its liberation.

A cordon of Sherman tanks of the French 2d armored division, first to enter the city on the day of its liberation, surrounded the arch as Eisenhower presented the wooden plaque to representatives of De Gaulle and the city of Paris. Crowds were not permitted within a block of the ceremony.

"The glory of having largely freed their capital belongs to Frenchmen," Eisenhower said.

F. F. I. Courage Hailed.

"Two weeks ago French and allied troops made their entry into the city. They came to give the coup de grace to the last elements of the enemy remaining here. But the liberation of Paris was already nearly complete.

"A week before, armed with courage and with resolution, the men of the F. F. I. [French Forces of the Interior], who for four years under the inspiration of Gen. de Gaulle had never ceased to struggle against the enemy, went into the streets to drive out the despised invader.

"The shield which I present today is temporary and is soon to be replaced by one of metal, which we hope may be placed in a permanent and appropriate setting.

SAVE SYNTHETIC RUBBER WORKS, BROOKS PLEADS

Warns 'Do-Gooders' Threaten Them.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] called upon congress today to prevent "global do-gooders" from scrapping the American synthetic rubber industry after the war for the benefit of European empires.

He told the senate that a British agreement to restrict production of rubber, made under the leadership of Winston Churchill, forced Americans to pay an extra billion and a quarter dollars for their rubber in the period from 1922 to 1928.

Brooks drew the wrath of Roosevelt administration leaders when he denounced advocates of an international WPA and referred to Vice President Wallace's dream of a quart of milk a day for every one in the world.

Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] and Sen. Hill [D., Ala.] sprang to their feet to deny that the administration plans to permit the synthetic rubber industry to die.

No Connection, He Says.

"I do not know of a single responsible official," Barkley cried, "who is in favor of scrapping the synthetic rubber industry. Vice President Wallace's expressed hope that at some time the world economy might be developed so that every one might have a quart of milk has no connection with the rubber industry."

"I am happy to have this authoritative assurance. So many things have been done in the past before we had any knowledge of them."

Charging that the administration "bungled and delayed" the rubber program, Brooks said it was not until the senate passed a bill, over administration protest, to create an agency for production of rubber from grain alcohol, that the Baruch rubber committee was appointed. At a cost of three quarters of a billion dollars, Brooks said, the synthetic rubber industry was finally established.

Approaching End of War.

"We are approaching the end of the war," he said, "and a few have questioned the future of this new industry. There is much talk about future peace being controled by cartels [international trade monopolies], trade agreements, and international regulation of production and consumption. Agreements have already been signed by the United States for control of wheat, coffee, and oil, and there are suggestions that they should be extended to other commodities and manufactured goods including rubber."

Brooks said suggestions have been made that the synthetic rubber plants be scrapped and that the rubber commerce be restored to its pre-war status.

"There are among us," he said, "global do-gooders who would surrender America's synthetic rubber industry. They are the advocates of an international WPA to be financed by Uncle Sam.

Epitomized by Wallace.

"Their theory was epitomized by Vice President Wallace, a recent White House guest, when he advocated a quart of milk a day for all the underprivileged races of the world.

[Wallace recently called upon Mr. Roosevelt for a discussion of why the President scrapped him as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for another term as Vice President.]

"The crackpot theory is that America should wreck its synthetic rubber industry for the benefit of European empires whose plantations in the Southwest Pacific are being cleared of Japanese at a dreadful cost of American lives today. The argument is that America must return to the importation of rubber so that the South Pacific native jungle worker can get American dollars to buy American exports.

"That is a false argument. The jungle workers never did prosper. Many of these plantations were developed and worked with indentured labor imported from India and China and paid as little as 14 cents a day.

Connivance of Empires.

"These international manipulators would destroy America's newest home industry to revive the pre-war British-Dutch cartel which controled rubber prices for years with the connivance of the empire governments."

Turning to the overcharge inflicted upon American tire users thru British and Dutch domination after the last war, Brooks said it occurred when Americans were the best customers of the British and Dutch, using 75 per cent of the world's rubber production.

"When raw rubber prices declined in 1920," Brooks told the senate, "the British growers, under the brilliant leadership of their then colonial secretary, Winston Churchill, sought to have effected a restriction act to curtail and control the production of rubber and thus increase the cost to us."

The British established the control in 1922, Brooks said, adding:

"The price of rubber went up, and it is estimated that the people of the United States paid approximately $1,250,000,000 more for their rubber in the years that followed because of it.

Admiration for Churchill.

"I do not mention this remarkable bit of international history to speak disparagingly of Winston Churchill. I admire him greatly. I only want some one to represent and defend the interests of our people as ably as he has always done for his people."

Brooks demanded that the synthetic rubber industry be maintained in order that the nation may never again be at the mercy of foreign governments. He said this is a trust that must not be broken with the men who are fighting and dying to keep America free.

He praised the accomplishments of William M. Jeffers and Bradley Dewey as rubber directors.

"Their work is done," Brooks told the senate. "Their agency is to be dissolved and future direction is to be turned back to the war production board under its New Deal planner, J. A. Krug."

Recalling Dewey's warning on retiring that the synthetic rubber plants must be continued, Brooks said:

"Those are the words of a genuine American. I regret that the future destiny of this gigantic rubber program cannot be left in such competent and understanding hands."

A Lively Market.

Brooks expressed agreement with Dewey that expansion of the manufacture of rubber goods will furnish a lively market for both synthetic and natural rubber.

"The principal raw materials for synthetic rubber," he said, "are petroleum, natural gas, and alcohol. Alcohol, now being consumed for synthetic rubber at a rate of a million gallons a day, is a farm product.

"Our American farmers have performed heroic service to their country in this global war, and any new use for farm products to protect them against their post-war problems should be guarded jealously by all Americans."

AIR THEATER OFFERS GERSHWIN INSPIRED PRODUCTION TONIGHT

The Chicago Theater of the Air, returning tonight to its main studio after a summer of Saturday night broadcasts from the Grant park bandshell, will present "The Pioneer from Brooklyn," an original musical-dramatic production based on the music and memories of George Gershwin. The production will be presented by the W-G-N orchestra, chorus, and soloists under the direction of Robert Trendler.

The program will be heard over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak.

Gershwin's "Second Rhapsody," sometimes called "Rhapsody in Rivets," will be one of the highlights of the program, with Harry Sukman as piano soloist.

Reinhold Schmidt, baritone, and Elizabeth Mulliner, soprano, will be the featured vocalists. Miss Mulliner, who has been heard on network programs from New York, will be making her first Theater of the Air appearance.

A cast of Chicago actors will present the dramatic portions of the show, which was written by Jack La Frandre, also the producer.

'44 DRAFT QUOTA ALREADY LISTED, SAYS HERSHEY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—Selective service said today that men already in class 1-A and new 18 year olds can more than supply the military needs for the rest of 1944.

Draft Director Hershey estimated that 690,000 physically able men would be available for induction from those sources alone, compared with estimated needs of 600,000.

His estimates were in a letter to all draft board members giving the supply-and-demand picture up to next Jan. 1.

Class 1-A, as it stood July 1, is furnishing by far the bulk of the "availables." From that group, said Hershey, after allowing for rejections and deferments, men are expected to be available for induction in this proportion:

18-25 age group, 345,000.
26-29 age group, 80,000.
30-37 age group, 55,000.

That totals 480,000, and to this is added 210,000 youths expected to be inducted from those becoming 18 years old [35,000 a month for the six months beginning July 1]. The total is thus 690,000.

Altho Hershey said nothing about men being reclassified from 2-A and 2-B, other draft officials were emphatic in saying such men will be reclassified into 1-A whenever their reason for occupational deferments ceases to exist.

Nevertheless, the letter will almost certainly have the effect of encouraging the boards in their lenient policy on job deferments.

Hershey's letter was a contrast with the last supply-and-demand letter to local board members, dated March 13. At that time he urged the boards to do their utmost to provide more and more men to fill a critical need. Today, he praised their work and asked them, despite the "encouraging war news," to stay at their jobs.

ROSTER OF PARIS PURGE ROUNDUP LIKE 'WHO'S WHO'

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 8.—While elements of the French Forces of the Interior have taken the law into their own hands in a so-called purge against collaborators in many parts of France, the capital itself is the scene of an official purge. Every day long lists of arrests are published in Paris' 15 or so two-page newspapers. The lists include many celebrities.

Most sensational have been the developments following the recent arrest of Henry La Font, whose real name is Henri Chamberlin, and Pierre Bony, who had a role in the famous pre-war Stavisky scandal. They were charged with having organized the French Gestapo, which is said to have tortured and executed people who worked against the Germans during the occupation. They were discovered hiding on a farm.

It is said, among other things, that they accumulated millions of francs by confiscating the money and property of their victims.

Map Sensational Trial.

Since their arrest hundreds of suspected accomplices have been taken into custody and, according to the newspapers, a sensational trial is being prepared.

Apart from this case is the purge against "collaborators" which is going on thruout the country. It is difficult to determine guilt in many cases. One hotel manager has been arrested three times in the last week, questioned by the F. F. I., and released. As did all hotels, he had German officers billeted in his.

Among the notables reported arrested today were Max Bonnafous, one time Vichy food minister, who was hiding at the home of Gaby Morlay, stage and film star; Charlotte Lyses, one of the numerous wives of Sacha Guitry, arrested for welcoming the Germans by radio; Mary Marquet, actress of the Comedie Francaise and newspaper writer; Pierre Fresnay, film star and husband of Yvonne Printemps, who also is said to have not escaped maltreatment by the F. F. I.

Many Others Arrested.

Others reported seized were Jean Prejean, film actor; Gen. Henri Dentz, who surrendered Paris to the Germans and Syria to the British; Germaine Lubin, actress; Bernard Grasset, one of the best known publishers in Paris, whose firms published some German and collaborationist books but fewer than several other publishers:

Angelo Chiappe, prefect of the Orleans district; Jean de Baumony, deputy of Cochin-China; Marcel Besson, director of the leading provincial paper, Le Petit Dauphinois; Gen. Brecard, formerly chancellor of the Legion of Honor, and Gen. Lelon, who is charged with ambushing and killing the 27th battalion of Chasseurs Alpins in Haute Savoie; Albert Blaser, manager of Maxim's; Abbe Renaud, accused of being a Gestapo agent; Max Oswold, industrialist and former commander in the German army, and George Grappe, custodian of the Rodin museum.

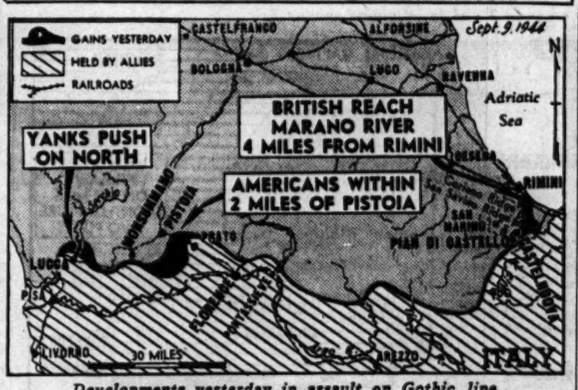
Seize 2 in 16 Million Plot.

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Paris prefect of police today announced the arrest of two French quislings said to have amassed an illicit fortune of $16,000,000 while operating with the German Gestapo. The prisoners are the Vichy supply minister, Max Bonnafous, and the Vichy colonial minister, Jules Brevie, a close friend of Marshal Petain. Their gold cache, found buried in a garden, was said to have been acquired while they ostensibly were smuggling funds out of France for other persons.

Hear Papen May Replace Nazi Envoy to Madrid

MADRID, Spain, Sept. 8 (AP).—Diplomatic sources reported tonight German Ambassador Hans H. Dieckhoff is now in Berlin and will not return to Spain. It was thought he probably would be replaced by Franz von Papen, former ambassador to Turkey.

Fighting Rages Along Italian Line



Developments yesterday in assault on Gothic line.

TURK RADIO TELLS OF RUSSIAN TERMS GRANTED ROMANIA

New York, Sept. 8.—The Turkish domestic radio said tonight, as heard by the federal communications commission, that Iuliu Maniu, minister without portfolio in the recently formed Romanian cabinet, had announced the following as the armistice terms imposed on Romania by Russia:

Bessarabia and Bukovina will be returned to the Russians; Romania will assure free passage of Russian troops in Romanian territory, transport will be left in Russian hands; Romania will pay an indemnity to Russia; a part of Romanian territory probably will remain unoccupied on the conditon that it be utilized for military operations; the soviets agree to recognize that the Vienna award was unjust and will aid the Romanians in demands on Transylvania.

[The leader of the Romanian peace delegation in Moscow said last night that the armistice would be signed at any moment.]

8TH ARMY GAINS IN FIERCE FIGHT FOR GOTHIC LINE

Fresh German Troops Thrown into Battle.

ROME, Sept. 8 (AP).—A deadly battle of attrition raged tonight along a 12 mile sector near the Adriatic coast, with the Germans pouring in reserves in a desperate effort to hold the allies out of the great Po valley and far northern Italy.

Some British 8th army units had bored to the banks of the Marano river, only four miles from Rimini, coastal anchor of the enemy's Gothic line, but Nazi forces massing behind the stream promised only more hard fighting.

American Forces Gain.

German losses were reported extremely severe in recent days, yet Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring appeared willing to pay any price to prevent a break-thru. Once the Gothic line is pierced a vast force of allied armor is ready to race across the plains beyond and cut the escape routes of enemy troops manning the remainder of the line west to the Ligurian sea.

American troops, completing a year of campaigning on the Italian mainland, advanced to within two miles of Pistoia, last important city south of the Gothic line. Farther west doughboy patrols pushed well north of Lucca.

After several days of savage fighting, the Nazis still held Coriano ridge, four miles inland from the Adriatic, as well as San Savino ridge, about 5½ miles inland.

Planes Blast Rimini Area.

Sharp fighting occurred all along the front extending inland 12 miles to Castelnuovo and Pian di Castello, where the enemy continued to throw in fresh artillery and motorized infantry.

Headquarters said "extremely bad weather" had contributed to bringing the allied advance to a virtual standstill. Fighters and fighter bombers, however, attacked railroads, bridges, and Nazi strongpoints in the Rimini area.

[The German high command said local allied attacks near the Adriatic were beaten back with "exceptionally heavy casualties."]

250,000 NAZIS APPEAR CAUGHT IN BALKAN TRAP

Wrecked Railways Close Lines of Escape.

ROME, Italy, Sept. 8 (AP).—Allied armies appeared tonight to have sprung a trap on 250,000 Germans in Yugoslavia and Greece, aerial bombing and sabotage having wrecked all main rail escape routes.

"German troops in the Balkans are in a serious plight," said an allied official Mediterranean air headquarters announcement.

"A barrier, in effect, has been laid across the Balkans from the [Adriatic] coast to Romania to prevent the possibility of any planned retreat back into Germany."

Crashing into Yugoslavia from Romania in the east, the Russian army, in conjunction with Marshal Tito's national army of liberation, has captured the first German-held Yugoslav town, said the Algiers, Algeria radio. The town was not identified.

Rail System Devastated.

Allied land forces of the Adriatic, a new organization including invaders who landed in Yugoslavia more than a week ago, were striking into Yugoslavia from the Adriatic coast toward a junction with the Red army, and the air force announcement said that Yugoslavia's rail system was so devastated that organized enemy resistance to the allied thrusts would be impossible.

Marshal Maximilan von Weichs, Nazi commander in the Balkans, has 20 divisions in Yugoslavia and six in Greece, it is estimated.

All main rail routes from Vienna and Budapest to Bulgaria and Greece, running thru Yugoslavia have been made impassable, and traffic on the Danube river waterway has been hindered by aerial mine-laying.

Bombers Deal New Blows.

Allied heavy bombers continued to attack rail yards in Yugoslavia and fighting swept almost without molestation over enemy air fields, which were strafed.

U. S. Liberators bombed yards at Nis, and Flying Fortresses spilled their loads across the yards at Brod on the Belgrade-Zagreb railway, and at Sarajevo. The Liberators also attacked a Belgrade rail bridge across the Sava river.

Mustangs strafed two airdromes north of Belgrade, destroying many planes on the ground. Few aircraft were sighted, and they did not attempt to stop the allied operations, an announcement said.

In its resume of the "operation strangle" against the Balkans since the capitulation of Romania on Aug. 23, the 15th aid force said its strategic forces had dropped 8,000 tons of bombs on communication lines in Yugoslavia, Hungary, and Romania.

As a result of these blows and demolitions by Tito's Partisans, rail traffic at present is impossible from Greece to Belgrade, from Belgrade to Ljubljana, from Sarajevo to Uzice, from Bihac to Sunja, from Karlov to Zagreb, or from Fiume to Zagreb, the air force said.

A Yugoslav Partisan announcement said the Zagreb-Belgrade line had been broken in 600 places.

Despite bad weather, Mustangs and rocket-firing beaufighters ranged as far east as Salonika in Greece yesterday, blasting convoys and trains.

1,500 FLYING FORTS BATTLE STORM TO BLAST NAZI TARGETS

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—Fighting their way thru a storm and temperatures as low as 50 below zero, almost 1,500 Flying Fortresses and Liberators blasted four top priority German targets in the Rhineland directly behind the Siegfried line today.

The targets were the synthetic oil and chemical plants at Ludwigshafen, railway freight yards at Karlsruhe, equipment and storage depots at Kastel, and a tank factory at Gustavsburg, both on the outskirts of Mainz. This was the first air attack on the latter two targets.

Flak was especially heavy over Ludwigshafen and 20 of the bombers were missing altho all of the 500 escorting Mustang fighters returned safely.

United States heavy bombers of the Mediterranean air force also struck during the day at railroad yards and bridges thruout eastern Yugoslavia in direct support of the Red army and Marshal Tito's Partisans.

Nazis Move Up Arms in Denmark, Press Says

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 8 (AP).—Reports of lively German military activity in Denmark are coming persistently from travelers and underground sources, the Free Danish Press service said today, and added that this indicated that the German high command fears an invasion in Jutland and northern Sjaeland. The press service said tanks and cannon can be seen moving thru Copenhagen northward.

NAZIS ALLOWING 150,000 TO DIE, POLES HERE SAY

More than 150,000 Polish civilians are facing death in the Germans' Pruszkow concentration camp near Warsaw, it was charged yesterday by the Polish Army Veterans' association, district No. 1, and the Polish Information center in Chicago. The charge was based on communications sent by the Polish underground civil administration in Poland thru the Polish government in London.

The reports said that when the Polish home army led the uprising in Warsaw early in August, the Germans retaliated by rounding up civilians in the parts of the city where Nazi power was supreme, refusing them food, extra clothing, and medical supplies, and driving them to Pruszkow.

Extermination Held Aim.

There, according to the reports, these civilians—mostly women, children, and older men—still are without food, water, and medical care.

"It is obviously the aim of the Germans to bring about the extermination of this population within the next few days," Jan Ciechanowski, Polish ambassador to the United States, said on Aug. 28, "and this appears to be the reason why they were not deported further west."

[Dispatches earlier in the day said Gen. Bors, leader of the Polish underground, had appealed to the International Red Cross by radio for immediate intervention on behalf of the interned civilians. Mass executions and the ravages of disease and hunger were reducing the camp's population rapidly, it was reported Aug. 26 in official Polish circles in Washington.

[Descriptions of conditions at Pruszkow have been received thru radio broadcasts from Polish operated stations within Poland. The road leading to the camp is littered with corpses, according to one broadcast. Another said that the internees are kept in the open, and that sanitary conditions are appalling.]

Envoy's Appeal Cited.

According to the Polish Information center here, Ambassador Ciechanowski said on Aug. 28 that the Polish government was appealing to the allied governments and to the entire civilized world to do all that was possible to prevent the extermination of these civilians.

"Only the immediate intervention of the Vatican, of the allied and neutral powers, and of the International Red Cross, supported by the weight of all free democratic public opinion, may still stop the Germans from carrying out their heinous design," Ciechanowski said.

RECORD ARMADA OF SUPER FORTS HITS MANCHURIA

No Planes Lost in Raid on Munitions Plants.

A. U. S. SUPER FORTRESS BASE IN WESTERN CHINA, Sept. 8 (AP).—The largest force of Super Fortresses yet employed bombed Anshan in Manchuria and the surrounding Japanese industrial empire today, concentrating on chemical and explosives factories. No planes were lost.

[The Japanese radio said more than 100 of the big planes, three of which were downed, made the raid.]

The bomb load was the largest per plane and the largest total since the Super Fortresses started their series of attacks on Japan and its satellite war industry centers.

Improvement in the big B-29's and in techniques, based on combat experience, permitted the increased bomb tonnages.

Attack by Daylight.

The giant planes flew in perfect formation in perfect weather and smeared the key targets in daylight. Full assessment of results awaited further interrogation of crews.

[The war department announced "bombing results were good."]

Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, new commanding general of the 20th bomber command, directed the massed squadrons in their dawn take-off.

Steel Works Crippled.

At the briefing, he told the crews: "Let's complete the scratching of Anshan this time and move on and mop up all the rest of our targets in the Japanese empire."

The Super Forts inflicted a crippling blow in their July 29 raid on Anshan's steel works. Prime targets today were factories and installations which produce the bulk of the raw materials in the enemy's war chemicals industry.

After the briefing of the crews a prayer was said by Father Kenneth G. Stack, lieutenant colonel in the chaplain corps, while hundreds of the young flyers knelt about a tent.

Col. Stack, formerly of San Diego, Cal., and famed "flying padre" of the South Pacific, is the 20th air force's chief chaplain.

Fighter Defense Weak.

The first returning flyers said the Japs had failed to increase their fighter defenses and anti-aircraft since the July raid, describing fighter interception as "weak" and flak as "weak to moderate."

They said evidence of the destruction done previously at Anshan was clearly visible, with repairs having been only begun.

Anshan, second largest steel producer and largest coal byproducts center in the Japanese empire, was hit today in "the very core" of its chemical works, particularly the explosives plants.

Diversionary raids were made on railroad yards at Sinsiang, highway and rail junction on the Peiping-Hankow railway west of Chihsien.

Japs List 3 Targets.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—The first official report on today's Super Fortress raid by the 20th air force said only that "important industrial targets" in Manchuria were hit, but enemy broadcasts listed Anshan, Penhsihu and Antung—where such war-vital commodities as steel, coal, aluminum and explosives are produced—as being hit.

A later report said the bomber gunners destroyed six enemy fighters, probably shot down nine more, and damaged 11.

AGENCY FOR OIL RESEARCH MAY BE GIVEN AWAY

Owners Complain of U. S. Interference.

Interference by department of justice investigators and the implied threat of a government crackdown has rendered uncertain the future of a scientific agency responsible for many revolutionary advances in the petroleum industry in the last 15 years.

The agency is the Universal Oil Products company, whose achievements include perfecting the process for production of triptane, the high test aviation gasoline which powers fighter planes and bombers. In addition, it has discovered a new process for manufacturing synthetic rubber.

In a statement yesterday, the eight major petroleum companies which purchased Universal for $22,249,999 in 1931, made known their intention of giving the company to several scientific and technological institutions in the hope that its work for the industry may continue.

Income for Further Research.

The institutions would be expected to reinvest Universal's income for further research in the petroleum hydrocarbon field.

For several months Universal has been subjected to a federal anti-trust investigation such as has been directed by the administration against railroads, the Associated Press, and many other enterprises. The implication has been, said industry spokesmen, that a "trust busting" suit is contemplated.

In selecting the institutions which it is hoped will preserve the agency and perpetuate its valuable research, the industry will strive to avoid those which might academize it into a theoretical nonentity.

Organized to Press Claims.

Universal's physical assets consist of one research laboratory. But its ownership of basic process patents and the royalties therefrom put its value into the millions of dollars. One estimate was that royalties amounted to 30 million dollars and settlements on royalties to 25 millions, up to 1931.

Universal was organized many years ago to press the patent claims of Jesse A. Dubbs, inventor of a cracking process for producing gasoline directly from crude oil.

COUNCIL VOTES CONTINUANCE OF POUND DOGS USE

By a vote of 41 to 2 the city council yesterday adopted a modified amendment to an ordinance regulating some of the provisions under which impounded dogs are turned over to medical schools and hospitals for humane experimentation.

The revision, which makes it easier for dog owners to reclaim their pets even after they have been delivered to such institutions, was satisfactory to the medical scientists who have been opposing passage of the amendment which in its original form would have barred them from having free access to the animals.

Revision of the code, which came before the council as a ward measure, calls for the creation of an advisory committee composed of an executive officer of each school and two disinterested citizens to regulate delivery of such animals to the institutions.

Inspections Provided.

Under the amendment, the advisory committee, which is to be appointed by the president of the board of health, is required to make annual or more frequent inspections of all schools and hospitals using the animals for research purposes.

The measure forbids experimentation with dogs without approval of the head of the laboratory. It requires that the animals during painful operations be kept under complete anaesthesia to render them insensible to pain. At the end of such operations the dogs are to be painlessly destroyed except where the operation is carried out with septic precautions.

All dogs revived under such conditions, the amendment requires, are to be given post-operative care comparable to that given human beings.

Recovery Fees Reduced.

The measure also reduced the license fees for dogs from $3.30 to $2 and scaled downward from $3.30 to $1 the fee for redeeming them from the municipal pound.

Under the new regulation owners may recover their dogs even after the animals have been turned over to a medical school if the owner presents proper identification and the animal has not been subjected to operation.

Dr. Anton J. Carlson, emeritus professor of physiology at the University of Chicago and president of the Chicago Scientific association, which has acted as an advisory body to the health commissioner on the disposition of impounded dogs, expressed complete satisfaction over passage of the amendment.

Points to Past Practice.

"The ordinance as adopted represents what we actually have been doing as humane and fair citizens during the 11 years the Arvey ordinance has been on the books," he said.

The amendment, according to Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, professor of physiology at Northwestern university, represents a vindication for the city's medical schools and hospitals that have been using the impounded dogs for medical research.

"Every one of the provisions of the new ordinance regulating our use of the animals merely writes into the municipal code the practices we have been employing for 25 years," Dr. Ivy said.

"We are glad the measure has been adopted because it places an official stamp of approval on what we have been doing all along. The amendment was not a compromise in any sense. It legalizes animal experimentation and will give us greater encouragement in our work than before."

POLICE HUNT PURSE SNATCHER.

Six police squads spent several hours in a fruitless search yesterday afternoon at 1200 Lake Shore dr. for a Negro who was surprised in the act of stealing a purse and watch belonging to Mrs. Helen Guie, 5311 S. 74th av., Summit, a laundress.

HUSBAND FOUND WITH G. I.'S WIFE SUED BY MATE

Mrs. Martha La Pansee, 42, of 1531 N. Austin av., filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday against Armour D. La Pansee, 50, a cab driver, who was found last month in the apartment of Mrs. Maria Corlette Jourdan, 32, a soldier's wife, at 1810 Lincoln Park West. Mrs. Jourdan and La Pansee were trapped by the sister of the soldier, who was in the Aleutians. Mrs. La Pansee, represented by Atty. David P. Krasner, charged her husband with desertion.

SEWING MACHINE CLEW LEADS TO CANARY BURGLAR

Anthony Zmuda ws staring moodily from the door of his pet shop, 5117 S. Ashland av., yesterday when his gaze fell upon an old sewing machine atop a passing junk cart. Mr. Zmuda's frantic shouts into the telephone brought a squad of New City police who overhauled the junk dealer and learned he had bought the machine from Willie Czoski, 5046 Justine st. Mr. Zmuda explained he didn't care a whoop about the machine, except that it was stolen from him at the same time as 100 singing canaries, for which he had given many whoops.

Willie Czoski.

Willie still had the 65 cents the junk man had paid him for the machine but he couldn't produce the canaries. They all had flown away when their cages broke during the burglary of the pet shop last Aug. 26, Willie told the police, who after a search of his house turned back to Mr. Zmuda several packages of bird seed and some dog leashes. Then they locked Willie up.

BATAAN GROUP TO PRESS HOUSE ON PROMOTIONS

Fight On for More Aid for Yank Prisoners.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—The Federated Organization for Bataan Relief, encouraged by the passage in the senate of a bill to advance the military ranks of war prisoners in the Philippines, pledged at a special meeting today to redouble its efforts to obtain passage of a similar measure pending in the house.

Announcement of senate approval of the bill was made at the meeting by Sen. Chavez (D., N. M.), its sponsor. Describing the bill as "American—not political," Chavez urged the Bataan organization to begin immediately its campaign to obtain house approval. He told the delegates that the organization's membership of 250,000 should assure favorable action.

Every Man Advanced.

The senate bill provides that, effective as of Dec. 8, 1942, each enlisted man below the grade of master sergeant in the army, or corresponding grades in the navy, marines, and Coast Guard, who was serving in the Philippines, Wake or Guam on Dec. 8, 1941, and who now is a prisoner of war, shall be advanced a grade from the rank he held on that date. Promotions also are to be made each successive year. The bill makes similar provisions for officers below the rank of colonel, or the corresponding ranks in the other branches of military service.

During the day Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, told the senate that similar compensation should be extended to military personnel who are prisoners of the Germans. He said that he would introduce legislation to cover these war prisoners.

The delegates from Bataan organizations in 40 states will continue to meet in Washington until Monday or Tuesday, formulating a program of both immediate and post-war relief for Philippine, Guam, and Wake prisoners held by the Japanese. Dr. V. H. Spensley of Albuquerque, N. M., president of the federated organizations, said that this program will be brought to the attention of congressmen, Gen. Marshall, the secretaries of the state, war, and navy departments, and the Red Cross.

Lucas Refusal Cited.

A. C. McArthur, president of the American Bataan Clan of Maywood and first vice president of the national group, told the delegates that they must obtain positive assurances from congress and government officials as to what is going to be done regarding relief for prisoners held by the Japanese. He criticized the apathy of some congressmen in this matter, asserting that recently Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] refused to take the time to see a representative of the federated organizations.

Delegates conferred today with President Sergio Osmeña of the Philippines and requested that, when the islands are liberated, a representative of the Federated Bataan Groups be allowed to assist in the location of military personnel who have been hiding in the interior. The organization also seeks to make arrangements to have prisoners flown back to the United States as soon as the Philippines are freed.

Members of the Bataan Relief groups are parents, wives, and relatives of American soldiers, sailors, and marines who fought against the Japanese in the Philippines, Wake, and Guam at the outbreak of the war.

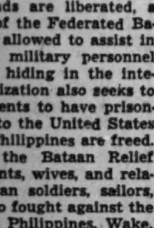
Delegation Is Invited.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Islands today assured the Bataan Relief organization that he would be glad to have a delegation come to the islands as soon as the Japs are driven out, and give liberated American boys "greetings direct from home."

Dr. V. H. Spensley, president of the organization, said after a conference with Osmena that "when the military authorities make it possible," Osmena will "give us complete coöperation."

STEP UP ARMS OUTPUT, MEDAL WINNER URGES

A plea to war plant workers to put everything they have into their jobs was made by Lt. Ernest Childers, congressional medal of honor winner, in an interview last night. Lt. Childers is the Creek Indian fighter who last September, in the Italian campaign, disregarded a wound he had received and led a group of eight men against a German machine gun post whose fire had been pinning them down. At the climax of the raid Lt. Childers proceeded alone and knocked out one machine gun crew with fire from his carbine.



Lt. Ernest Childers.

"The boys are fighting 24 hours a day," he said, "and people on war jobs shouldn't let down one minute during their working hours." He pointed out that the uniformed services were only half the winning team. The other half was the people back home.

Lt. Childers has been in the army for seven of his 26 years. He was born in Oklahoma and calls Broken Arrow in that state home. He is resting at the Blackstone hotel for a few days before going on to Denver, Colo., where a representative of the French National committee will present him with a decoration in recognition of aid he gave a French detachment in the Italian campaign.

BIGAMIST WIFE GETS PROBATION; JOINS 1ST MATE

Mrs. Elizabeth Ritter, 36, of Hillside, mother of two children, was granted six months probation after being convicted on a charge of bigamy yesterday by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court. Mrs. Ritter, a swing shift war worker, who was accused of marrying William McLaughlin, 63, of 1501 St. Charles st., Maywood, last March 27, left the court room on the arm of her real husband, Royal Ritter, 40, whom she married in 1930. McLaughlin, who said he thought Mrs. Ritter was single when he married her, has an annulment suit pending.

JAPS SEIZE BIG U. S. AIR BASE IN CENTRAL CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 8 (AP).—The large and long established American air base at Lingling in central China fell yesterday before a strong Japanese force streaming down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway in a drive intended to help establish an overland military route from Manchuria to Singapore.

Lingling is 75 miles southwest of Hengyang, where another American air base previously was lost.

The Chinese high command announced the loss today and admitted the invaders were only six miles northeast of Tungan, less than 10 miles from the border of Kwangsi province and less than 100 miles from Kweilin, a major city of Kwangsi province.

Lingling, one of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's bases, was occupied by Jap columns numbering five divisions. The Chinese said brisk fighting was continuing in the suburbs.

The high command said the Chinese beat back Jap attacks on Changning, a Chinese stronghold 37 miles south of Hengyang.

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that 14th United States air force Liberators sank three freighters 15 miles west of Takao harbor, Formosa, on Sept. 6.

[The Tokyo radio said American planes raided Canton, China, on Thursday, causing casualties and "small damage."]

MacARTHUR WINS AERIAL CONTROL OF S. PHILIPPINES

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 9 [Saturday] (AP). — Allied air forces "now dominate the southern Philippines," Gen. MacArthur announced today while reporting unchallenged new daylight raids against Japanese air centers near Davao, on Mindanao.

This followed by one day his announcement that allied planes now roam the Moluccas at will and the Japanese 6th air division, defending western New Guinea, has been virtually annihilated. The Moluccas lie southwest of the Philippines and include heavily-blasted Halmahera.

MacArthur's announcement today was coupled with the report that Liberators wrecked the Santa Anna seaplane base, while Mitchells smashed the Buayan airdrome, both in southern Mindanao Island of the Philippines. The only enemy plane in the air, a transport, was shot down.

Other raiders and patrol planes roamed unchallenged over island bases betwen New Guinea and Mindanao and to the westward, destroying or heavily damaging 7 freighters, totaling 6,500 tons, and hitting Jap bases.

Mitchell medium bombers on Wednesday swept Halmahera and Morotai Island, to the north. Halmahera is approximately 300 miles south of Mindanao.

Destroy Base in Carolines.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Sept. 8 (AP).—American carrier planes bombed Yap and Ulithi Islands in the western Carolines on Sept. 5, 6, and 7, destroying the cable station on Yap that once was the subject of a controversy between the United States and Japan.

These raids, and aerial strikes at the Marianas Islands to the north, Marcus Island and the Marshalls, were announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

The three day assault on Yap and Ulithi coincided on the first day with a carrfer fighter sweep over the Palau Islands, 315 miles southwest of Yap. The Palau attack was reported yesterday.

Meet No Jap Planes.

The Berlin radio, quoting Tokyo advices, said Palau and Yap had been attacked for three days by from 400 to 500 carrier bombers.

The navy said 110 tons of bombs were dropped on Yap and Ulithi, 100 miles to the northeast. Numerous rockets also were fired. There was no enemy air interception.

SH-H! SECRECY GUARDS QUERIES IN POLICE EXAM

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Operatives of the city civil service commission and the police department were tip-toeing about last night in preparation for the written police examination today. This quiz will help in deciding which of 131 police lieutenants will get to be captains.

The secret practice apparently was designed to see that those examinations, which every one hastened to explain have always been honest, do not acquire one crumb of suspicion. The candidates can earn as high as 10 points—4 points in the written examination, 1 in the oral, 1 for education, 1 for seniority and 3 for efficiency.

Civil service commission experts judge the contestants in all departments save efficiency. Police Commissioner Allman bosses this department.

Past Procedure Recalled.

In the past efficiency markings have been done after all other results were in. Some cynical fellows held the teensiest suspicion attached itself to this procedure.

Maybe, they said, some powerful politican might canter in and promote a mighty good efficiency mark for his man. This coupled with his one point for education, and a couple of other digits might raise him right into a captaincy.

Walter L. Gregory, president of the civil service board, yesterday explained that this time the efficiency marks were made first. Oral and medical tests were given last Wednesday.

The questions in the written exam have been selected from a list by a board of professional men. When the list is made up, Gregory explained, it will be smuggled by special messenger to the Wells High school, where the contestants wait.

Five on Question Board.

Members of the secret question board are Rollin B. Posey, professor of psychology at Northwestern university; Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools; Capt. John Prendergast, chief of uniformed police; Walter G. Storms, chief of detectives, and Capt. Harry A. Fulmer, director of police personnel.

Gregory admitted that in the far distant past there had been some question conerning some of the efficiency marks. "Of course," he said, "no such charge ever was made against Commissioner Allman."

NAMES F. D. R.'S NATIONAL GROUP AS BUST BACKER

Wyoming Chairman Tells of Committee Letter.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

A Democratic state chairman last night named the Democratic national committee as the real sponsor of the country-wide scheme to raise a slush fund for the fourth term by selling busts of President Roosevelt to war plants, labor unions, and federal job holders in circumvention of the Smith-Connally and Hatch acts.

Disclosure by Wyoming Chairman.

W. A. Norris of Cheyenne, state chairman for Wyoming, yesterday disclosed that the party's national committee urged the public sale of the Roosevelt busts. Until Norris' disclosure Alonzo Victor Lewis Associates of Seattle, Wash., appeared to be the sponsor of the scheme. Lewis is sculptor of the busts.

Word that strenuous efforts to organize a sale of thousands of the imitation bronze Roosevelt statuettes was under way came from Colorado, California, and Arizona. A letter to a Chicago salesman published by THE TRIBUNE yesterday indicated that the sale in the western states had started, but that sales thru the Democratic organizations in Illinois and other midwestern states had not yet been made.

Norris, at Cheyenne, said the Democratic national committee proposed to him in a letter the public sale of the Presidential busts in Wyoming.

Refuses to Join in Plan.

"The proposition was to offer the busts for sale to the general public as well as to persons whose employment under the Hatch act prevents contributions to political parties," said Norris.

"I refused to have anything to do with the plan," he added. "I have never been associated with undertakings of that sort and will not start now. The Democratic party in Wyoming will not sponsor the sale as long as I speak for it." He said his action prevents sale of the busts in his state insofar as the organized Democratic party is concerned. He described the scheme as "a subterfuge."

William M. Malone of San Francisco, California Democratic state committee chairman, took much the same stand as his Wyoming associate.

Rejected by Californian.

Malone said he informed the Seattle promoters of the plan that the California Democratic organization would not participate in the sale of the busts or the groups promoting them. "I'm not in favor of the idea," Malone asserted.

Edward Lehan of Denver, secretary of the Colorado Democratic executive committee, told how a "promoter" approached the committee several weeks ago with a proposition to raise campaign funds by selling a bust of President Roosevelt. Lehan said he thought the salesman was promoting a scheme of his own whereby he would sell the busts to the Colorado committee, which in turn could sell them to persons or groups at a price which would give the committee a profit to be used for campaign expenses.

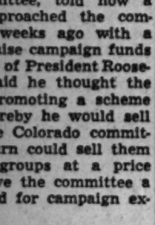
Arizona Returns a Bust.

J. N. Harber, chairman of the Democratic state committee of Arizona, said: "I accepted one of the busts and displayed it for 10 days on condition that if it was not sold I would return it. I shipped it back C. O. D."

Clarence Colman, Democratic national committeeman for Washington state, asserted that neither the national nor the state Democratic organization had authorized the sale of the busts.

A. J. Ritchie, whose signature appeared on the Alonzo Victor Lewis Associates letter printed in THE TRIBUNE, said in Seattle last night that the organization has agents in many states to retail the busts. They are "going out in pretty good numbers," he said. The firm, which has been in existence about six months, has been making Roosevelt busts 60 days, Ritchie said.

SUGAR IN GAS KEEPS HUSBAND SOUR ON WIFE



Mrs. Viola Beck.

Mrs. Viola Beck, 23, of 13347 Indiana av., was willing in Superior court yesterday to forgive her husband, Fred, 25, a war worker, and drop her suit for separate maintenance, but he refused to be reconciled.

"It's my turn to be mad now," he told Judge Joseph Sabath. "A reconciliation is out of the question."

Atty. Edwin McGowan, representing Beck, said Mrs. Beck had put sugar in the gasoline tank of Beck's car.

"Mrs. Beck put the sugar in the gas, all right," said her attorney, Victor Frohlich, "but she had a reason. Beck wanted the car to take out another woman."

Judge Sabath asked Beck to "think over" the reconciliation, and in the meantime, to pay Mrs. Beck $17.50 a week temporary alimony.

BIDDLE ACCUSED OF 'WITCH HUNT' IN SEDITION TRIAL

Free 26 Defendants Langer Demands.

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] told the senate today that Atty. Gen. Biddle should order the dismissal of 26 men and women defendants in the mass sedition trial now being held in Washington. He accused Biddle of "witch hunting" and said the alleged seditionists were not getting a fair trial.

Sen. Langer.

"The attorney general," said Langer, "should go personally to the courtroom and tell the presiding justice that altho some of the defendants are guilty, many are demented, others consider themselves martyrs and that continued prosecution of all the defendants is meaningless. The attorney general should do this in the interest of good government."

Langer based his charge that the sedition defendants were not getting a fair trial on the fact that the jury is "befuddled" by the testimony in 26 separate cases, nearly all unrelated.

Separate Prosecutions.

"These people should be tried in the good old American way—one at a time and in their home communities," Langer said. "The attorney general should order their dismissal under the present indictment and order separate prosecutions.

"Extraordinary precautions should be taken in time of war so that innocent people may not be deprived of their constitutional rights. In this case, Atty. Gen. Biddle has been witch hunting."

Langer criticized the government for basing its sedition charges on conspiracy, stating that many of the defendants had not even heard of each other, to say nothing of having corresponded, prior to their indictment. He quoted former President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft as saying that rules of evidence in conspiracy cases often prejudiced the cases of innocent defendants.

"The prosecution in its opening statement in the sedition trial," said Langer, "claimed these defendants were part of a world-wide conspiracy and that there was intent to overthrow democracy thruout the world. Civilization, we were given to understand, was hanging by a hair unless these people were brought from the four corners of the nation for trial in Washington.

Mentally Unbalanced.

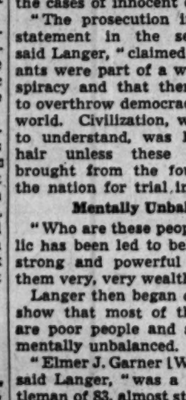
"Who are these people? The public has been led to believe they are strong and powerful and some of them very, very wealthy."

Langer then began citing cases to show that most of the defendants are poor people and some of them mentally unbalanced.

"Elmer J. Garner [Wichita, Kan.]," said Langer, "was a little old gentleman of 83, almost stone deaf, who, after he lost the mailing permit for his little weekly paper, lived with his aged wife on small donations. He died in a Washington rooming house with 40 cents in his pocket. His body was shipped home naked in a wooden box to his ailing, impoverished widow, because his two suits and a typewriter had been held.

"Ernest F. Elmhurst had been a waiter in New York hotels and wrote a book. He had been working in Washington hotels while on trial and has been followed and caused to lose his jobs because he was a defendant.

"Charles B. Hudson formerly issued a small home mimeographed bulletin. His wife kept roomers and for several years he was unable to get his teeth fixed for lack of money."



RANDOLPH, JUST WEST OF STATE

Seek New Duties

Five young United Service Organizations camp show entertainers, who were the first women to go overseas as U. S. O. performers a year and a half ago, stopped in Chicago headquarters of the Community and War Fund yesterday en route to New York for a new assignment in a war theater. Madge Rose, Mickey Cronin, and the three Faber sisters, Annabelle, Margaret and Sue, who have an act called the Five Girl Flash, told workers for the fund, of which the U. S. O. is a member agency, that they have played to as many as 20,000 service men at a time, and that the most unusual stage on which they performed was one composed of six mess tables. Aboard troopships, they wear gas masks and military gear, and in the event of emergency at sea, they were told, they will leave the ship after all men except the captain.

CHARGE PUPIL MOVE IS TRICK TO FORCE VOTES

The Cook county Republican central committee charged yesterday that the voiding of elementary school transfer permits with the opening of school this week was a political maneuver to cause parents to seek favors of their Democratic aldermen. The aldermen, by arranging permits, could influence votes in the November election, George M. Fisher, chairman of the committee, charged.

Aldermen learned in a city council meeting yesterday that the Republicans may be right. Mayor Kelly, answering aldermen who had urged him to use his influence to change the new rule of the board of education, said: "Carry your own heat, and don't try to put it on the mayor. You go to the school board." He cracked his gavel hurriedly and ordered the meeting adjourned.

Johnson Keeps Away.

Parents continued to gather at the offices of Supt. William H. Johnson and Don C. Rogers, assistant superintendent for elementary schools, but there was no indication of an immediate relaxing of the rule. Johnson was not in all day. Rogers appeared shortly after noon to meet with a delegation from the Beverly Hills community, which had waited since 10:30 a. m. John H. Owen, 10031 Longwood dr., presented a petition with 106 signatures asking the new rule be rescinded.

Johnson, reached by telephone, said no change was likely unless ordered by the board of education, which meets Wednesday.

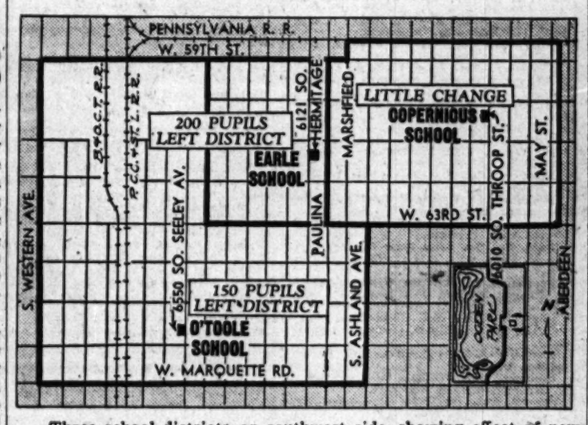
Dempsey Assails Johnson.

The resentment of thousands of parents thruout the city remained at high pitch. Meetings to organize protest actions were held in all sections. Parents disappointed in their efforts to see Johnson yesterday promised they would return to camp in his office Monday until they could see him. Many parents are refusing to send their children to any school pending a settlement.

John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for state's attorney, assailed Johnson yesterday for his "high handed method" of suddenly issuing the no-transfer order and for "the disregard of the interests of the parents" shown by the superintendent. He called the action typical of Kelly's subordinates.

Effect of School Transfer Order

(Story in adjoining column.)



Three school districts on southwest side, showing effect of new school board order forbidding elementary pupils to attend school outside their districts. In the O'Toole school district, 150 pupils who had been attending schools outside their district are being forced to go to the O'Toole schools against their will, and in the Earle school district 200 pupils are similarly affected.

OFFICER'S DEATH PUTS POLIO TOLL IN CITY AT THREE

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said yesterday that five new cases of infantile paralysis and one death were reported in the 24 hour period ended at 9 a. m. Lt. [j. g.] Charles W. Reid, 24, of Brookline, Mass., a Coast Guard officer who was stricken with the disease when he arrived in Chicago last Saturday, died Thursday in County hospital.

There have been 86 cases of infantile paralysis and three deaths in Chicago this year, compared with 507 cases and 55 deaths in the equivalent period last year.

Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, county health director, said three new cases were reported in the county outside the city in the 48 hours ended at 9 a. m. yesterday. The patients were an 11 year old boy in Berwyn; a 12 year old boy in Wilmette, and a girl, 11, in Winnetka. There have been 46 cases and two deaths in the county, compared to 143 cases and 15 deaths last year at this time.

Four Arrested as Bookies Are Discharged by Court

Four men arrested Thursday while allegedly accepting sidewalk bets on horse races were discharged yesterday in Racket court when arraigned before Judge Jay Schiller on charges of gambling. Those against whom charges were dismissed are: Myer Glaser, 735 N. Homan av.; Max Schlar, 545 Brompton pl.; Dave Dindsor, 1207 Leland av., and George Carson, 4607 Sheridan rd., the latter said to be a Democratic political worker in the 48th ward.

MATTOON'S GAS FIEND ATTACKS GIRL, 11, IN HOME

Massmeeting Tomorrow; Civilians Join Search.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 9 [Saturday].—The mysterious night prowler who has terrorized this town for the last week by spraying a sickening "poison gas" thru open bedroom windows was reported to have reappeared last night in the northwest section.

Eleven year old Ramona Driskell fled from her home when she and her mother, Mrs. Violet Driskell, were aroused by a prowler, who, they said, attempted to remove a storm sash from their bedroom window. The girl said the fumes assailed her and made her ill as she stood on the porch, calling for help. Mrs. Driskell said she believed she saw the man run away.

Gas Odor in Neighborhood.

The telltale odor of the gas was detected in the neighborhood of the Driskell home and by householders along Moultrie st. near by, but nowhere did searchers find a trace of the prowler. The Driskell child raised to 16 the number of persons who have become ill or partially paralyzed from the gas.

Reports of gas attacks Wednesday on Glenda Hendershott, 11, who was found semi-conscious in her bedroom, and on Mrs. Cordie Taylor were received yesterday as Mattoon business leaders planned a public massmeeting in an effort to stem the rising tide of hysteria. Civilians, armed with shotguns and rifles, joined the search for the attacker.

The mass meeting, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, will have a two-fold purpose, it was said. First, to reassure the townsmen that steps will immediately be taken to stop the strange attacks and, second, to protest the ineffectiveness of police action.

Widow Reports Prowler.

The police force, which consists of eight patrolmen and two officers, has brought in only one suspect, who was released after a lie detector test.

The prowler made no direct attacks Thursday night, altho three calls were received by the police that a strange man was seen. One of the reports, made by Mrs. Mae Williams, said that a tall, dark man had attempted to force her door at midnight. He was frightened away when she screamed.

Meanwhile, Richard T. Piper of the crime bureau of the state department of public safety, made plans to return to Mattoon to resume his study of the mystery. He said a chemical analysis of a cloth found on the porch of Mrs. Carl Cordes, 45, will be completed this morning.

One chemist said the description of the gas is close to the characteristics of chlorpicrin, used to kill rats and vermin.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Sept. 8, 1944.

THE corn is in the dent. A check thru early planted fields reveals that the kernels have reached their peak of development. Now the moisture within them is beginning to dry out, causing shrinkage which produces the characteristic crease along the top of the kernel.

The corn is not far enough along, however, to be considered safe from frost. The farm could use a long warm spell, such as was experienced at this time last year. It will help push the corn, which was held back by the drouth. A hard frost now would give the farm a lot of soft corn.

Corn Is Changing.

The corn plants are undergoing their autumn change. The leaves are changing from a deep rich green to yellow and brown. They are losing their soft texture and are becoming more like dried parchment. On some of the ears the husks have turned completely and are beginning to drop away, exposing the golden grain. The lower leaves of most of the stalks are brown, but some of this can be blamed on the drouth, which caused the stalks to fire.

Other signs of fall can be seen in the woods. The burr oaks and some of the white oaks reveal a subtle change in color. Their leaves are turning yellow. This is true also of some of the hickories. The sumac is beginning to show bright red in spots and the wild grapevine is turning. With the great amount of foliage on the trees the farm should have a brilliant display of colors next month.

Worry About Bass.

The men at the farm have been worried about the bass in one of the pools. They fear the large ones have devoured all of the smaller bass. Fish experts term this unlikely, as the fish were too large to gobble up each other. When placed in the pool they were breeder bass of 5 and 6 inches in length. Some were smaller, but all of them were too large to be cannibalized. If they had been fingerlings it might have been possible for the larger fish to consume the smaller.

The water in the pool is so murky it is hard to see the bass. During the heat of the day they seem to prefer lying on the bottom. In the evening, however, the gardener reports they are very active, darting and jumping in their search for tender insects. By the time cold weather arrives there will be some good eating lurking in the pool.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who remember how heavy rains delayed garden planting both this spring and in the spring of '43 may want to consider tiling their plots this fall. Tiling is especially beneficial on low and poorly drained plots which hold moisture an unusually long period each spring.

If the plot is less than 60 feet wide, a single tiling down the center of the garden should be sufficient. Gardens 75 to 100 feet wide should have two tiled drains. Four inch tiles are most commonly used. They should be placed at least two feet below the surface, and three feet is better. Naturally the depth of the tiles must be correlated with the slope of the garden to provide a continuous downhill flow.

The tiles should be fitted together as closely as possible to prevent mud from seeping into the drain, and the upper end of the drain should be plugged for the same reason. If the soil is heavy, it is wise to place cinders over the first six inches of the tile.

If there is no natural outlet for the water, such as a drainage ditch, a seep hole must be dug at the outlet. A hole of two cubic yards is sufficient for a garden of 2,500 square feet, especially if cinders or sand is placed in the bottom of the hole to increase drainage.

AVERS NO WORLD RULE CAN ASSURE PLENTY OF FOOD

Prof. Karl Brandt, economist of the food research institute at Sanford university, declared yesterday, in a discussion of international food problems, that "there will be no super-government of the world which will assume responsibility for people's food."

Brandt spoke at the final session of a five day conference of food authorities from all parts of the nation at the 20th institute of the Norman Walt Harris foundation at the University of Chicago.

In the "longer run," Brandt said, there should be international, intellectual coöperation on matters of food, but no action agency. This coöperation should be free from big power domination, he added. The food and agricultural organization of the allied nations, he went on, can play an important role. Government, he said, should refrain from price fixing. Subsidized food consumption, he added, is incompatible with political democracy. A true international food policy, he said, "must begin at home." It does not lie, he said, in the imaginary, neutral realm of global blueprints.

Overseas Applications for Ballots Total 116,000

A total of 116,000 requests for absentee ballots had been received from men and women serving overseas in the army and navy yesterday, said John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners.

MINNESOTA FOE OF F.D.R. WARNS OF HILLMANISM

John E. Regan, leader of Minnesota old line Democrats organizing to support Dewey and Bricker, declared in a radio talk last night that if the New Deal remains in power "we have but two systems of government to look forward to—Communism or Fascism."

Regan, Democratic candidate for governor of Minnesota in 1932 and 1934 and for senator in 1940, spoke at his home, Mankato. Copies of his talk were distributed by the American Democratic National committee, 105 S. La Salle st., with which his state movement is allied.

He charged President Roosevelt has conceded to Sidney Hillman such dictatorship that he and the Political Action committee, in which Regan said the communists Earl Browder and Harry Bridges were included, are in a position to take over the Democratic party.

"Hillman and his group are running the show," said Regan. "Do you Democrats wish to subscribe or affiliate with a group which has discarded every principle of the Democratic party in order to perpetuate itself in power?"

LYONS CHARGES SPRAGUE IS FAKE G. O. P. DESERTER

Accuses 3 Others of New Deal Masquerade.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Du Quoin, Ill., Sept. 8.—The Illinois Democratic machine was accused today by Richard J. Lyons, G. O. P. candidate for United States senator, of attempting to bolster its ranks by having Democrats masquerade as Republicans who have deserted to the New Deal.

Among those named by him as operating under such false pretenses were Col. A. A. Sprague of Chicago, whom he described as "window dressing for the Kelly political mob in Chicago," and three downstaters, Otto Beich of Bloomington, Mayor Edwin C. Hair of Benton, and Mayor Frank P. Parker of Harrisburg.

Exceeds Democrat Day.

Lyons and Gov. Green spoke this afternoon before a large and attentive crowd at the Du Quoin state fair, at which Republican day was celebrated. Today's crowd was three times larger than the attendance at the fair's Democratic day yesterday, according to the estimates of politically disinterested race horse men.

The crowd's response, as well as its size, was considerably different from that of yesterday when, spectators said, half of those in the grandstand walked out noisily as the Democrats began their program which featured as speakers Sen. Lucas, seeking reëlection, and Thomas J. Courtney, who hopes to unseat Gov. Green.

Democratic officials who arranged the program pleaded in vain for the audience to remain after the harness races had ended, repeatedly calling out, "Please bear with us," spectators related. But a large section of the crowd moved away, leaving great gaps of empty seats in the stands, and showed its temper with occasional shouts of "What about Pearl Harbor?" the spectators said.

Cheer Green and Lyons.

Contrasting with this apathy, the crowd today packed the grandstand under the same conditions—termination of the exciting harness races—and overflowed onto the track infield where many men and women stood or sat to hear the Republican speakers. There were frequent cheers for both Green and Lyons, especially the latter.

"The crowd's attitude on these two days shows that southern Illinois, regarded in the past as Democratic territory, is now solidly behind the Republican ticket," asserted Fred Herbert of Murphysboro, vice chairman of the Republican state committee.

Lyons drew cheers with the directness of his attack on the four he named as Democrats masquerading as former Republicans. He told the crowd:

"There isn't a Republican in the whole mess of pseudo-independents."

An Aid of Hershey.

He identified Beich as 1940 campaign manager for Harry Hershey, defeated Democratic candidate for governor, and said that Hair and Parker never were Republicans.

"And as for Col. Sprague," he continued, "he has headed so-called independent movements in every Democratic campaign, but you never saw a Republican voter coming out of his headquarters. They are all New Dealers."

He recalled that Sprague has received $373,000 in elevated receivership fees under appointments dictated by Mayor Kelly. As co-receiver for the elevated lines he has received about $250,000 since 1932. In the same period he has been paid approximately $125,000 as receiver for the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad.

"The New Dealers are so weak," Lyons declared, "they are resorting to claims that independent voters are supporting them."

Pledges Aid to Veterans.

Gov. Green announced his state administration will place a trained adviser in every county in the state to give aid to returning war veterans. The program, he said, will establish in Illinois the nation's most complete and efficient project to help discharged soldiers and sailors.

These contact specialists, informed on the rights of discharged veterans, will coöperate with draft boards and coördinate the work of public and private veterans' agencies, the governor explained, to help "all those who must be guided thru the bewildering period between discharge and complete resumption of normal life."

He asserted every returned veteran requiring medical care and mental rehabilitation is going to get it.

"If the federal veterans' administration won't develop proof that illness or injury was caused in service, then it is possible for the veterans to get treatment from the state," he said. "We are not placing the burden of proof upon the veterans, as has previously been the case."

G. O. P. TO OPEN STATE, COUNTY OFFICES TODAY

Hundreds of Illinois Republicans, including state candidates, county chairmen, and members of the state central committee, are expected to attend the formal opening of Republican state headquarters on the third floor of the Hotel La Salle at 2 p. m. today.

State Chairman John F. Tyrrell said as many state candidates as can be spared from speaking schedules downstate will be in Chicago for the opening. Starting next week the various divisions of the state headquarters, such as labor, veterans, women's organizations, and young Republicans will be staffed and under full steam, Tyrrell said.

County Chairman George Fisher announced that Gov. Green and a number of the other state candidates will join county candidates in the opening of county headquarters at 4 p. m. today.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Virginia Schneiter, Olney, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

In what way have you been heckled by upper classmen?

WHERE ASKED.

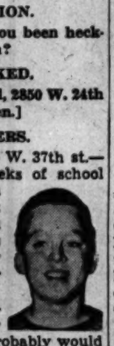
THE ANSWERS.



Charles Czarny, 1645 W. 37th st.—For the first two weeks of school no one is assigned a locker and you just take one wherever you can find one. I was looking for an empty locker when an upper classman said, "You can get a steam heated one for the winter for only 50 cents." I probably would have bought it but I didn't have 50 cents.

Richard Eichhorn, 1137 S. Francisco av.—During the noon hour we eat lunch in a big room. I was about to enter when a boy stopped me and said, "Hey, before you can go in there you have to buy a table." I spent some time looking for some one in charge of selling tables before I realized I was being fooled.

Dorothy Perkovitz, 3038 Roosevelt rd.—The school is rather large and not knowing my way around I asked an upper classman where I should go to find a certain class. He gave me a lengthy and detailed description on how to get where I was going. I followed his instructions to a T and ended up in the boiler room.

Lorraine Orzec, 3423 S. Leavitt st.—Instead of trying to help a newcomer out it seems they try to do their best to get us confused and on the wrong track. I politely asked a senior, "Could you please tell me how I can get to the lunch room?" He said, "Yes, it's very simple. Just go to the basement and take the subway up."

Walter Sedlacek, 2831 Cullerton st.—I was climbing upstairs and I said to one of the boys, "You certainly waste a lot of energy running up and down these stairs." He said, "Well, why don't you take an elevator?" I felt silly because I didn't know there were elevators. After an extensive search I found there really weren't any.

Shirley Langer, 1510 S. Albany av.—Instead of going in the wrong direction I asked a group of girls where room 210 was located. They directed me to the fourth floor. I wandered around looking for a stairway and finally asked some one where it was. "There isn't any fourth floor, silly, that's why you can't find it," was the reply.

WICKARD CHALKS UP FARM GAINS FOR ROOSEVELT

BY LEWIS HUNT.

Democratic township committeemen met in a campaign rally yesterday and heard Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] praise President Roosevelt as the friend of the farmer and leader in winning the war and denounce the Republican Presidential campaign as made up of "synthetic appeals."

The luncheon, held in the Stevens hotel, was arranged by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], who was host Wednesday to the ward committeemen. He was absent yesterday because of the death of his sister, Mrs. Cora Lucas Gerdes, at Chandlerville. Mayor Kelly, who is county chairman, was to have represented Sen. Lucas, but he had not arrived when the speakers were ready and Corporation Counsel Hodes introduced them.

"We should make known to the people how much the farmer has benefited the last 12 years by direct acts of the federal government," said Wickard. "We used to think that all the farmer needed was to have parity for his products. Now, on the average for all he produces, he is getting prices 114 per cent of parity and the average has been as high as 117.

"The important thing is that the farmer is getting out of debt and putting money in the bank. He is in a firmer position financially than ever before.

"I could talk of soil conservation, in which, under this administration, something tangible has been done for the first time. I could tell you how 35,000 underprivileged farmers have been enabled to own their farms, which is not generally known. But the farmers know the importance of keeping in power the people who made these things possible.

Electricity on 40% of Farms.

"Sen. Lucas is particularly interested in making electricity available on all the farms. Eight years ago only 10 per cent of farms had electricity. Today it is 40 per cent. I'd like to know how much of that would have been done if the Republicans had been in power."

Sen. O'Mahoney, here to attend a water rights conference, declared the Republican campaigners "do not deal in things the people are thinking about, the hopes and fears of the rank and file. They mobilize discontent and emphasize unimportant things."

"For example," he said, "when President Roosevelt spoke at Bremerton navy yard, you might have thought it a world shaking calamity if everybody else couldn't go on the radio. The Republicans criticize the secrecy of the Dumbarton conference, but was the conference of Republican governors in St. Louis six weeks ago held in a glare of publicity?"

Death Before Election to Nullify Vet's Ballot

Columbus, O., Sept. 8 (AP).—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert held today an absentee ballot marked by a member of the army or navy who died before election day could not be counted. The attorney general added that a notification from the war or navy department or from a close relative could be considered sufficient proof of death.

GOV. DEWEY'S MESSAGE OF HOPE.

Gov. Dewey's opening campaign speech was the most powerful message of hope that the American people have received in more than a decade. It invited us to revive our hope in America and to resume the progress that was checked in the eight years of the Roosevelt depression that the governor indicted so justly.

His indictment of the New Deal for destroying America's faith in its future was remarkable for its avoidance of florid rhetoric. Three sentences sum up his charge. They are a statement of fact that every one must admit to be true who has followed the course of Roosevelt's failure to solve the nation's problems.

"The New Deal," said Gov. Dewey, "was founded on the philosophy that our frontiers are behind us and all we have left to do is to quarrel over the division of what we have. . . .

"It was the New Deal that made—that managed to make—a three year depression last 11 years—over twice as long as any depression in a whole century. . . .

"The reason why they [the New Dealers] are now dismally preparing for another depression is because this administration has so little faith in the United States."

That, when you add to it Roosevelt's repeatedly demonstrated incompetence as an administrator, and his profligacy with other people's money—expectable in a man who has been supported all his life by money that he didn't earn—is the kernel of the New Deal's failure.

The American people have become increasingly concerned that Roosevelt and his followers will destroy their liberties. There is reason for that concern. But the thing we fear can never come about unless we follow the coward's road that Roosevelt has marked out for us. Cowards must always be slaves. The men who would impose tyranny on the American people can never succeed unless they can destroy our faith in our ability to take care of ourselves, and by that destruction make us throw ourselves on the mercy of a government transformed from servant to master.

Roosevelt would like to have these people forget his domestic failures during this campaign. He is campaigning as the commander in chief, claiming credit for victories that he had no part in winning, in a war for which he failed to prepare the nation. For eight years he deceived the people by promising them security instead of progress; he now attempts the further deception of presenting himself as the indispensable man to negotiate a peace that will secure us against a repetition of the war which he proved incapable of securing us against. Gov. Dewey had his answer for that also.

"Our place in a peaceful world can and will be made secure," he said. "But nothing on earth can make us secure unless we are strong, unless we are productive, and unless we have faith in ourselves."

The American people have been offered their choice. They can follow the coward's road with Roosevelt, the New Dealers, and the Communists until they yield their freedom in exchange for the security of slaves. Or they can follow the road of hope, of confidence in themselves and in their nation, with the courage to solve their own problems and stand on their own feet as free men. That is the road on which Gov. Dewey and the Republican party are prepared to lead them.

BUT PRICE CONTROL REMAINS.

What is going to happen to business when Germany is knocked out? Obviously, a lot of war orders will be canceled, for it will take fewer tools for one war than for two, and a different assortment of weapons for the island warfare in the Pacific than for the continental war in Europe. The WPB has announced that war production will be reduced to a 60 per cent basis following Hitler's defeat. That sounds reasonable. It places the number to be thrown out of work at four million—probably as good a guess as any.

The WPB says that as soon as Hitler is licked it means to help the four million to get jobs by abandoning virtually all controls over the production of civilian goods. That sounds pretty good, even tho the WPB makes exceptions of lumber, textiles, and some chemicals, and intends to keep an eye on inventories. The real trouble is that Chester Bowles, the OPA administrator, wishes to continue price controls and consumer rationing for two years after hostilities end.

What WPB ought to say is that it is going out of business as soon as the job of producing for war is finished. Mr. Chester Bowles ought to announce that OPA is going out of business at the same time. Both these statements ought to be indorsed by the President. Reconversion of the government ought to come first.

Mr. Roosevelt has exercised a lot of powers in the war that neither he nor his associates want to relinquish. The WPB statement is almost meaningless, because the New Deal means to hang on to price control. It does no good to tell electric refrigerator manufacturers they can make all the boxes they want to when the government won't let prices rise enough to permit them to be turned out at a profit. No business man can make commitments and plan his output for the future when a burocrat can change prices at will.

The WPB says that civilian goods can be freely made as soon as Hitler is licked, but Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, goes around the country trying to scare people with the inflation that is to engulf us unless his job is continued.

What if the manufacturers of automobiles do ask some fancy prices for the first cars they turn out? People would be discouraged from buying, and the demand would decline. On the other hand, manufacturers would be encouraged to get to market with as many cars as possible to take advantage of the high price, and supply would expand. The producers would find their cars wouldn't sell at the original prices and they would be cut. It wasn't a government agency which ran the price of automobiles, radios, refrigerators, etc., down to the level where the masses could buy. It was competition.

After the war there is certainly going to be an abundant labor supply. Or why all the talk about unemployment? And there is certainly going to be an abundant supply of raw materials, or why all the talk about the disposal of war surpluses and all the plans to keep farm prices from falling? With plenty of man power, plenty of raw materials, and greatly expanded productive capacity, we don't need to fear inflation.

Let's not permit the New Dealers to scare us into continuing any of their controls after the war is over. The whole shebang ought to go when the fighting stops—without leaving even a little bit of either WPB or OPA.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER AND FREE LABOR.

An improved method of manufacturing synthetic rubber, which promises to increase the capacity of America's new industry by 40 per cent, has been announced by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. With this process the country's present facilities can provide 1,338,000 long tons of rubber a year and this is more than was used in the entire world during any pre-war year, according to company spokesmen.

Col. Bradley Dewey, who dissolved his office and resigned as rubber director on completion of his work, says in a final report that American synthetic rubber can compete with natural rubber in an open market. Natural rubber is about as good as it ever will be and in all probability it will cost more after the war than it did before. Natural rubber will not be improved in quality or price, but the synthetic will. The new manufacturing process just announced and recent developments made in handling synthetic rubber in our tire factories demonstrate that.

The New Dealers who advocate taking our synthetic rubber factories out of production after the war pretend to be concerned about the future of the native laborers in the East Indies who might be unemployed if the synthetic product destroyed the market for natural rubber in America. These propagandists, in fact, are playing the game of the British and Dutch rubber cartels which contribute to the wealth and power of the European empires.

Col. Dewey says he believes that world demand for rubber after the war will be so great that there will be plenty of markets for all the rubber the plantations can turn out, in addition to the synthetic produced in America. At any rate, Americans who now know the facts about plantation labor, as they were not generally known before, will not continue to buy goods produced in conditions approximating slavery.

If we restore the East Indies to the British and Dutch by force of our arms we have the moral duty to see to it that the horrible treatment which caused natives of those islands to welcome the Japanese is not reëstablished thru our victory. If there is to be a post-war international accord the 13th and 15th amendments to our Constitution, abolishing slavery and guaranteeing equal rights to all, regardless of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, must be written into it.

CANDIDATE M'DOUGALL'S HANDBILLS.

Curtis D. McDougall, who is the Democratic nominee for congress from the 10th district because his party feels that propriety requires it to nominate some one, dropped off in Lake Forest Monday to distribute some political handbills. He and two companions were stuffing them under automobile windshield wipers and placing them on doorsteps when the Lake Forest police arrested them for violating a local ordinance.

Entirely aside from the constitutional principles involved, we would be inclined to run Mr. McDougall down the street with a chairleg if we caught him stuffing anything under our windshield wiper. People who jam up windshield wipers are no better than people who trifle with automobile locks and ought to be taken in custody for tampering with an automobile.

That, however, wasn't the charge, and Mr. McDougall asserts that his constitutional rights were violated by the arrest. In the light of recent Supreme court opinions, which this newspaper has had occasion to commend, it is probable that they were.

In opinions upholding religious freedom the Supreme court has given religious sects, including some that are downright hate breeders, wide freedom to promulgate their views thru tracts and handbills, distributed in public places. The right of free publication of political views is certainly as strong as that of religious beliefs, and certainly overrides the minor nuisance arising from the public litter of any kind of handbills, religious, political, or mercantile.

Furthermore, if we were Rep. Church, Mr. McDougall's opponent, we would be delighted to see his handbills broadcast thruout the 10th district, particularly those evincing the enthusiasm of Sidney Hillman and his PAC Communists for the Democratic candidate. Nothing could do more to increase the Republican majority in the district.

Speaking of not changing horses, apparently the advice doesn't hold good when it comes to Vice Presidents.—Christian Science Monitor.

Answer to yesterday's problem: After putting in the wheat and tying the sack, the farmer inverted the upper portion of the sack wrong side out back over the wheat, put in the oats, and tied the top of the sack. Thus when the center of the sack was opened the wheat could be removed without removing or mixing the oats.

MR. PEPYS TALKS SHOP.

9th Sept.—Shall spend this week-end with a dummy, like Edgar Bergen. Or maybe I should say like a stick-up man. Shall take hundreds of small pieces of galley proof and paste them in order, page by page, for my Linebook of 1944. Since the pieces are of different sizes, and each page must come out even, the job is like solving a jigsaw puzzle while taking a bath in mucilage. Shall get paste in my ears and what is left of my hair. In short, shall be as fidgety as a one-armed editor pasting up a dummy.

Each piece will be numbered according to the proof from which it has been clipped. That tells the printer on what shelf in the pantry the type is stored. On Monday shall give my dummy to Mr. Imboden, in the print shop. Then shall go away for a nap or a nip. A day or two later an armful of page proofs will be dropped on my desk, and I will have to read the stuff over again, to kick out what errors have been overlooked in the shuffle. About a month hence the autographing will begin, without cocktail parties.

Read in the papers that the north shore was jiggled by an earthquake the other night, but didn't notice it, altho I was on watch in my ivory tower at the time. To make up for this lapse in my nature studies, saw a fine ball of fire over Evanston two nights later. It was small, but fancy in its style, for it might have been shot from a Roman candle. It went out in a few seconds after a short flight, and failed to get any publicity.

LIGHTS OF THE WORLD.

Tho black as the night be the shades in which
Man, lost on his way, may grope,
A light thru the darkness still will gleam,
And this is the light of hope.
And there is the warm and the glowing light,
Planted deep in our hearts from above,
Which kindles all kindly, compassionate deeds,
And this is the light of love.

And there is the light that still shines bright,
Tho it be in a dungeon, walled
Round by the damp, bleak stones; and this
Is the light of freedom called.
And there is the holy light of truth,
Which has ever, undimmed, withstood
All cheat and fraud. But where is the light
Of world wide brotherhood?

For that light, O brothers, you've waited long,
Thru the night, with hearts that ache,
Yet do not despair, for, glowing and strong,
Like the dawn, that light shall break
Afar o'er the earth. Let the heart beat high,
Faith awake that lies torpid and dumb.
O, lift up the eyes and keep watch for the light,
For surely the light will come!

Now for a Quiet Life.

"Have I had a wonderful nap!" yawned Ferdinand, my silver tabby cat, as he stretched himself luxuriously. "Such a heavenly quiet around here. No machine guns going. No boys tearing in and out slamming doors. S-day has dawned at last."

"S-day?" I repeated, puzzled.

"Not very bright today, are we, my girl? I was referring to School day, of course. You know, 'dear old golden,' et cetera. It's really a combination of V-day and D-day . . . a victory for the parents and the beginning of battle for the teachers."

"You can say that again," I suggested.

"I won't if you don't mind. Repetition is not the spice of life. By the way, did the kid take along an apple for the teacher?"

"He did not. This year he has decided to use psychology instead."

"O, brother!" Ferdinand laughed uproariously. "When the kid starts applying psychology, combined with his well known brand of mythology, who do you think is going to get the liberal education? Teacher, of course."

ON THE UP AN' UP. . .

Mr. Powers, so they say,
Thinks that tall girls are okay.
I am glad at last to find
Some one in that state of mind.
Little girls have too much glory,
Sung in song, and praised in story;
Tall girls stoop more than they orter,
Hoping folks will think 'em shorter.
Now they make the "Looks" and "Pics"
When they're over five foot six!
Did this pioneer, who found
Tall gals nice to have around,
Get the thought from watching flocks
Of these gorgeous hollyhocks?

The Word They Can't Pronounce.

Linemaster: Now that the formerly intimate garment called brassière has emerged upon our beaches and boulevards as one-half of what the girls consider a complete costume, it is pleasing to note that the word itself has also been cut in half, becoming quite simply bra.

A special advantage in this is that the darlings, nine-tenths of whom never were able to pronounce the whole word, have no trouble at all saying "bra." The usual rendering of the whole word was "brazier" [a container for hot coals] or "brasserie" [a place where beer is brewed, imbibed, or both].

I have consulted lexicographers and learned that the French meaning of brassière is "camisole d'enfant." But Webster says a camisole is [1] a jacket with sleeves, formerly worn by men; [2] a negligee jacket for women; [3] a corset cover; and [4] a straitjacket.

Now to put on a "bra" [the No. 4 meaning].

Yes, but for the present the law is inoperative because the machinery hasn't been set up.

SEARCH FOR SOURCE OF STOMACH PAIN.

THE stomach acts as a weather-vane, but discomfort in that area does not always mean local trouble. While gastritis may be present, the chances are that the source of irritation is some distance away. This emphasizes again how friendly the various portions of the alimentary tract are with one another.

Even remote organs may exert an influence. For example, the manifestations of a coronary occlusion [block] may be felt in the region of the gastric pouch. This is why so many sufferers will exclaim, "It is something I have eaten." This is not the explanation. The pangs arise because the pumping organ cannot obtain enough blood to feed its fibers.

In all probability the gall bladder causes as much "indigestion" as any other structure. It is responsible for a goodly amount of our gaseous dyspepsia, including belching and a distaste for certain dishes. This may go on for a long time before a typical bout of gallstone colic identifies the malady. Meanwhile, there is considerable fullness after meals and occasionally the individual will be obliged to leave the table because distention is extreme.

With children who complain of stomach ache, with or without vomiting, the appendix must be suspected. When asked to locate the place where it hurts, the youngster will invariably point to the upper abdomen just below the breastbone.

Even the colon can be the culprit. A case is reported of a woman of 30, who experienced numerous sieges, toward the end of which she would lose everything she had eaten. Repeated X-ray checks failed to reveal any abnormality within the gastric pouch. The bowel was investigated and a spastic condition was discovered. With proper management, thru the use of sedatives and belladonna, the seizures vanished.

We know that any blockage or obstruction to the onward passage of food thru the intestine will be characterized by pain and nausea. Here symptoms will increase in severity and not infrequently a surgical emergency is encountered.

Finally, the old fashioned bilious attack is usually the result of dietary indiscretions: too much food and too little rest. While it may be on a migraine [sick headache] basis, we must not forget that poor elimination — chiefly constipation — can bring on a type of vomiting which not only empties the "breadbasket" but will permit the discharge of bile with the rejected material.

The purpose of this discussion is to call attention to the fact that the stomach is merely an enlargement of the digestive tube, which reaches from the mouth to the rectum. Trouble anywhere along this pathway may be signaled to other segments and there localized. We should not assume, however, that vomiting, belching, and distress mean that an ulcer exists or that chronic dyspepsia has assumed control. We must investigate the entire channel, if we would find the starter.

UNSAFE MILK.

A. B. writes: What is milk sickness?

REPLY.

"Trembles," or milk sickness, may be acquired from the milk of cows fed on white snakeroot. This weed is poisonous and yields a toxic, oily liquid. Extreme muscle weakness will follow a large dose. The disorder is not of germ origin and neither pasteurization or boiling—unless it is prolonged—will render the fluid safe.

NO FATS.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Five Little Words.

The current Presidential campaign is manifesting a great lack—so far it has no slogans. Neither party has yet come up with one that swept any one's imagination, much less that of the country.

This was called to our attention the other day when Charles R. Macloon, retired publicist, submitted three slogans for the Republicans:

Vote for Dewey and Bricker and You'll never hock your ticker.

or

Elect Dewey and Bricker and slash
The high price of likker.

or

If you're a smart picker you'll Vote for Dewey and Bricker.

Well, now, these are very interesting, but they won't work. They don't have the old zip, and they are far too long. An authority on the subject says the ideal campaign slogan is limited to five words. It is concise, incisive, and contains an idea.

The first hoopla campaign in American history produced its best slogan, "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too." It had beautiful alliteration and only four words. Today, 104 years later, persons still mumble it and haven't the slightest idea what they are talking about. All it meant was that William Henry Harrison, the Whig candidate for President, was an old Indian fighter who had outwitted Tecumseh at Tippecanoe, and that he now had Tyler on the ticket for Vice President. Van Buren was Harrison's opponent, and his name was worked into "With Tip and Tyler we'll bust Van's biler," but this was too long and made little headway.

Alliteration worked so well for Harrison in 1840 that Polk tried it in 1844 with "Fifty-four forty or fight!" later the American war cry against the British over the Oregon territory. He, too, won, so in 1856 the Republicans went brilliantly alliterative with: "Free soil, free speech, free labor, free men, and Fremont!" It was much too long. Fremont lost.

Probably the shortest political slogan was that of Taft in 1908: "Stand pat." The country did, and Taft won. A few years earlier, in 1896, William Jennings Bryan had tried three words: "Sixteen to one," but had worked harder at a long essay: "You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." In their attempt to memorize this grandiloquent phrase the voters became so befuddled they elected Mr. Bryan's Republican opponent, as they did every time Mr. Bryan ran. The neatest of the brief slogans was that used by Mrs. Ferguson of Texas in her campaign for the governorship. "Me for Ma!" It went, and so went Texas. However, such a nice colloquialism, with its implied intimacy, is probably too risky on a national scale.

In general the short ones worked, and the long ones, as Teddy Roosevelt's 1912 "We stand at Armageddon, and we battle for the Lord," failed. Remember "He kept us out of war"? That was Wilson in 1916. And "Coolidge or chaos"? That was 1924. And "Throw the spenders out?" No matter what you may think now, that was Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932.

Grant did all right in 1868 with "Let us have peace," and Harding did better in 1920 with "Back to normalcy," altho historians agree he needed no slogan at all and could have made a big mistake, had he needed any slogan, when he tried to use: "Let us have done with wiggle and wobble."

Rhymes do not work well. Soothsayers contend Landon never should have gone for that "Off the rocks with Landon and Knox" in 1936. Ordinarily rhymed slogans are so miserable even historians scorn them. The slogan should be [1] affirmative as "Keep cool with Coolidge," or [2] a taunt as "Where did he get it?" which the Republicans hurled at Tammany's Boss Croker in a 1901 mayoralty campaign.

So, with these suggestions, this department now declares its space open to suitable slogans. The country needs one! And please don't try that "Roosevelt and/or ruin," adaptable for either party, again. It was suggested, and spurned by both parties, in 1940.

FROM A SUBMARINE SAILOR'S WIFE.

Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 5.—My husband isn't an army captain as is the husband of "One in a Million" who wrote the recent letter "Why Army Wives Crack Up." He is one of the many enlisted men aboard a navy submarine, having been in the undersea service three years. When my man went in the service, I prepared myself for lonely days ahead and certainly have never considered myself a social outcast. We wives of submariners keep in constant touch with one another be it a distance of 3 or 3,000 miles.

Must we "poor service wives" have some one "do something" for us? Must we have male [unafraid of the situation] escorts? Aren't we American women self-sufficient enough to find contentment in our homes, families, work, and the company of other service wives? Is there a law prohibiting our joining a gym class or learning to draw?

True we submarine wives do not need to worry about our men attending weekly Red Cross dances, or about bridge playing nurses. We worry about the sunless months, mental strain, and Jap depth charges our men must survive. If the millions of army wives had to go 12 long weeks with no mail [and then hold their breath fearing the dreaded "overdue, presumed lost"], they wouldn't sneer at living from a mailbag. Consecutive patrols mean mail for us only four months a year.

We are lonely and grieving, but we refuse to be of the weeping group. We married for better or worse and to honor those we love. If we aren't emotionally mature enough to stay at home and give our children an example of real marriage and what it means, then we deserve the criticism and scorn of the "fuddy-duddies."

HE WANTS A CAR.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—During the first World war I enlisted and served two years in the army. I was drafted in the second World war as a private at the age of 45 years and 6 months. I sold my car at that time. At present I am on inactive duty.

I have tried to purchase an automobile since going back to civilian life but the prices are beyond my means, and dealers will not sell unless I have a used car to trade in.

Today's TRIBUNE says the army is disposing of 25,000 trucks and cars. Why is it not possible for me to purchase or at least bid on one of these surplus cars?

THE FLAG IN THE TRIBUNE.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are grateful for the homage and respect it is showing our flag by printing it daily on the front page.

The reproduction of our flag in connection with the death notices of our fighting men and women who have made the supreme sacrifice, is a loving and patriotic gift to them, as our flag is the beautiful symbol of our country, for which they have given their all. As we view the flag by their names, may we in gratitude to them renew our allegiance to Old Glory and all it stands for.

MRS. ALONZO NEWTON BENN.

THE MAIN ISSUE.

Delavan, Wis., Aug. 30.—Post-war foreign policy is not the issue in this campaign, tho it is the issue which the present administration wishes to keep to the fore in order to conceal the main issue. The main issue is the restoration of the United States in all its domestic affairs, which for nearly 12 years have been disorganized to make a crackpot holiday. Dictatorship, communism, business restrictions, irrational rationing of domestic necessities—all this furnishes the issue which must be faced and settled. This can be done by centering public attention on the necessity of ridding the country of the New Deal parasites and the "indispensable man" with his decrees which, when they are not silly, are vicious.

Post-war Europe can take care of itself. Post-war United States must take care of itself. Meantime the crisis in this country is serious and urgent enough to engage the attention of all patriotic citizens who, instead of gadding over the globe, are sawing wood at home. My suggestion is that Mr. Dewey lay off on the Dulles, Willkie, Hull stuff and consider the unmaking of the United States by the communistic New Deal.

E. W. S.

THE FIRST RUBBER CARTEL.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 31.—The references to the rubber cartel in today's editorial, "Mr. Biddle, Meet Mr. Hull," bring memories of the first rubber cartel and $1 rubber. The agreement in question, which collapsed after 1928, was in execution of the so-called Stevenson plan, and was put into effect Nov. 1, 1922, by a kind of ukase of the outgoing colonial secretary of the Lloyd George cabinet, no time being available for debate by parliament.

Strangely enough, that colonial secretary, who favored the plan as a means of paying "our Yankee friends" their war debt interest with their own money, was none other than our great and good friend, Winston Spencer Churchill.

CROWD OF 15,000 CHEERS DEWEY'S LOUISVILLE TALK

Governor Appeals for World Peace Group.

icans are completely agreed upon one proposition: we do not intend to have a third World war. This time must be the last time.

Withdraw from Rest of World.

"We know that we cannot make good that resolve by any effort to withdraw or isolate ourselves from the rest of the world. Our problem is not how to stay out of a future war. Our problem is to prevent a future war before it happens, instead of getting into it after it has happened.

"Of course that is easier said than done. Wars have had a habit of recurring regularly thru all the centuries. But when war comes to us it brings forth a united American effort. It is a nonpartisan matter. So also must we make peace a nonpartisan matter, to be achieved thru a united effort. Only thru a nonpartisan approach to the shaping of a peace structure can America achieve unity of purpose. Only with unity of purpose can America exercise the influence in the world for which its real strength has equipped it. I am deeply convinced that our peace efforts can and must become a nonpartisan effort.

"This idea is already at work. I have made a practical beginning with Secretary Hull in bipartisan coöperation to establish an international organization for peace and security. Both parties are working together today in this great labor so that it can go forward year after year, decade after decade, regardless of the party in power.

Urges Public Discussion.

"And let me make this plain: I believe that the organization of peace is a subject which should be talked about earnestly, widely and publicly.

"We cannot meet the problems of peace on any hush-hush, pussyfoot basis. The steps by which this great goal is to be approached cannot be secret. They must not be devious or obscure. On the contrary, they must be methods the American people will believe in. They must involve procedures and commitments that the American people will not merely accept for today, but will wholeheartedly support today, tomorrow and 50 years from today.

"For no document we sign at the end of this war will, of itself, preserve peace. Peace will be preserved only by the hard labor, the understanding and the willingness of all people during all the years to come. It will take sacrifice and continuing effort. It will never be something we can take for granted. We must wage peace, as we have waged war, by the united purpose of our people.

Unprecedented Action.

"That is why I have taken unprecedented action to promote the nonpartisan character of the conferences now in progress. Experts of both parties and members of the senate of both parties are now conferring and will continue to confer on the work in progress. So long as I have anything to say about it I shall insist on two things: First, that the American people shall be fully informed of our efforts to achieve and to keep the peace. Secondly, these matters shall never be subjects for partisan political advantage by any individual, or by any party either in or out of power.

"Tonight I want to discuss a few of the many aspects of the problem of preventing future wars.

"There are, at once, two different things to be done. One deals with the immediate problems of victory and the other with the long term, world-wide problems of organized peace. Work on both should go ahead right now. But they are different problems entirely.

Problems of Victory.

"Let us consider first the immediate problems of victory. I have long and repeatedly insisted that when the period of actual combat is over, we must continue close cooperation among the four great powers, the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China. The disarmament of Germany and Japan—a disarmament that must render them powerless to renew aggression—is primarily a responsibility of the victorious allies. What must be done to carry out that responsibility?

"First, the military defeat of Germany and Japan must be complete and crushing. Germany must never again suffer the delusion that she could have won. Japan must be utterly beaten. Germany and Japan must be completely disarmed. The weapons of aggression must be taken away from them, broken up, or destroyed. Beyond that the very means of rearmament, the chance to make guns and fighting planes and warships, must be forbidden them.

"In the case of Germany, it will probably be necessary to establish a commission which in the first instance and for a number of years to come must be responsible to the victors. That commission must supervise the actual disarmament of Germany and the necessary measures to prevent rearmament. To prevent rearmament it will be necessary either to eliminate or to place under close supervision those industries which are readily convertible to war production.

Ban Aviation Industry.

"For some years to come, it may be necessary to forbid Germany any aviation industry of her own. I have already suggested the advisability of internationalizing the entire Ruhr, which is the heart of Germany's heavy industry.

In the case of Japan, similar measures adjusted to the particular characteristics of that island nation will be needed. Here China, clearly, will have a definite and special interest. But the disarmament of the aggressor nations, the punishment of war criminals, the immediate post-war supervision of German and Japanese industry—all this is a responsibility of the victors and of such of the liberated countries as are willing and able to join in the endeavor.

"These are specific tasks which we can plan now and carry out according to agreements publicly made and publicly to be observed. This is the specific task of the great, victorious powers.

"The other task is the broader one. It is to establish a world organization in which all nations may share as sovereign equals, to deal with future threats to the peace of the world from whatever source, and on a permanent basis.

Peace of the World.

"If our only problem were to make certain that neither Germany nor Japan should ever again be able to renew their attack upon the peace of the world, it would be fairly simple. We would have only to disarm those nations and keep them disarmed. But let us be clear-headed as we look into the future. There have been many wars in which neither Germany nor Japan took part. We must take measures broader in scope than just to deal with the aggressors of this war.

"We are seeking to make secure the peace of the world, not merely in the next 10 years, but as far ahead as the mind of man can think. So we must have a world organization equipped to meet the problems now unforeseen which may arise five and 10 or 50 years from now. That world organization must be the work of many minds. No one man or three or four men can shape it. Some 60 nations, great and small, must help shape it, believe in it, join it, make it work.

"Upon certain aspects of the organization we are, I think, agreed. There will be a general assembly comprising all peace-loving nations of the world. In this general assembly all nations shall have representation. It is generally agreed, too, that there will be a council small enough for almost continuous meeting and prompt action. The major nations will participate in the council and the smaller ones thru selected representatives.

Repel Military Aggression.

"This world organization should develop effective coöperative means to prevent or repel military agression, and such means should include the use of force as well as the mobilization of international opinion, of moral pressure, and of economic sanctions. There should be a world court to deal with justiciable disputes.

"But even this is not enough. We should not seek merely repression of conflict. Force breeds revolt unless it is the servant of the law and the servant of justice. We should and must work to create conditions under which peace will be desired and not merely compelled.

"If we are to obtain this ideal we must be fair and upright in our dealings with the smaller nations. They, no less than ourselves, have a stake in world peace.

Sharing of Responsibility.

"We in America believe that all decent members of a society must share the responsibility for its order. If we are to give leadership to the world we must put into action the ideals we believe in. The people of Poland, of France, of the Low Countries, the people of Norway know even more bitterly than we the price and the tragedy of war. They and all other peoples of good will are entitled to full partnership in preventing its repetition. They feel as deeply as we do. Their stake is as great as our stake. We Americans and a few strong friends must not assume the right to rule the world. It is the obligation of the mighty to make common cause with the less powerful in the interests of justice and peace.

"When we have done all these things we shall be only at the threshold of the better world we seek. There will be for each of us not only as nations but as individuals the daily task of getting along with our neighbors wherever they are.

Philosophy of Wasters.

"By this I do not mean getting along by the philosophy of the Washington wasters. They have been proposing that America should try to buy the good will of the world out of the goods and labor of the American people. They propose to buy themselves international power out of our pocketbooks. They are the very ones who tell us America is old and that its period of vigor is over. They say we are mature and have no future except to quarrel over the division of what we have. Yet they now talk glibly of an American WPA for all of the rest of the world.

"To hear them talk Uncle Sam must play the role of the kindly but senile old gentleman, who seeks to buy the good will of his poor relations by giving away the dwindling remains of his youthful earnings.

"That is no lasting way to win friends or to influence peoples.

It Can't Be Bought.

"Good will cannot be bought with gold. It flows to the man who successfully manages his own affairs, who is self-reliant and independent, yet who is interested in the rights and needs of others.

"We shall want to help—we will help—the liberated peoples thru this period of crisis, so they can again help themselves. We can and we will seek to work out conditions that will lead to an ever wider exchange of goods and services without injury to our own people.

"Beyond that, we know that we shall be able to help in keeping this long peace we pray for, only if we are strong at home. We can no more separate our armies in the world from our domestic affairs than our armies can fight without our production at home. If we are to have leaders who set group against group; if we are to be governed by the philosophy that America is overbuilt and is done; if we cease to be a land of opportunity for our own people, then we shall fail both at home and abroad.

Spirit of Defeatism.

"But if here this year we can put down forever this spirit of defeatism that has haunted our government for 12 long years, if we can restore the faith of Americans in America, if we can regain the irresistible forward progress which never halted until the New Deal decade of the 1930s, then we need have no fear either at home or abroad.

"I say 'if,' but we need have no doubts. The great achievements of American industry, American labor, and American agriculture in meeting the requirements of this war are a challenging demonstration of what this country can do and can be when we can once more turn our energies to the pursuits of peace.

"For years I have been saying up and down the country that America is not finished. It need never be finished. America is at the morning of her destiny. If you believe with me, let us now resolve that we will never rest until we make the American dream a living and a moving reality.

"A vital and necesary part of the American dream is that America shall, by her conduct and example, give leadership and inspiration to the world. We are still young. We are in the fullness of our strength. We shall go forward on this mighty continent of ours to build a better life for all our people and in so doing, we shall help build a better world for all the peoples of the earth."

Opposes Postponement.

At a press conference upon his arrival here, Dewey, in response to a question, said he opposed any postponements until after the war of negotiations preliminary to a world organization.

"We must proceed forthwith," he said. "With the present pace of the war, no one knows when Germany and Japan will collapse. The world organization will not be born until 60 nations have met and reached an agreement. Working at top speed, this would take months.

"After the organization is completed, this is only the beginning. The organization must learn to walk and attain vitality before there is another world crisis."

Going to Michigan.

Dewey's special train left late tonight, for Lansing, Mich., where Dewey will hold conferences tomorrow before proceeding for a Saturday night and Sunday morning in Owosso, Dewey's birthplace, where he will visit his mother.

The train will leave Owosso on Sunday afternoon, passing thru Chicago about midnight with no stop except for train service. Conferences will be held next week in Des Moines, Iowa, and in Nebraska with the next scheduled address on the night of Sept. 18 in Seattle.

LOUISVILLE GREETS DEWEY WITH TRUE DIXIE HOSPITALITY

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 8 [Special].—The greeting received here tonight by Gov. and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey combined southern hospitality and northern vigor.

The Republican presidental candidate spoke in the Louisville armory at a rally sponsored by the national federation of women's Republican clubs. It climaxed their third biennial meeting.

Earlier in the day the Deweys met the delegates and alternates, along with several hundred Louisville citizens, at a Federation reception. The delegates represent 400,000 Republican women in 40 states.

Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers of Chicago, reëlected Federation president, introduced Dewey and drew cheers for her summary of the federation sessions as "for the purpose of working practically and realistically for a Republic victory."

The Deweys arrived here at 4 p. m., but a devoted public began a vigil outside the Brown hotel much earlier. They had stopped in their workaday business, and women juggled bags of groceries to join in the demonstration that greeted the Deweys as they rushed into the hotel.

Mrs. John W. Bricker, wife of the Republican vice presidential nominee, shared the reception line at the federation gathering with the Deweys as did Kentucky's Republican governor, Simeon Willis, Mrs. Willis, and Mrs. Suthers.

CONSCIENCE NIPS WALLER FOR ACT OF MAGNANIMITY

Ald. Waller [43d] attempted at the meeting of the city council yesterday to recapture and quash that impulse that impelled him to approve the lame duck appointment on Aug. 16 of Mathias [Paddy] Bauler as city collector.

Bauler, a Democrat, defeated Waller, a Republican, for 43d alderman in 1933 and Waller defeated Bauler in 1943. An alderman's salary is $5,000 a year; the city collector gets $6,000.

While Bauler was down in his counting room yesterday Ald. Waller introduced a resolution in council to reconsider Bauler's appointment.

"I was swayed by an impulse of generosity to a defeated foe when I voted for the appointment," Waller stated in a message read by Council Clerk Edward Padden. "I even arose in the council to congratulate him."

But, Waller said, he has thought over his impulsive action and come to the realization that an alderman's vote is a public trust. He moved to reconsider the appointment, but there was not second.

"The motion," said Mayor Kelly, and he bowed his head, "is dead."

EX-SEN. REED, 82, FOE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS, DIES

Vigorous Debater, Noted for His Invective.

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 8 [Special].—James A. Reed, 82, former Missouri senator long noted as a vigorous critic and master of biting phrase-making, died today at his summer home near Fairview, Mich.

James A. Reed.

Reed was treated in an Alpena hospital after he was stricken with a severe cold and bronchitis two weeks ago, but he returned to his 6,500 acre ranch last Sunday. His condition became worse and, tho his wife said last night he appeared to be "getting along all right," oxygen had to be administered this morning. He died at 12:30 p. m.

The body was brought to Alpena this afternoon and will be sent to Kansas City for funeral services. Arrangements for the funeral were not expected to be completed until Mrs. Reed, who leaves tonight, arrives in Kansas City.

At the height of his career, "Jim" Reed was considered one of the most vivid personalities in public life. Lean, tall and erect, white haired, keen eyed and brilliantly fluent in debate, he strode with tiger-like vigor across the American scene during a long life marked constantly by his oratorical belligerency.

Born on a farm near Mansfield, O., Reed moved with his parents to Cedar Rapids, Ia., when he was 3. He graduated in law from Coe college, practiced three years in Cedar Rapids, then went to Kansas City in 1887 to make his career.

Exhibiting early his talent for effective satire and tart sarcasm, Reed attained unusual success as a prosecuting attorney and then was elected a "reform" mayor of Kansas City. He represented his state in Democratic national conventions and in 1911 began his 18 years in the United States senate.

He Criticized Presidents.

Thruout his life Reed was a sharp critic of Presidents—Hoover, Wilson, Roosevelt coming under his caustic objurgation—but his most notable battle was against the league of nations, for which President Wilson read him out of the Democratic party.

Tho he was accused of having "talked the league to death," Reed always believed that events fully vindicated his historic stand.

The league of nations, he contended, "was a wonderful institution with only one major fault—it just wouldn't work."

Branded by Wilson as undesirable, shunned by his own party, and denied a delegate's seat at the San Francisco Democratic convention, the man who did not know the word "compromise" came back fighting. He fought his way back to senate reelection in 1922, to vindication and to his former prominence.

In 1928 he took the stump for Alfred E. Smith for President. Then he voluntarily retired from the senate and returned to Kansas City to practice law.

He was in the news in 1931 when his neighbor and client, Mrs. Nell Donnelly, a millionaire garment manufacturer, was kidnaped.

Marries His Client.

Reed pledged his personal fortune and the rest of his life, if necessary, to run down and hang her abductors if she were harmed. She was released unharmed, her kidnapers were caught and imprisoned, and in 1933, 14 months after his first wife's death, Reed and Mrs. Donnelly were wed.

Still a brilliant orator in late life, Reed turned the scorn he once used on Wilson to President Roosevelt. He opposed Roosevelt's third term and his quest for a fourth, accused him of "polluting the Supreme court tho he failed to attack it," and reproved him for attacks on the Constitution.

HIT CEMETERY'S STAND BARRING CHINESE LEADER

Assailed as 'Mockery of Democracy.'

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Resentment was voiced yesterday by Chicago religious leaders against Rosehill cemetery for refusing to allow the body of Tom Y. Chan, noted Chinese leader, to be buried beside that of his former wife. The first Mrs. Chan died several years ago. Mr. Chan, who was a member of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's People's Political council, died last Sunday.

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling said the conscience of Christians "must be terribly shocked" at the cemetery officials' ruling, which was based on the fact that the deceased "did not have a white skin. Even if men are not equal when breathing, we certainly cannot deny our common level in death."

E. A. Henning, assistant manager of the cemetery, said that since 1925 the board had approved sale of lots only to white persons. Mrs. Chan was buried before that ruling was made.

Called un-Christian.

Bishop Conkling did not question the right of the cemetery corporation to lay down its rules, but added that "what we do question is the acquiescense of the Christian people of this or any community in impassively accepting un-Christian conditions. The restrictive cemetery ruling may be defensible on many grounds, but it is certainly not a Christian ruling."

"Let the Chinese people of our city know that Christians are deeply moved by the present discrimination and let the Christian conscience express itself strongly and clearly. If we cannot change conditions now existent in the cemeteries, we had better move to establish others, where men's bodies may be laid down in the dust together, without respect of persons."

Rabbi Benjamin Birnbaum, president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, echoed Bishop Conkling's sentiments, and declared that a chief item of coming peace table talks will be a recognition of the worth of all men, regardless of race or color.

"Contradicts the Gospel."

The Rev. Dr. John W. Harms, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation, described the incident as illustrating American carelessness in the interpretation of democracy and religious teachings about race. "We white people may not like it," he said, "but we cannot escape the fact that discriminations against people because of their color is in contradiction to the Christian Gospel and is therefore evil."

Rabbi Louis Binstock of Temple Sholom asked for immediate action in the case and declared "such action [on the part of Rosehill cemetery] at this time makes mockery of the democracy for which we fight and turns religious faith, whether Jewish or Christian, into a farce."

WOMEN OF G. O. P. HEAR DIRKSEN LASH NEW DEAL

Mrs. Bricker Guest at Club Women's Lunch.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 8 [Special].—Vigorous assaults on the New Deal were made today before the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs at their closing sessions as two members of congress addressed delegates at a luncheon for Mrs. John W. Bricker, wife of the Republican Vice Presidential nominee.

Representatives Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, and Winifred Stanley of New York spoke at the event which preceded the arrival of Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, and Mrs. Dewey for a reception here this afternoon and a rally tonight at the Louisville armory.

Dirksen Assails Spending.

Dirksen said that after expenditure of more than 21 billion dollars and the delegation of vast authority to the President in the eight and one-half year period preceding Pearl Harbor, the country still was lacking leadership.

He said the country needed young and vigorous leadership, one that would be unified and would assure the traditional freedom to pursue the American record of initiative and production.

Rep. Stanley predicted a Republican victory on the basis of the candidate's record which would fit him for the vital needs of the country today.

Obligation of Mothers.

At a press conference today, Mrs. Bricker told a dozen women and the single man covering this meeting, that she believed woman's chief place in the post-war world would be no different than it was before, that of being a good home maker and mother.

The women heard Werner W. Schroeder of Illinois, vice chairman of the Republican National committee blast the secrecy of the new deal.

"Secret meetings are held all over the world, the details of which are never known to the American people." Schroeder said, "What alliances are made, what committments of the wealth and man power of America are pledged, we do not know."

The election committee formally returned Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers to a second term as national president.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY

F. D. R. INSISTS HE STILL YEARNS TO GIVE UP HIS JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Apparently stung by Gov. Dewey's charge that the New Deal fears peace, President Roosevelt today told his press conference he still would like to return to private life but not because he was "old, tired, and defeated."

In a bantering mood, the chief executive fenced with reporters on political questions arising out of the first campaign speech of Dewey, who is making a strong bid to succeed him in the White House.

He explained he had not heard Dewey's speech and was able to read only half of it. He said a member of his family had heard it over the radio and had told him a few of the things Dewey said.

The Dewey speech was thrust at the President abruptly with the question: "What have you got to say about Gov. Dewey's charge that the administration is old and tired and quarrelsome?"

With a broad grin he replied he could only say what he had said before—that he would like to go home to Hyde Park. But, he added with a smile, not because he was either tired or defeated.

God called you and you went away.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-by to none,
His loving heart had ceased to beat,
'Fore I knew it he was gone.
He did not fail to do his best.
His heart was true and tender.
He worked hard for those he left.
And ever will be remembered.

Fall to Bring Some Shifts in Addresses

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE will be some changes made this fall in address books despite the difficulties of finding new homes these days. Now that her husband has gone to sea, Mrs. Irving Kreutz, the former Barbara McLaughlin, has returned to Lake Forest to live in the home of her father, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, where her wedding took place last December. Ensign and Mrs. Kreutz resided in Cambridge, Mass., before he left for sea duty. Mrs. Ralph C. Hamill Jr. [Janet Brown], whose young husband was killed in action a year ago only four months after their marriage, and her six months old daughter, Janet Fairlie, will share the McLaughlin home with Mrs. Kreutz.

After a considerable hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan have found a furnished house in Winnetka, where they and their young children will be at home after next Friday. Mrs. Sullivan and the children are expected to arrive on that date from Saranac, N. Y., where they have spent the last two or three years. Mrs. Sullivan's parents, the James R. Offields, are due in Chicago about the same time from their summer home at Harbor Point, Mich.

Reversing the usual trek from city to country are the Harger Rollos, who with their young son have to move out of the house they were renting in Northfield, because it has been sold. They have taken an apartment on the near north side.

Here and There.

If her gasoline coupons come thru in time, Mrs. James G. Conger will leave next Wednesday for New York to take her husband's car to him. Mr. Conger, who is counsel there for navy price adjustment, recently found a little guest house on Long Island, and later in the fall his family expects to join him. On this trip, however, Mrs. Conger will leave 4 year old Jimmy and 2 year old Amy at the family's farm in Gray's Lake, where she and the children have been living.

Lt. and Mrs. F. Newell Childs are getting settled in the home in Maple ct., Lake Forest, which they recently purchased from the Frank Priebes, who in turn have moved into the Lake Forest residence which they bought from Mrs. Ben Alexander. Lt. Childs, who has been stationed at Great Lakes with the naval reserve, is leaving tomorrow to report for duty in Washington, D. C. His wife will remain in Lake Forest.

Engagement News.

At a luncheon today in the Drake hotel, Mrs. Henry Emery of Kenmore av. is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Lois, to Ensign Roger Hurd of the merchant marine, son of Mrs. Robert Maxon of Lakeview av. Mrs. Emery and her daughter returned last week from San Francisco, Cal., having flown out to see Ensign Hurd while his ship was in port. The wedding is planned for December, when he is expected to return again from duty in the Pacific.

Miss Emery was graduated from Miss Stickney's school and from Northwestern university and completed a year of study in the university's law school. Her fiancé, a graduate of Lawrenceville, attended Leland Stanford university and was graduated from the merchant marine academy in Kings Point, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Walter Baun of Garden City, Long Island, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janette Ruth, to Pvt. George Arthur Hodapp of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hodapp of Wilmette. Miss Baun, a graduate of Larson Junior college in Connecticut, met her fiancé while he was stationed at Mitchel field, Long Island. He was graduated from the Manlius school in New York and left his classes at Northwestern university to join the royal Canadian air force in 1941. After Pearl Harbor he transferred to the United States air forces and now is stationed as an instructor at Will Rogers field in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Markus of South Shore dr. announce the engagement of their daughter, Janon, to James S. Wright of the Coast Guard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wright of Kenmore av. Miss Markus, who attended Sacred Heart, is entering the University of Chicago. Her fiancé attended Lawrence college and just has returned from two years of foreign service as a boatswain's mate 1st class.

Mrs. Ralph H. Martin of Kenilworth announces the engagement of her daughter, Jeanne, to Ensign Edward Carl Peterson of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Peterson of Jackson, Mich. Miss Martin attended Northwestern university. She was sworn into the WAVES last month and is awaiting orders to report to Hunter college in New York for boot training. Ensign Peterson, who received his training at the Glenview naval air station and at Corpus Christi, Tex., where he won his wings, now has gone to Shawnee, Okla., for further training as a naval aviator.

On the Calendar.

For the second time within a week the Oakbrook polo club's stables, which last Sunday was a mecca for horse show enthusiasts, will draw a large crowd over the week end. This time the attraction will be a two-day country fair which the Hinsdale Junior center of the Infant Welfare society is sponsoring today and tomorrow, with wares displayed in booths behind the white Dutch doors of the stables. Mrs. David Thomas is general chairman of the fair, which will offer, among a variety of wares, plants and flowers, bakery goods, aprons and pot-holders, baby bonnets, antiques, and resalable articles. There will be pony rides for the children and a polo practice pony for adult sport. Admission will be free.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

By means of a special contribution from Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, a member of the camp and hospital committee of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, final landscaping of the grounds surrounding the army's new Vaughan General hospital, Hines, will be undertaken during the winter and next spring.

The plan of the landscape architect engaged by Mrs. Cudahy calls for more than a thousand shade trees, including 61 large American elms and smaller shade trees, vines, seedlings, and evergreens. With the building program at Vaughan virtually completed, the army already has graded and seeded the grounds.

Mrs. Cudahy, as chairman of the board of trustees of the Morton arboretum in Downers Grove, has arranged for the use of those grounds for horticulture studies in connection with the hospital's occupational therapy classes.

Several days a week in the next few months, members of the Garden Club of Illinois and of the camp and hospital committee will be at Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., to consult with prospective donors of trees and shrubs. Names of contributors, both individuals and organizations, will be inscribed in a book to be on permanent display in the hospital.

Funds from the recent Women's Western Open Golf tournament already have been allocated to the construction of a putting green on the Vaughan grounds.

An open meeting of the committee will be held at 3 p. m. Monday in the auditorium at 122 S. Michigan av., with Mrs. Rudolph W. Glasner, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Cudahy will present the landscaping plan for the approval of Brig. Gen. P. J. Carroll, commanding officer at Vaughan. Erle O. Blair, architect, will explain details of the project.

Sixty-five women radar-radio workers, representing their assembly line sisters in 65 Chicago plants manufacturing electronic devices for military and naval equipment, will be hostesses at a rally from 2 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. tomorrow in Wrigley field, at which Rear Adm. A. S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, will present a certificate of achievement to the city's radio workers in behalf of the navy.

Leslie F. Muter, president of the radar-radio industries' committee for management and employes, will accept the certificate, facsimiles of which will be given to each of the hostesses to take back to the companies for which they work and which share jointly in the award, the first such recognition accorded to any industry by the navy department.

Lt. Alexander Vraciu of East Chicago, Ind., navy ace who established a combat record in the South Pacific theater, will take part in the program. He will be escorted to the platform by a guard of honor of the 65 hostesses.

The keynote of the rally will be the necessity of radar-radio workers continuing on the job despite the progress of the allied campaigns in Europe. The 70,000 workers, 85 per cent of whom are women, will be told that their efforts must be increased to meet greater production schedules necessary to defeat the Japanese.

Chicago Gives Red Cross 10½ Million Hours

The annual report of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, just issued, discloses that Chicago women volunteers have contributed approximately 10½ million hours to war time services in the last year. Twenty departments are included in the report.

With 86,000 workers, the production corps devoted more than 9 million hours to making 23 million items, including surgical dressings, knitted garments, and clothing. Nurses' aids, indispensable in both military and civilian hospitals, gave almost 557,000 hours to assisting professional staffs.

The hospital and recreation corps [Gray Ladies], 1,442 women, last year volunteered more than 145,000 hours in 25 local hospitals. With an active membership of 188, the youngest of Red Cross services, the arts and skills corps, devoted 14,225 hours in two hospitals to assisting convalescent service men in learning rehabilitating crafts.

The 838 canteen corps members worked 118,000 hours and served 146,526 meals. One hundred and twenty-six dietitians' aids spent almost 10,000 hours in eight hospitals.

During the year workers packaged 3,000,000 boxes for Americans who are prisoners of war. The blood donor center and its three mobile units collected more than 270,000 pints for the plasma pool. In its contacts with families of service men, the home service department solved problems for 144,677 individuals with an average monthly case load in the department of 12,000.

Motor corps drivers contributed 145,000 hours and covered 372,000 miles on missions for the Red Cross and the navy. The 126 members of the speakers' bureau spent almost 20,000 hours making talks to Chicago area audiences about the functions of the Red Cross.

Staff assistants, volunteers handling clerical duties, numbered 1,127 who worked approximately 307,000 hours in Red Cross offices.

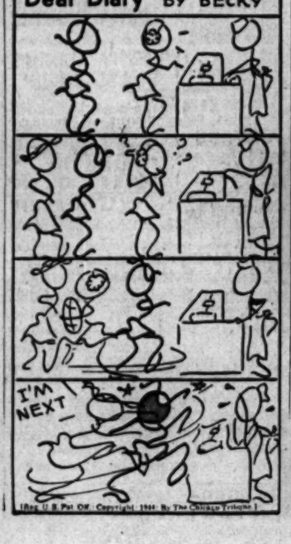
Services of the camp hospital corps were extended to 33 installations during the year. Thirty recreation and day rooms were furnished with the Red Cross committee acting as liaison between institution and donor.

The nutrition service and the home nursing department issued a total of 19,000 certificates to Chicago women who learned how to balance meals and budgets, and how to care for sick persons, in classes conducted by the chapter.

The special nurse recruitment committee processed the enlistments of 1,080 army and navy nurses, and enrolled more than 1,000 in the senior student nurse reserve.



Thru the Looking Glass

Lots of feminine peculiarities are interesting, even rather beguiling, like the well known taste for silly hats or the yen to change the furniture around at frequent intervals. But one little trick that seems to be almost universal [and that makes manufacturers howl with anguish] is our failure to read directions.

We simply didn't believe the stories we first heard from manufacturers, but now we know they're true. The women who will study a recipe carefully or follow a pattern with painstaking exactness are, often as not, apt to ignore completely the directions that come with certain types of toiletries.

There are the deodorants and antiperspirants. The manufacturers of these, at considerable expense and effort, invariably print on the container the method of application that gives best results. They beat their brains out trying to make these as specific as possible. They've done all kinds of careful testing, and their aim is to give you the benefit of their research and their product the benefit of use under the proper conditions.

But does the little consumer pause to read? Not often enough. She figures she's used such things before and that they're all alike, so she does with this just as she's done with the others. And when perhaps her skin has a bad reaction her screams of rage can be heard for miles.

Shampoos, masks, foundations, depilatories, hand creams, even certain types of face creams—all of these call for following specific, individual directions for best results. You're not giving a product a chance if you don't read the maker's directions and follow them exactly.

Women of Bar Face 4 Issues at Parley Here

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Delegates here for the annual convention of the National Association of Women Lawyers, after registering earlier in the day at convention headquarters in the Knickerbocker hotel attended an informal dinner last night at the Chicago Bar association's rooms in La Salle st. Hostess group for the occasion was the Women's Bar Association of Illinois, whose president, Mrs. Helen W. Munsert, and former state association presidents were on the reception committee.

Miss Daphne Robert.

The convention proper opens this morning and will continue thru tomorrow. Discussion of the delegates it was announced by Miss Daphne Robert of Atlanta, Ga., national president, will be centered primarily on four issues—the administrative law bill now before the house of representatives, a uniform birth registration for the nation, minimum standards for juvenile courts, and plans, already well advanced, for aiding members of the legal profession now in military service to become reëstablished in law practice upon their return to civilian life.

The American Bar association already has indorsed the administrative law bill, whose purpose is to restore the right of recourse to the courts in cases decided arbitrarily by administrative agencies, such as the war labor board.

Judge Fay Bentley, presiding in the Juvenile court of the District of Columbia, chairman of the association's standing committee on juvenile delinquency, will discuss court problems regarding minors and make recommendations. Miss Helen Cerese, Chicago attorney who has been president of both the national and state associations of women lawyers, will present proposals for uniform birth registration.

A distinguished visitor at the convention, expected to arrive this morning, will be Mme. Wei Taoming, wife of the Chinese ambassador, outstanding woman lawyer of China, and her country's first woman judge. An honorary membership in the American women lawyer's association is to be conferred on her tomorrow night at the closing banquet at which she will be the principal speaker.

Federal Judge Jerome Frank of New York will give an address on "Women Lawyers" at a luncheon session today.

Stage Notes

"Early to Bed" will call it an engagement next Saturday night at the Blackstone. . . . "Ten Little Indians," Agatha Christie's mystery comedy still holding forth in New York, will go on tour with a second company the first week of October, arriving in Chicago at an unspecified theater about Nov. 6. . . . Veloz and Yolanda, due in November at the Civic theater in "Dansation," received the annual Hollywood Bowl trophy for the largest attendance there in the past season. They drew 19,300 as against the Ballet Russe's 17,000. Marian Anderson was the single attraction high, with an attendance of 14,500.

Applied Art.

Did you know that the beautiful and striking counter and interior displays we enjoy as we shop in the loop department stores are often the handiwork of women? Our curiosity about the origin of an eye filling display of gloves in one store led us to the 16th floor, where we found that two young women were responsible for it.

They are among seven women employed in the display department and work with several men, one of whom is head of the department. The welter of paint buckets, brushes, paper, half finished figures, flowers, feathers, and art materials with which they work is confusing to the outsider. However, the girls go about their duties in a business-like manner, turning out papier-mache heads, trellises, shadow boxes, and all the odds and ends that make finished column trims, wall decorations, and displays for cases such as the one that had attracted our attention. An honest to goodness skylight gives their quarters a real studio touch.

These career women have all had formal art training, but most of them started in their present jobs as helpers, progressing to the stage where they now originate and carry thru a complete decorating project.

They work out an idea to fit the merchandise to be displayed, make a scale drawing of the color and design, and then submit it to their boss. After he has approved it, they start in with paper, paint, wire, cloth, almost any material, to fashion the finished product. They do as much of the work as they can in the studio and then take their tools and props directly to the section they're working on. Here they encounter the shoppers, who find great delight in watching them as they crawl in and out of cases, hammering, pasting, arranging, and putting things together. The public, let it be known, is not loath to make approving or disapproving remarks. One of the girls still remembers the 7 year old boy who watched her drawing an airplane in the toy department. After looking at the drawing for a few minutes he told her it was not "technically correct" and stood there until she had made the changes he demanded.

The hardest part of their job is, understandably enough, thinking up original designs and themes. They follow the ballet, opera, and theater, for they consider their work a form of stage setting. They keep abreast of current trends and peruse the fashion magazines regularly for inspiration.

The girls work regular store hours and think they're lucky to be doing something that is at once a paying proposition and an outlet for their natural talent and ability.

Mystery Story Makes Superb Screen Thriller

"THE MASK OF DIMITRIOS."

A Warner Brothers picture, directed by Jean Negulesco, featuring Sydney Greenstreet, Zachary Scott, Faye Emerson, Peter Lorre, and Victor Francen, and presented at the Chicago.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Perhaps you've read Eric Ambler's mystery tale, "A Coffin for Dimitrios"? If so, this picture, adapted from the book, will hold few surprises for you, as it follows the original pretty closely. But, familiar with the tale or not, you'll find the film absorbing because of excellent acting, canny timing, and super direction.

Dimitrios is an arch criminal. As a young fig packer he had started his evil career, which had incorporated murder, treason, and betrayal, and which, as the picture opens, is supposed to have been ended by a drowning, for Col. Haki of the Turkish police has identified a body washed ashore on a beach at Istanbul as that of Dimitrios. But the investigations of Cornelius Latimer Leyden [Peter Lorre], a mystery writer intrigued by stories of Dimitrios' lurid past, lead to the discovery that the body on the slab in the morgue wasn't Dimitrios' but that of one of his victims.....

And so, by flashback, over two decades thru which flourished the misdeeds of the criminal. . . .

Young Zachary Scott, a newcomer to the screen, gives a colorful and provocative interpretation. He has sparkle, urbanity, and a shrewd sense of theater. His Dimitrios is as sleek and handsome as a Persian cat. Fit the cat out with a rattlesnake's nature and fangs, and you have the complete picture of this very deadly — and very fascinating — operator without the law.

For the first time in my life I took a fancy to Peter Lorre! He completely eschews his customary slimy screen characteristics and makes the author a likable and amusing fellow. Ominous Sydney Greenstreet, with his fat, false smile, is much and engrossingly present, and Faye Emerson has several breath-taking scenes. Notice Victor Francen, too. Swell!

The picture is rather talky — but the talk is adult and interesting, and the conversation packs a lot of suspense for the listener. So does the action, and I'm sure you'll hang around the theater till Dimitrios — ???????

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 8. — Ida Lupino and William Prince will be teamed again in "Happiness," the Mildred Cram story to be produced by the Epstein Twins immediately following "Pillar to Post" which Ida and Bill are now doing. Ida's getting such a kick out of doing a comedy after all those intense roles, and has never looked or felt better. . . . Louis Hayward still is lunching with her frequently at Warners, but both say there's no reconciliation planned. . . . Evelyn Keyes gets the lead opposite Cornel Wilde in "A Thousand and One Nights," Columbia's big technicolor special, which goes into production in about three weeks. Al Greene is set to direct this one, instead of the Ann Miller picture which he was supposed to do next. . . . Ian Keith will do "Henry VIII." on Broadway for Billy Rose come fall. . . . Gracie McDonald replaces June Vincent in "The Fugitive" with Gloria Jean and Alan Curtis. June had to bow out on account of illness.

Here's Suds in Your Eye.

Director Frank Ryan has been spending his evenings looking at famous bath tub scenes. He claims it comes under the head of research, 'cause Deanna Durbin has one of those scenes in "Can't Help Singing" and he wants hers to be different from all the others. Anyway, it's a lovely way to spend an evening. . . . Jinx Falkenburg, all dolled up in a sarong on the "Song of Tahiti" set, walked over to chat with a bunch of visiting marines, just back from the South Pacific. Said Jinx, "Tell me — do you think I make an authentic South Sea Island girl?" One of the marines spoke up and said, "Well hardly, Miss Falkenburg. The trouble is, you're about 80 pounds underweight, you smell too nice, and you have too many teeth!"

This Should Be Something.

Betty Grable makes her first appearance in "Diamond Horseshoe" wearing a huge Mexican sombrero and a nude-net bathing suit which takes your breath away at first glimpse. But don't get excited — the Hays office said it's okay, so it must be. . . . Sydney Greenstreet sure gave his neighbors a treat the other morning when he decided to do a little rehearsing in his garden. He lives on a hillside and people hung out their windows and balconies for blocks around to enjoy the show while Sydney hammed it up, but good, blissfully unconscious of his audience and their mirth. . . . Robert Regent, New York actor now appearing with Bette Davis in "The Corn Is Green," is working out a plan with John Carradine to put on Shakespearean plays once a month, in which both will act, Carradine also directing. They'll use young contract players, and hope to start next month. It'll be a nice chance for the kids to get both training and experience.

She's Quite a Number, They Say.

Hunt Stromberg is testing "The Number," as Toni Seven's service men fans are now calling her. . . . Larry Thompson, last seen in "Happy Land" with Don Ameche, is up for the role of Tom Mix, which Harry Sherman will make. . . . Maurice and Cordoba, dance team, will be in "Winged Victory" when it opens at the Philharmonic Oct. 9. Maurice is now Sgt. Maurice Lapue of the AAF, and his wife is one of the 39 wives of soldiers in the cast who will tour as part of the production. . . . War Correspondent Fleetwood Lawton has arrived in Port Moresby, and is set for an interview with Gen. MacArthur within the next week. . . . Warners are making two "Good Neighbor" shorts — "Mexican Melody" and "Rhumba Rhythm." . . . Louis Armstrong is acting as technical director for a night club scene in "Pillar to Post."

Some Notes from Over There.

Spike Jones sent his wife some faded flowers for their ninth wedding anniversary, and she's so thrilled — because these happen to be some that the liberated Frenchmen threw in the path of the fast moving Yanks. Spike is five miles behind the front lines. . . . The happiest soldier in Italy is Pvt. Maurice Gibbs, who tuned in a short wave broadcast and heard his sister's voice for the first time in two years. She's Georgia Gibbs. . . . Tech. Sgt. Brod Crawford writes from Normandy that he's teaching jiu jitsu to the G. I.'s. . . . Gladys Cooper, who's been so worried about her son and daughter who are in England, recently had letters from them. Her son, Pvt. John Buckmaster, with the American air forces, said that the day he arrived in London on leave he was in a taxi when a buzz bomb came over, and it scared him so he jumped down onto the floor of the taxi, but the driver didn't even slow up. . . . Gladys' daughter, Jean [she's the wife of Robert Morley] said she was downtown when a bomb landed about a block away. She ducked into a Red Cross canteen for shelter, and there met Mildred Brook, wife of Actor Clive Brook.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

COOPERATION.

Bachmann looked at Carol with an odd sort of pleading in his little pig's eyes.

"I am not a soldier," he said, "and I am only a political general—put where I am thru party promotion because I was useful. I am not a coward, fraulein. I would not be afraid to fight for the glory of Germany on the battlefield."

Carol said nothing and for a moment Bachmann, too, was silent, pacing the floor.

"It's this other business, this war of nerves, that is more than I can stand!" he burst out again, his voice becoming shrill. "It is getting worse all the time. An elevator falls, there is an automobile accident, some one is recalled from active duty because he is 'ill' and never leaves his sick bed. Or else it is like this Janner incident — something which can be blamed on the underground. Yes, frankly, I want to get out and save my skin while I can."

The proposal Bachmann had made began to take on a semblance of reasonableness. If this wasn't a trick of some kind, the whole business was not nearly as preposterous as it had seemed at first.

"You realize that you'd be a prisoner of war if you came with me?" she said slowly.

"But I'd be alive, wouldn't I?"

"Well, you're not in allied hands yet!"

"Think, fraulein—think how simple it will be for you to get away if you have my help."

"Possibly so. But how do I know this isn't a trap?"

"I'll prove it isn't. I'll make any kind of a bargain you like."

It was so hard to decide how much he meant of what he said. But if he really did want to get away, if he was telling the truth and actually coöperated, then her mission was a success; then the precious maps had a chance of getting over to allied hands in North Africa after all! There was one bargain she might make—a very precious bargain.

"If I decided to coöperate," she said slowly, "would you be willing to give my sister and her husband some sort of protection? Are you able to do that?"

"I can give out word that the husband is dead. Then the search for him will cease. I can also say that, as Mme. Cassard is under my protection, her case can be forgotten."

Bachmann's plan was none too sound and might not hold for long after they left, but it was better than nothing. It meant a breathing spell for Lita and Jacques and an out for herself. Should she say anything about Bright? Better wait, and see first, what this German will really do!

"Very well," she said aloud. "As we are leaving tonight, you'd better give the orders now."

"I learn that the man Jacques Cassard was killed while attempting to escape," Bachmann said. "Have the report on that sent out. There will be no further orders about madame. She is not to be followed or annoyed. Her case may be dropped. You understand?"

"Yes, Herr General!"

"Attend to it then. I shall not need you further tonight."

When the door had closed behind the aide a new idea occurred to Carol.

"Would it seem too surprising if you were to order the castle cleared of everybody but ourselves?" she asked.

"You mean including the servants? They will be the only ones remaining now that the office staff is gone. Only Von Kirch and myself use the living quarters and it happens that he is away for the night."

"Then dismiss the servants and give the guards strict orders that nobody gets inside until you give the word."

The understanding in those small, pig eyes of his deepened.

"So you know some secret about this house!"

"I'm not saying anything yet. Get this house emptied and keep it that way!"

While Bachmann was following instructions she glanced at her watch. It was a few minutes to 11. They had only about an hour left and she had to reach Bright. Would she be able to get away and tell him what had happened, or would he come down looking for her as soon as the house was quiet?

Bachmann soon made it plain that he was not going to let her out of his sight. Carol heard the gruff voices of the guard outside and the bark of the sergeant giving orders. Bachmann was at the desk busily destroying papers of some sort, and elaborately arranging others.

Bachmann was about at the end of his task now, and at any minute he would be demanding action. Carol had to have Bright's help, she must somehow contrive to let him know he could come to her. There was one way—a rather silly way, to signal him. But it was worth trying. She strolled casually to the hall door and opened it.

"It's close in here," she said.

Bachmann nodded absently. She came back and recommenced her restless pacing. The grand piano stood open and she walked past it twice before stopping and fingering the keyboard. Then, with one finger and with affected clumsiness she began picking out the tune of Frere Jacques. The sound wasn't penetrating enough. She put her foot on the loud pedal and played the old song thru again. This time it was loud, and Bachmann looked at her in annoyance.

"I don't play as well as my sister does, do I?" she asked innocently, "nor as well as Janner?"

Carol deliberately played the signal tune once more. Bachmann was standing with his back to the door, his face a sickly white. But Carol, at the piano, could look behind him, and she had seen a shadow move in the hall beyond.

"Stop that noise, I can't stand it," said Bachmann. "I am now ready." Carol made a business of looking at her watch. It was after 11 now.

"Okay, general," she said in a business like tone. "It's about time to go!" He made a move toward the hall door.

"O no! Not that way!" she called sharply. "We are not leaving quite yet. In fact, as you have already guessed, we are not leaving by any of the usual exits."

"Which way then?"

"Before I tell you that, I'm afraid I'll have to trouble you for your gun." Bachmann gave a short laugh.

"I am not quite such a fool as to do that!" he said. "While I am willing to do almost anything to gratify a lady, I draw a certain line—in this case allowing you to shoot me. If I am to be shot, it might as well be done by my own people."

"Very well, but that goes double. You might shoot me as soon as I tip you off to how we are getting away. So take off your gun and throw it into that far corner behind you and we'll start even."

HINTS ATTEMPT MAY BE MADE TO IMPEACH FLY

Study Action in Probe of Radio Deal.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—The impeachment of Chairman James L. Fly of the federal communications commission was hinted today before the special house committee investigating the FCC.

Voluminous evidence has been collected during four days of hearings concerning pressure Fly is accused of putting on Ralph A. Horton, 66, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to sell radio station WFTL at a low price to Fly's friend and golfing companion, Lt. Comdr. George B. Storer of Detroit, owner of seven radio stations.

Hypothetical Question.

Just before the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday, Rep. Miller [R., Mo.], addressed the witness, James A. Dixon, Miami attorney representing Fort Industries, Inc., of which Storer is president, and summed up the evidence against Fly in this hypothetical question:

"Assume the chairman of the FCC is shown to have his hotel bill paid by a prospective purchaser of a radio station; that he made a claim for and was paid for this hotel bill by the government; that he told the prospective seller of the station that a contract with a third person was invalid and probably would not be approved by the FCC; that the station could be deleted from the air; that the prospective purchaser was a close friend of the chairman; that the chairman's friend got the station for $275,000 when its worth was $350,000 and is now more than $500,000;

"Assuming such circumstances, I ask you as a lawyer whether or not such conduct is a proper subject for impeachment proceedings before the congress of the United States?"

Wait for Evidence.

The witness responded that an answer was not within his province. Miller was asked after the hearing if the question was a preliminary to the institution of impeachment proceedings against Fly.

"We'll have to wait until all the evidence is in," he replied.

During a flareup of words between Rep. Magnuson [D., Wash.], who has befriended Fly during the hearings, and Committee Counsel John J. Sirica, the latter repeated his charge that the evidence indicated a "conspiracy" and asserted:

"I'll name the conspirators. They were Chairman Fly, Storer, Andrew Bennett [attorney who represented both Horton and Fort Industries], L. A. Pixley [then general manager of Fort Industries], and Dixon.

Most of today's evidence was of a technical nature, involving the legality of a contract Horton made before he entered into negotiations with Storer and was closeted for an interview with Fly in Storer's suite in the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, Atlanta, Ga.

ORPHAN ANNIE

Which Is First, Your House or Your Children?

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Billy is 6 years old and he spends every minute possible at the house next door. It's the first place he goes to in the morning after breakfast and the last place he leaves when called to bed at night. Tommy and Jack have a puppy—a wonderful, droll, playful puppy—and Billy loves him.

Billy hasn't any brothers or sisters and no young relatives live anywhere in the vicinity. He wants a puppy—he's asked for one dozens of times. There's a big yard and he's old enough to take the dog out himself. Why can't he have a puppy?

Well, the gist of it is that he can't have one because the house is more important than the puppy or Billy's happiness. "He'll get over the idea if we just don't break down and get him a dog," says Billy's mother.

You see, the truth is, the house is just too good—the dog might injure the furniture, he might scratch this with his paws, jump up on that, and track in mud. There's plenty of money to replace the furniture and coverings, plenty of help to clean up the mud. But "things" come first in that household—always have, as a matter of fact.

It is a temptation. To those of us who love beauty, especially in our homes, lovely fabrics, fine furniture, and gleaming floors mean a great deal. But we mustn't let our houses be too good for life—not only too good for the comfortable life of grownups, but for the free life and happiness of childhood.

We mustn't have things so precious to us and so perishable that they won't stand the wear and tear of red blooded living. We mustn't have such a mania for cleanliness that it completely interferes with normal dirt and the disorder of activities normal in everyday living.

Of course, pets may be a trial. Of course, the children will cause work if they have any freedom. Of course, you can't have everything just so if they're going to love and enjoy their home; but if you value the comfort and happiness of your family enough you'll be willing to put up with a little extra work, a few discomforts and feel well repaid in the joy and companionship your children find in a pet—especially a dog.

Kitchen Pointers

—By Mary Meade—

"In substituting cocoa for chocolate how much of the former is used and must the recipe be adjusted in any way because of the substitution?"

Use ¼ cup cocoa [4 tablespoons] for each square unsweetened chocolate required. In cake and cookie recipes add 1½ teaspoons shortening and reduce the flour by 2 tablespoons for each ¼ cup cocoa used in order to avoid a dry "bready" product.

"I made elderberry jelly which did not ever set. Could you tell me the possible cause of this failure?"

Upon questioning this perplexed caller we learned that the jelly had been made without the use of a commercial pectin or the addition of another fruit juice rich in pectin. Elderberries lack both acid and pectin and these must be supplied for proper jelling results. Equal parts elderberry and tart apple juice [with ¾ cup sugar per cup of juice] make a very nice jelly. Other fruits low or lacking in pectin are: peaches, cherries, strawberries, rhubarb, and pineapple.

"What is the best way to melt paraffin for jelly and jam making? Is the paraffin put on in a thin or thick layer?"

Be sure not to overheat the paraffin. A good way to melt it is to set an enamel pitcher containing the paraffin in a pan of boiling water. The paraffin is then easily poured on top of the jelly or preserves. Pour on paraffin to make a thin layer and rotate the glass carefully so that the paraffin comes in direct contact with the glass all the way 'round. Add another thin layer after the first is cold.

Evaporation does not take place rapidly enough if a large quantity of juice is used and the long period of cooking affects the color and flavor of the jelly and often results in tough jelly.

Moral Development Is Needed, U. of C. Graduates Are Told

If man's moral development had kept pace with his technological development, the world would not today be in such a tragic state, Aaron J. Brumbaugh, dean of students at the University of Chicago, told 309 graduates yesterday. The ceremony was the Midway's 218th convocation—the 11th in war time.

Education, Dean Brumbaugh said, must teach a sense of values, an understanding of the qualities of conduct, and the characteristics of social life that are to be cherished and those that are to be shunned. "Man, if he believes in freedom, must accept the responsibilities that all free men share," he said. "If he believes in justice, he must practice justice and oppose injustice."

The graduates included 47 from the medical school, 31 of whom received commissions as first lieutenants in the army and 16 of whom received commissions as lieutenants, junior grade, in the navy. The commissions were presented by Capt. B. B. Wygant for the navy, and Maj. Herman E. Smith for the army. Degrees were conferred by Ernest C. Colwell, vice president of the university.

NEW CITY PLAN ON TRACTION PUT BEFORE COUNCIL

Kelly Backs Withdrawal of Offer to Purchase.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

An official report presented to the city council yesterday admitted that there is little or no hope of carrying thru Mayor Kelly's plan of traction unification under municipal ownership within two years. The report recommended an alternate program allowing or forcing the elevated and surface lines to order new equipment at an estimated cost of 15 million dollars.

The new plan, drawn up by Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, was referred to the city committee on traction. It recommended withdrawing the city's offer of 85½ millions for the surface and L lines and wiping off the books the 1941 unification ordinance which would have saddled a company with a capital of 179 million dollars on the car riders.

Transit Board Provided.

Traction experts said that the contemplated action, which was approved by Mayor Kelly, marked an about face in city policy on traction. The new plan made provision for setting up a new transit board with resources ample enough to permit it to buy rolling stock and operate a small municipal company along routes it selects, with or without transfers to the existing facilities.

This drastic step was urged only if the companies found it inexpedient, or refused, to order equipment necessary to benefit the riding public for the next two years. Representatives of the companies said the new move was a surprise to them. The city until recently has maintained the possibility of unifying the two properties and also the Chicago Motor Coach company, by May, 1945.

Lack of Funds a Barrier.

There was much doubt where the bankrupt elevated company, which has operated for 20 years at an average loss of a million dollars a year, would get 4 millions to spend on a signaling system and 130 new steel cars. This company was ordered by the Illinois Commerce commission in 1939 to spend 36 millions for such purposes. The order is still in effect, but lack of money made it impossible to comply. This lack of funds is still acute.

Under the new city plan the surface lines would buy 250 new street cars and 735 buses including 270 on order.

Here again the city had been preceded by the commerce commission. On April 10, 1942, when the company was granted a 1 cent fare increase, the commission commanded the surface lines to buy 200 modern street cars, 100 trolley buses and 100 gasoline buses. The attempt on the part of the company to acquire the vehicles was balked by the office of defense transportation. The order still holds.

Lines Get 30 Buses.

Only a few days ago the lines got the first of 30 new and bigger buses. Yesterday 20 had been received and are being put into operation.

The surface lines have 24 millions in cash for renewals and equipment, and are willing to spend it if they can. Their last purchase, 85 of the Madison street type car, was in 1934. The bondholders wanted to buy more of these cars then but were unable to do so in receivership because of the unfriendly attitude of the city.

RETAILERS EYE U.S. AUCTION OF SURPLUS GOODS

Fear Small Dealer Faces Competition.

"It's great," exclaimed A. A. Bone, a Buckeye farmer who purchased the first item offered, an iron-bed wheelbarrow, for $5.

Clyde A. Zehner of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's agricultural adjustment administration chairman, said he would recommend adoption of the DPC auction program in his state.

But H. F. Stotzer, of Archbold, O., hardware dealer and a member of the Ohio Small Business commission, remarked that many purchasers paid prices exceeding the worth of certain articles.

Fear U. S. Competition.

Stotzer added that while hardware dealers were not interested in used merchandise they are concerned lest large sales of surplus DPC supplies affect adversely the small dealer.

The auction drew an attendance estimated at 3,000 and bidding was lively.

Items on the block included monkey wrenches, posthole diggers, rubber boots, industrial helmets, wire, hand drills and bits, heating stoves, crow bars, assorted hammers, rubber hose, welding machines—a total of more than 500 kinds of merchandise.

Prices Under Appraisal.

Government representatives guessed at today's likely receipts and estimates ranged from $6,000 to a top of $10,001.

John van Ginhoven of Nashville, Tenn., engineer for the DPC in a 10-state area, said it is planned to hold similar auctions of surplus miscellaneous DPC goods thruout the nation, probably at sites of the country's 1,500 regular livestock auctions.

CALL 40 TO QUIZ OF U.S. OFFICIALS' ACTIVITY IN PAC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Announcing that 40 witnesses have been subpenaed, a subcommittee of the house committee on un-American activities today set Sept. 25 for the opening of hearings into charges that high ranking New Deal officials have been linked with the Communist dominated CIO political action committee in illegal electioneering.

"The ground work has been well laid," said Rep. Thomas [R., N. J.]. "Our investigators have been most thoro and the hearings will show a wealth of incriminating detail. No matter how high placed the official may be, I, for my part, intend to let the chips fall where they may."

71 Officials Named.

Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling recently made public a list of 71 government officials, including two members of the cabinet and several White House staff attaches, who were shown to have been in frequent communication, by telegram and long distance telephone, with Sidney Hillman, chairman of the PAC, and his assistants.

In a 200 page report last March, the full committee found the CIO-PAC to be under the complete domination of the Communist party in the United States.

Support of Daily Worker.

It cited 144 prominent CIO leaders who "have publicly declared their support of the Daily Worker, the Communist newspaper which over a period of 20 years has published a larger volume of subversive, seditious and treasonable utterances than any other publication ever known in this country."

It concluded that the Hillman group's activities were "a subversive Communist campaign to subvert the congress of the United States to its totalitarian program."

Police Seek One of Pair in Attempted Burglary

Police last night made a search for the man companion of Charles Grondin, 23, of Lorain, O., a merchant seaman, who was shot and captured yesterday by Joseph Brodzinski, 39, after they attempted to break into Brodzinski's grocery at 8000 Brandon av. Brodzinski fired several shots at them as they tried to flee in his grocery truck, which they ran for half a block on battery power.

STATES ADOPT BILL TO GUARD WATER RIGHTS

Representatives from 29 states, meeting yesterday in the Stevens hotel, charged that the omnibus flood control and rivers and harbors bills, now pending in the senate, contain "various provisions inimical to the sovereign rights and interests of the states and the people."

They said in a resolution that the purpose of the meeting was to:

1. Assure local and state participation in plans for water resources development.

2. To preserve the integrity of state water laws.

3. To perfect amendments to the bills to bring about these ends and assure the passage of these amendments.

The amendments, if adopted, the resolution held, will protect the rights and interests of the states.

They are: 1. To bring about integration of army engineers and the bureau of reclammation to halt duplicating activities. 2. To provide means for states and local interests to have a full part in plans which affect them. 3. To bring about a congressional policy to resolve questions of conflict between claims of irrigation and navigation.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Son of Peace, C. U. Yaeger's stout finishing son of Stimulus, scored a two length victory over A. S. Higgins' Quizzle yesterday in the $2,500 Inaugural handicap, feature of the opening day of Hawthorne's 34 day fall meeting.

The victor, ridden by F. A. Smith, came from fourth at the turn for home to subdue Quizzle and Martian, which was running with Happy Pilot as the Happy Hour farm's entry. Quizzle, with Willie Bailey up, wound up three lengths in front of Martian. Happy Pilot was three quarters of a length back.

Opening Card Attracts 10,500.

The Inaugural, an event for 3 year olds and up at a mile and 70 yards, drew a field of seven and was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 10,500. The mutuel handle was $731,811 for the day.

Son of Peace's victory was his fourth since Yaeger claimed him for $1,500 from the Calumet farm on June 30 at Washington park. He paid $6.80, $4, and $2.40 for $2. Quizzle returned $3.40 and $2.40. The entry paid $2.20 to show.

The secondary feature, a six and one-half furlong $1,800 event for 3 year olds, went to the Capital B. farm's Captain Eddie by a nose over Mrs. H. J. Damm's Zacapet. Bolo Babe was third in a field of 10. The winner, ridden by Stanley Freeman, paid $6.80, $4.20, and $3.

Daily Double Pays $698.

Brosnan and Halley's Cyclorama, a 66 to 1 shot, went over by a neck in yesterday's opener and held on to his second victory in two years of racing even tho a foul was claimed by Smith, the rider on Mrs. Harry Pardue's Doubt Not, the 6 to 5 favorite. Cyclorama, ridden by Freeman, bore out in midstretch and bumped Doubt Not several times just before passing the judges' stand. The winner paid $135.60, $42.40, and $25.80.

D. V. McClure's Gold Princess, winner of the $15,000 Modesty handicap at Washington park, has been assigned top weight of 119 pounds for the $7,500 Speed handicap, feature of today's card.

Harriet Sue Is Entered.

The field for the first of six major stake races of the 34 day Hawthorne meeting is composed of nine other thorobreds, 3 year olds and up, including the Henry Tikulski entry of Bolus and Holdall, rated 3 to 1 favorites. The Speed handicap is set for six furlongs and today's running will be the ninth.

The other probable starters are Hyman Friedberg's speedy 3 year old, Harriet Sue, Woolford farm's Signator, Brolite farm's Roman Sox, Mrs. Frank Nugent's Espino Gold, Creech and McIlvain's Bright Willie, Happy farm's Happy Issue, and Mrs. V. E. Smith's Sirius.

SANTA ANITA TO BE RETURNED TO OWNERS MONDAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8 (AP). — Santa Anita race track at nearby Arcadia will be turned back to the Los Angeles Turf club next Monday by the army, an announcement from the war production board said today.

It was added, however, that because of war man power shortages, the track officials have waived provisions of the government's lease under which the track was to be restored to its original condition before its return to the Turf club.

Hayden's Lane.

Of the very few places that stay the same,
One of the nicest is Hayden's lane;
That's why now and then on a sunny day

Once you enter, it's advance or retreat;
You either turn back or go farther still,
For the other end is a wooded hill.

Wars have come and wars have gone,
Families have changed, the Haydens moved on,
But the little houses along the way
Stay just as they were in that yesterday.

You get the full splendor of moonlit nights,
When I'm weary of change and its constant strain

And I'm back again in the yesteryear,
In a world unhurried, unfettered by fear;
Too, I catch a faint echo of youth's refrain
As I wander along thru Hayden's lane!

Twilight Prayer.

Dear Shepherd, kind, who in the olden day,
Counted with care the flocks that reached the fold,
Who saved the one that, lingering, lost the way
And would have perished on the mountain cold,
Hear, Thou, my prayer and guide my steps aright—
For I am lost in all-surrounding gloom—
Please, gentle Shepherd, lead me to the light
And guard me safely all the way back home.

Dear Shepherd, kind, my steps have wandered far Away from paths the innocent have trod;
My blinded eyes no longer see the light
That beckons, guides, and points the way to God.
Please take my hand, lest I still further stray;
Please guide my feet, that they no longer roam,
Forgive my sins and let me from this day

NEW YORKERS WHIP BOSTON IN 12TH, 7 TO 6

Bucher's Error Sets Up 2-Run Rally.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8 (AP).—Displaying much of the fire and determination of their famed predecessors of yesteryears, the New York Yankees regained undisputed possession of first place by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 6, in 12 innings today.

Losers in their last six starts here, the Yanks put together an error, two infield hits, and Ossie Grimes' double for their two run winning rally against Red Barrett, who relieved Joe Bowman at the start of the eleventh.

Both Score in 12th.

Boston, however, came back fighting in its side of the 12th and the first four batters reached base on Jim Turner, who took over for Hank Borowy when a 5 to 5 deadlock was threatened in the 10th inning.

Lou Finney opened with a double to center, remained on second when George Metkovich beat out an infield hit, and scored after Grimes made a wild throw on Pete Fox's perfectly placed sacrifice.

Yanks Trail at Start.

Borowy was given a two run sendoff but it was wiped out when Johnson hit his 17th homer of the season with two on in the last of the first. Etten's 19th homer gave the Yankees their fifth run in the 10th.

FORT SHERIDAN, BRONCO ELEVENS TO MEET TODAY

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 8 [Special].—The Western Michigan Broncos will open their football season with Fort Sheridan tomorrow afternoon in Waldo stadium here and probably will be forced into the air in their efforts to win as the soldiers have a weight advantage in the line averaging 20 pounds per man.

Both teams will use the T formation. The Broncos may have an advantage in the attack as the squad had four weeks of summer practice in July.

Jersey City Club Signs Hartnett for 3d Season

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP).—Officials of the Jersey City baseball club announced tonight that Charles [Gabby] Hartnett of Chicago, who managed the Jersey Giants in 1943 and 1944, has signed a new contract for the 1945 season. Hartnett succeeded Frank [Pancho] Snyder, who resigned in 1942.

SECOND COURT RULES IN FAVOR OF PREP PLAYER

A temporary injunction restraining the Illinois High School association from enforcing an ineligibility ruling against Albert Plain, Springfield High school senior, was issued yesterday in Chicago by Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne.

Plain had been ruled ineligible for prep sports competition for one year because he participated in an all-star baseball game in Chicago last summer. The suit was instituted by J. R. Fitzpatrick, a Springfield friend of young Plain.

Association Not Represented.

The decision of the Chicago court came in the wake of action in Springfield, where Circuit Judge L. E. Stone had ordered Plain restored to the eligible list. The Springfield ruling was on a mandamus action brought by Plain's father against L. K. Davis, Springfield High principal.

Judge Dunne declared high school eligibility rules should be clarified. After the ruling, Albert Willis, executive secretary of the association, said the I. H. S. A. board had not changed its decision.

Willis said the association had not been summoned or requested to have legal representation at yesterday's hearing before Judge Dunne and consequently was uncertain as to what the organization's next step would be.

No Move to Reconsider.

"The association's board of directors will have to determine what action is necessary," Willis said. "As I understand it, the proper procedure now is for our legal staff to file suit to have the temporary injunction dissolved. Such a move would join the issue and bring a hearing of all phases of the subject."

Willis added that as far as he knew no action was being taken by the association to reconsider its decision declaring Plain ineligible. He said he also had not been notified of the Springfield proceedings which he understood involved Springfield High school and not the association.

First Exam—Football Variety—Will Be Held Today at N. U.

The Northwestern university football squad will end its first week of practice today with a scrimmage which is expected to go far toward testing the ability of the new men who are bidding for regular jobs.

For the scrimmage, the first string back field will be an all-letter man quartet of Jack Harker and Jim O'Malley.

Henry Altepeter.

Henry Altepeter, half backs; Ben Schadler, quarter back, and Bob Funderburg, full back.

A number of line positions still are subject to change, but the group that has been operating as a starting unit consists of Jim O'Malley, center; Ray and Gene Justak, guards; John Kroeger and Steve Bennett, tackles, and Duane Sickels and Ken Wiitgen, ends. All except Kroeger, Ray Justak, and Sickels are freshmen.

PURDUE STRESSES SPEED.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 8 [Special].—Purdue's high speed offense was tested against a seven man line this afternoon as Coach Cecil Isbell continued to groom the Boilermaker attack for the season's opener with Great Lakes at the naval training center two weeks from tomorrow.

In an extended dummy scrimmage session, Isbell made frequent shifts in both line and back field combinations as he emphasized the necessity for speed on attack and alert downfield blocking.

One of the most effective line combinations used on offense had the veteran Frank Bauman and Joe Collings at ends; Pat O'Brien and Ken Gleesner at tackles; Art Haverstock and Morris Kaastad at guards, and Joe Winkler, center.

GOPHERS SEEK RESERVES.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 8 [Special]. — Dr. George Hauser, head coach, is fairly well settled on the first two Minnesota football combinations for the new season, and now is in the process of building up reserves.

BUCKEYES DRILL ON PASSES.

Columbus, O., Sept. 8 [Special].—Offense took up most of the two practice sessions in the Ohio State football camp today as Coach Carroll Widdoes continued to stress the Buckeyes' passing game. Quarter Back Matt Brown suffered a painful hand injury in the morning practice.

Two keen battles for line jobs have developed. Warren Amling, a guard on the 1942 freshman team, and Russ Thomas are competing for the tackle assignment opposite Bill Willis, while the guard assignment opposite Bill Hackett is a tossup between George Neff, from the 1943 team, and Freshman Tom Snyder.

HEAVY LINE AT IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 8 [Special].—A heavier and more rugged line than that of 1943 is being developed at the University of Iowa. The present starting group averages 193 pounds. Replacements will maintain that weight for the first 14 linemen, only one of whom can be lost to the service during the season.

Coach Edward [Slip] Madigan, conducting a thoro search for improving players in the ranks of the fourth team, today came up with Bill Dallas, 175 pound full back from Mason City, and Bob Richards, speedy 150 pound half back from Oelwein. He also moved up Bud Flood of Chicago from fourth to second among the right guards.

Nelson Takes 6 Stroke Lead in Texas Open

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 8 (AP).—Byron Nelson clipped par again today to move into a class by himself at the halfway mark of the Texas victory open, his card for 36 holes reading 69—69—138. This gave the nation's leading money winner a lead of six strokes over his nearest competitor, Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia.

McSpaden, who had tied Nelson's 69 with a brilliant four under par 32 on the back nine of yesterday's opening round, slipped badly today, taking a 75 to end just one stroke ahead of Sgt. E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Wright field, Dayton, O., who moved up to 145 with his par 71, and Ray Mangrum of Beverly Hills, Cal., who shot a 72 to add to yesterday's 73.

Nelson was even with par until No. 6 where his ball rolled off the green on the second shot to cost him a bogey. But he made this up with a pitch and run on No. 8 for an easy birdie. He finished the first nine even par.

No. 10 found him sinking an eight-foot putt for a bird but he lost it with a bogey on the 11th where he missed a 15 foot putt and overshot, taking two more to hole out. Then he birdied No. 12 and on No. 13 he missed a birdie by a fraction of an inch when his ball stopped on the rim. He got a bird on No. 14, a 513-yard hole. His second shot landed a foot from the green and he laid up to within four feet of the hole to sink it easily. He parred the other four holes.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Story on the Cubs, who did not play yesterday, on next page.]

Bill Dietrich, high strung White Sox right hander got no bawlings out yesterday and, thus allowed to go about his work, led his pepped-up team to a 9 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the second match of the five-game series in Comiskey park. Dietrich, who is allergic to nagging, was so enthusiastic about his chore of knocking the Brownies out of their first place tie that he added a score-tying homer to his job of seven hit pitching.

The setback dumped the jittery St. Louisans a full game back of the Yankees who beat the Red Sox, and reduced the Browns' lead over the idle Tigers to one-half game.

That's No. 15 for Bill.

It was Dietrich's 15th success of the season, but his first since he beat Washington 1 to 0, on Aug. 17. It was his fifth try for said 15th triumph and it was made possible by alert playing such as the Sox have not shown since their surrender early last month. In addition to Dietrich's homer, a run was produced on Wally Moses' theft of home and another which Wally accomplished on Ralph Hodgin's squeeze bunt. This was the winning run off Al Hollingsworth in the seventh.

Hollingsworth inherited a 5 to 5 tie in the seventh and hastily blew any chances which Bob Muncrief has preserved in the role of starting pitcher.

The Browns, despite a generous fan support in the crowd of 1,662 paid, seemed highly nervous and the Sox last night were given a good chance to take the series.

Browns Take Early Lead.

Three of the seven hits yielded by Dietrich in yesterday's game produced a 2 to 0 lead for the Browns in the second inning. With one out, Gene Moore and Mark Christman singled and scored on Muncrief's double. The Sox got their first run in the second when Eddie Carnett knocked the first of his two doubles, reached third on a passed ball, and scored on Mike Tresh's infield out.

The Chicagoans went ahead, 3 to 2, in the third. Dietrich tied the score with his homer, a drive high into the left field lower deck. Then Moses doubled to center, reached third on an infield out, and stole home.

The Browns resumed the lead with two runs in the fourth. Moore was safe on Hal Trosky's error and reached second on a balk. Christman walked and Tom Turner singled to short right center, scoring Moore and Christman.

Stephens Lends a Hand.

The score was tied in the home fourth. Carnett smashed his second double and scored when Tresh's grounder went thru Vern Stephens. The Sox went ahead, 5 to 4, in the fifth. Moses singled and LeRoy Schalk beat out a bunt. Hodgin sacrificed and Trosky was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Moses scored while Thurman Tucker was forcing Trosky.

The Browns tied the score without a hit in the seventh. Floyd Baker batted for Muncrief and walked. He was forced by Don Gutteridge. Gutteridge stole second and scored when Milt Byrnes' grounder got away from Skeeter Webb.

Hollingsworth took over in the seventh and Dietrich was retired on a line drive to Byrnes. Moses walked and went to third on Schalk's second hit, a single to center. Moses scored the winning run on Hodgin's squeeze bunt and Schalk scored on Trosky's single to center. In the eighth Tresh made the Sox's sixth extra base hit, a double to center, and Webb was given an intentional pass. Moses stroked his third hit and second double, scoring both.

Cubs, Passeau Meet Cards, Wilks Tonight

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 8.—The Cubs, who last night almost formulated a plan by which they could extract their first victory of the year from the Cardinals, have eight more chances to reach that coveted goal. But the next chance won't come until tomorrow night, by which time the Chicagoans probably will have forgotten just when it was they arrived here, or why they came.

When the Cubs go into action tomorrow night, as we presume they will, despite last night's ninth inning distress, it will mark their second ball game here in approximately 34 hours, this being the schedule makers' idea of masterminding.

Still Have Chance for Fourth.

The Cubs now are so pained by their ridiculous detention here that they aren't even worried about getting in on some of that world series pot by finishing in fourth place. They are there now by the slimmest of margins and their prospects for staying there are equally as slim. They have three more games here with the Cards, followed in Chicago by five with the Reds and as many with the Cards. But after that they play only the four eastern teams, so, granted they drop out of fourth within the next week, they'll still have an opportunity to sneak back in.

Passeau Pitches Tonight.

Claude Passeau will work on the Cards tomorrow night and the Cubs will do the best they can against the pitching of Ted Wilks, who in the previous series here polished 'em off with three hits for a 2 to 1 decision. Unfortunately, for Passeau, he also was in on that party, the Cards getting the winning run because of an error by Phil Cavarretta, who was filling in as a center fielder at the time.

PREDICT PEACE JOBS FOR MOST WAR WORKERS

Hold Civilian Needs Will Make Work.

View on Foundry Bay

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP). — War Power Director McNutt said today he believed an increase in foundry wage scales would be a "justifiable exception" to the Little Steel wage stabilization formula. He made the remark in replying to a question by Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] of the senate war investigating committee about what had been done toward relieving a critical labor shortage in foundries.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Julius A. Krug, acting war production board chairman, and War Man Power Director McNutt today told the senate war investigating committee they expected post-war civilian production to provide jobs for most industrial workers and returning soldiers and dismissed apprehension of acute post-war unemployment.

Julius A. Krug.

Krug told the committee the WPB plans to lift as many restrictions as possible after the defeat of Germany and to give private industry the green light in resuming civilian production. He said he did not believe unemployment would be as great during the reconversion period as is generally expected. One automobile company expects to keep 80 per cent of its workers during the period of transition to peace time manufacture, he said.

Disagrees with Hershey.

McNutt said he "disagreed completely" with a recent statement by Selective Service Director Hershey that it would be necessary to keep men in the army to prevent post-war unemployment.

"I believe there will be work for all who want to work in expanding civilian production after the war," McNutt said, and added that he favored some form of compulsory military service, but not to prevent unemployment.

Sen. Burton [R., O.], a committee member, asked McNutt and Krug if they believed it would be necessary for the federal government to provide two years of unemployment compensation for discharged war workers.

Would Curb Federal Aid.

Both agency heads said they believed such governmental generosity need not be extensive. McNutt said many of the displaced war workers would be housewives, students, and others not normally employed in industry. Krug said the government should consider aiding an anticipated 2 million workers who will be shifting from war jobs to civilian employment after the war.

Krug told the committee the WPB has decided not to lay out any programs for civilian production after the defeat of Germany. The agency will see that needed materials are made available, but will guard against the procurement of unreasonable stockpiles by individual companies, he said.

Altho the WPB plans the immediate lifting of materials restrictions at the close of the war in Europe, Krug said controls would have to be kept on "tight" materials essential to war. He said these included cotton textiles, crude rubber, tin, lumber, cordage fibers, and some chemicals.

Holds Financing Necessary.

Krug said small businesses would be enabled to get into production without delay, but said many such companies would need government help in financing.

"I believe it is a responsibility of government to assure the small businessman equality in getting the working capital needed for his projected operations," Krug said.

Collapse of Germany would mean a nation-wide 40 per cent reduction in war production and release of 4 million workers from their present jobs, McNutt said. Thus, it will be unnecessary to maintain man power control, altho the 48 hour week will be continued for a time, he said.

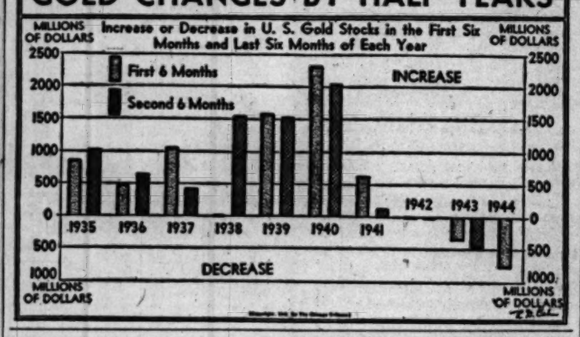
GOLD CHANGES BY HALF YEARS



Urges Local Rule of Social Security Plan

Social security is here to stay, but its further development should be by state and local governments rather than at a national level, Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said yesterday at an Executives' club luncheon in the La Salle Hotel.

Development of workmen's compensation laws, Johnston declared, is illustrative of the process of evolution toward an increasing social consciousness in which thinking people recognize that new forms of protection are necessary to keep society stable.

Practical System Urged.

No policy of laissez-faire and no let-George-do-it attitude will suffice today to meet the problems growing out of old age, illness, and disability, Johnston said.

"I say that our dynamic capitalism must have the shock-absorbing cushion of a practical, working social security system," he said.

"To deny this is to deny the economic hazards of modern life, the vulnerability of the wage earner to unpredictable misfortune, and the validity of the principle of insurance."

"It would demand a master plan imposed upon producer and consumer alike," he said. "The remedy would be worse than the disease.

Warns Against Stagnation.

"Monopoly and cartels are frequently praised for the stability which they are alleged to bring to an economy. But whatever stability monopoly may establish can be offset easily by the stagnation which generally ensues. This encourages under-employment. We must understand that if we really want to preserve free enterprise—and all the individual benefits that flow therefrom—we must preserve competitive business. This means that we must be willing to endure the risks of that competition."

Johnston recommended that social security programs be kept close to the people as a local democratic process which, he said, helps to minimize the "evil effect of burocracy and remote Washington control."

ASK WLB TO ACT IN U. S. GYPSUM WAGE RATE CASE

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The regional war labor board recommended to the national WLB that it take "appropriately vigorous" action against the United States Gypsum company today after the company said it would not comply with a WLB directive ordering wage increases for 120 of its employes at its Jersey City, N. J., plant.

Norton said a local of the United Mine Workers, of which the employes are members, charged that the company refused to grant wage increases as ordered by the board unless the union agreed to drop from the contract the maintenance of membership and dues checkoff clause which the board had ordered.

BORDEN DIVERSIFIES.

I note Borden company has paid a larger dividend this year. Is the increase in its earnings considered likely to outlast the war?—K. R.

The company's sales for 1943 attained a new record of $371,866,527, 43 per cent above the 1941 total. Altho the growth resulted largely from war time influences, the company's basic position has been improved in recent years, in the management's opinion, as a result of further diversification of its products and territory served.

Borden has not only added new products, but has more intensively cultivated markets for older ones. Among newer products are vitamin fortified food drinks. Several new vitamin fortified feed supplements for animals and poultry have been introduced. Sources and gathering facilities for vitamins and other raw materials have been established in several foreign countries.

Borden reported a net income equal to $2.17 a share in 1943. This was after provision for a special contingency reserve of 5 million dollars, equal to $1.15 a share. In 1938, the last pre-war year, the profit was equal to $1.51 a share. For the first half of 1944 earnings were $1.01 a share after reserve, against 87 cents a year ago. Dividends in 1944 to Sept. 1 totaled $1.20 a share, compared with 90 cents to that date last year. For all of 1943 a total of $1.50 was paid.

ALL CHICAGO PAPERS EXCEPT ONE REPORT GAINS IN CIRCULATION

With one exception, Chicago newspapers yesterday reported gains in daily average circulation for August above the preceding month. The largest gain was reported by THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE with an August average 14,489 copies more than in July.

The only paper reporting a loss in daily circulation was the Chicago Sun, whose daily average was 594 copies less than in July.

Newest Strike Wave Boosts Idle to 38,000

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Approximately 38,000 workers were idle thruout the country because of labor controversies yesterday.

Ford Motor closed its giant Willow Run bomber plant twice during the day. Approximately 30,000 workers were made idle by the shutdowns.

The first strike was precipitated by a dispute over transfer of 20 riveters who, a company spokesman said, refused a proposal to move them from one department to another where a shortage of riveters existed.

75 Force Second Shutdown.

The company spokesman said a "fair turnout" of workers reported for the afternoon shift and that production would have been resumed, but 75 crane operators walked out, forcing the plant to close for the second time. The spokesman said the crane operators made "no complaints."

Nine mines in Pennsylvania and six in West Virginia, seized by the government because of strikes for recognition of a newly-organized supervisors' union, resumed production, but miners in six other West Virginia pits went out. The result was that only one Pennsylvania pit employing 600 was shut, but 12 mines employing 4,310 were closed in West Virginia.

At Pittsburgh, Heath Clark, president of Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal company, said the 18 supervisors at the government seized mine at McIntyre, Pa., had withdrawn their resignations and agreed to return to their jobs today.

Pullman Plant Closed.

Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company's Bessemer pant in Alabama was closed by a strike and 926 employes were idle. Approximately 300 others were off the job at the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company's Fairfield steel works in the same state.

A strike was ended which had resulted in the idleness of 1,600 workers at the Carnegie-Illinois steel mill in Farrell, Pa. Two strikes of maintenance workers, which had put 18,000 workers on the sidelines, were ended in plants of Briggs Manufacturing company and Packard Motor Car company in Detroit.

Other strikes and the number of workers idle included:

Mosher Steel company, Houston, Tex., 300; Harvey Spring and Forging company, Racine, Wis., 170; International Mines and Chemical corporation, Mount Pleasant, Tenn., 220; Walsh-Kaiser shipyard, Providence, R. I., 60.

Charge Field's Sun Violated Paper Quotas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Charges that the Chicago Sun and its owner and publisher, Marshall Field III., have violated the government newsprint limitation order were made today by E. M. Antrim, assistant business manager of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, at a hearing before the war production board central appeals board.

The hearing was held on the Sun's request for increased newsprint allocations, which were recommended for appeals board approval by WPB's printing and publishing division. In opposing such an increase Antrim said the Sun was guilty of "one of the most flagrant cases of willful violation of the law which has yet come to the attention of the compliance division of the WPB."

Detailed Exhibits Offered.

Detailed exhibits were introduced by the Tribune executive to substantiate his charges. He told Dr. A. N. Holcombe, appeals board chairman, that figures based upon conservative estimates show that in the second quarter of 1944 the Sun used at least 815 tons in excess of its assigned quota.

"Three representatives of the [WPB] compliance division have carefully checked the consumption of the Chicago Sun and have made their report to Morris Verner, head of that division," Antrim said. "It will be an easy matter for the appeals board to obtain figures showing the exact extent of the violation from the compliance division. Those figures will show an illegal consumption of newsprint by the Sun substantially in excess of the 815 tons as we have computed it from information at hand."

In reply to Antrim's assertion that the appeals board should not consider the Sun's request for more newsprint in view of the newspaper's limitation order violations, Dr. Holcombe said that the board will communicate with the WPB compliance division and obtain the facts. He said that the board had not received an official notice of violations from the compliance division.

Holds Added Tons Used.

Antrim's figures introduced as evidence set forth that the Sun's allowable newsprint consumption quota for the first quarter of 1944, including a carryover from the last three months of 1943, totaled 7,711 tons. Estimated use in the first quarter was 7,602 tons, leaving a carryover of 109 tons, he testified. Added to a second quarter allotment of 6,341 tons, this gave a total of 6,450 tons for the period, but the Sun used 7,265 tons, which was 815 tons, or 12.85 per cent in excess of its allowable quota, he said.

In questioning the sincerity of the Sun's appeal for more newsprint, Antrim told the board members that Field wants his newspaper to be the only one in the United States to be "spared the hardships imposed upon the newspaper industry by the limitation order." Antrim recalled the half dozen unsuccessful appeals which the Sun previously had made to the WPB for increased newsprint and charged that the current recommendations of the printing and publishing division constituted "a virtual whitewash" of the Sun's excessive use of newsprint.

Carroll Hanson, administrator of the WPB limitation order, told the board in support of the recommendation that the Sun should be given a newsprint quota increase of 6.01 per cent and that this figure represented the "normal growth" in 1942 circulation of all newspapers which showed circulation gains. He explained that because the Sun did not begin publishing until December, 1941, it had no base newsprint consumption period, which the WPB has designated as the year of 1941.

Recommendation Is Attacked.

Antrim assailed the printing and publishing division recommendation as "neither fair nor reasonable" and in disregard of the newspaper industry advisory committee's recommendation that newspapers not in existence in 1941 should be given their newsprint consumption in 1942 as a base, plus 3 per cent for waste.

Antrim said that Field should be prosecuted by the attorney general of the United States as a violator of a federal order.

H. Templeton Brown, counsel for the Sun, and Clem J. Randau, the newspaper's business manager, denied Antrim's charges of violations and began to introduce evidence to support their appeal for additional newsprint. Dr. Holcombe adjourned the hearing until tomorrow morning.

The board previously had heard an appeal by the Chicago Herald-American for increased newsprint. Also pending before the appeals board is an appeal by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for an increase of 1,819 tons for the current quarter. Both the Herald-American and TRIBUNE requests have been denied by the printing and publishing division of the WPB.

WPB Eases Controls on Use of Oak, Cypress

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—WPB today authorized use of white oak and red cypress in the manufacture of farm machinery and equipment, furniture, mill work, and ladders, and also removed prohibitions on the use of douglas fir and hardwoods for dunnage.

ALLEGES TRUST SUITS FILED AS POLITICAL AID

Moore Says Biddle Makes Self 'Czar.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] charged in the senate today that Atty. Gen. Biddle's anti-trust suit against 47 western railroads is a New Deal political move.

Moore accused Biddle of making himself an economic czar thru prosecution of American business companies under the anti-trust laws, and said the railroad suit indicates that the New Deal is moving into the final stages of its program of national socialism.

"The suit by Biddle is a fraud on its face," Moore told the senate. "It charges the railroads with conspiracy to fix and maintain unreasonable and discriminatory rates.

ICC Has Rate Powers.

"The public should understand that the power to regulate rates with respect to the railroads is vested in the interstate commerce commission. The rates that have been fixed are as a matter of law the legal rates, and it would be a violation of the law for any carrier to fail to comply. The suit is a plain attempt of the attorney general to invade the administrative functions delegated to the commission by congress."

Moore asserted that Biddle brought a political lawsuit in the hope of creating hate and prejudice against private enterprise and thereby gaining votes for the fourth term. He said that Biddle made a campaign tour of the west last month. On that tour, the attorney general told the Spokane, Wash., bar association that the people of its section were hampered by discriminatory freight rates. This was on Aug. 9. The suit was filed on Aug. 23.

Speech "Highly Prejudicial."

"In view of the commencement of this suit, it was highly prejudicial and improper of him to make a public speech of this character," Moore said. "The explanation is, of course, that it was a bid for New Deal votes. It is obvious that a year or so will intervene before the suit can be tried, and the defendants will have no opportunity to refute the charges until after the election."

The charges against the railroads are a matter for the interstate commerce commission's consideration and not that of the department of justice, Moore said.

"It is my opinion that this suit is the first step of the New Deal to consummate public ownership of the railroads," he said. "Ocean transportation has already been reduced in practical effect to government ownership. Aviation, inland waterways, and motor carriers are on the list. Already the oil and gasoline pipe lines of the country are under the dictatorship of the attorney general, by the terms of a so-called permanent consent decree."

SEC APPROVES UNITED GAS PLAN TO REORGANIZE

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP).—A plan for the reorganization of the 300 million dollar United Gas corporation, a subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share company and Electric Power and Light corporation, was approved today by the securities and exchange commission.

United Gas will issue 100 millions of first mortgage bonds and more than 106 millions of new $10 par value common stock under the plan. These will be its only outstanding securities after the reorganization. The new common stock will be issued in exchange for present second preferred and common stocks of United Gas.

The new bond issue has been exempted from competitive bidding requirements. Proceeds will be used to pay Electric Bond and Share 44 millions in compromise settlement of 56 million dollars par value of United Gas securities held by it and to redeem the 432,500 publicly-held $7 preferred stock of United Gas at $110 a share plus accrued unpaid dividends.

VOLUME OF EXPORTS IN JULY 6 PER CENT BELOW JUNE TOTAL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—United States exports in July totaled 1 billion 198 million dollars, the third highest monthly value total in history, the census bureau reported today. The July total was 6 per cent lower than the preceding month and 16 per cent below the record high of May, 1944.

The total for the first seven months was 8 billion 406 million dollars, exceeding the total for corresponding periods in all previous years. Export totals include lend-lease shipments but exclude shipments to United States military forces abroad.

July lend-lease exports of 937 million dollars were 7 per cent below the June total and 19 per cent below the May record. The lend-lease total in the first seven months was 6 billion 731 millions.

Imports in July totaled 288 million dollars in value, down approximately 16 per cent from the high monthly average of the first six months of 1944. Total value of imports in the first seven months was 2 billion 334 millions and exceeded the year ago total by approximately 26 per cent.

Stover Elected C. & E. I. Head; O'Neal Elevated to Chairman

Directors of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad yesterday elected Holly Stover president to succeed Charles T. O'Neal, who was elevated to chairman of the board. Stover, who for many years has been widely known in the coal industry, is the government's manager of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railway and is vice president of the Gulf, Mobile, and Ohio railroad. The changes become effective Oct. 1.

Holly Stover.

The directors also voted a dividend of $1 a share on the class A stock payable on Oct. 18 to stockholders of record Sept. 30.

Relieves O'Neal of Detail.

"Action of the directors today was taken to retain O'Neal's administration. Selection of his successor reflects a trend toward integrating railroad administration with general business practices.

"The directors, a spokesman pointed out, felt that Stover's demonstrated success in the management of new business undertakings, as well as his wide business contacts, brings to the C. & E. I. a wealth of ability and experience which will benefit the road materially in the immediate future when the greatest traffic problem will be the development of new business.

Refers to Coal Experience.

"His efforts in the past have been especially successful in the marketing of coal. This ability is demonstrated by the board in relation to what is regarded as the vast untapped potentialities of southern Indiana and southern Illinois coal fields."

The statement said that Stover, besides his other duties, is serving as a special representative of the office of defense transportation.

John L. Markham, a C. & E. I. stockholder, sought to prevent the election of Stover on the ground that he lacked practical railroad operating experience. Markham was supported by a group of prominent Evansville, Ind., shippers.

"The directors of the C. & E. I. disregarded my request to be heard," Markham said after the meeting. "It looks to me as if the action was forced thru by Chairman Jones of the RFC and in spite of the protests of the Evansville shippers and the large coal interests at Terre Haute, adjacent to the railroad."

2 South Side Negro Home Units Started

BY AL CHASE.

Work was started yesterday on two private south side housing projects for 520 Negro war worker families. The total investment is reported to be $2,600,000.

The larger of the two projects, Princeton Park homes, comprises 442 home units, financed with a $2,135,000 mortgage, to be built at the north end of the tract bounded by Wentworth av., 91st and 95th sts., and the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad right of way. Holsman & Holsman, and Klekamp are architects.

Third Group Planned.

These 442 units are in addition to 230 completed and mostly occupied. Later a third group of 236 units will be built, it was said. The 5 million dollar project is being built by Community Development associates.

Just east of Princeton Park work was started on a 78 home project by the L. S. corporation. This $465,000 development will comprise eight buildings of four flats each and 46 single family detached homes. Each of the apartments will have two bedrooms. Both houses and flats will be of solid brick construction.

Flats will rent at $43 plus $6 for services [gas stove and refrigerator] and the houses at $50 plus $6 for services. Some of the homes will be sold for $6,250 each.

Curving Roads Included.

This project covers two blocks bounded by 91st and 92d sts., and Wentworth and Perry avs. Its nine acres will be laid out with curving roads.

The L. S. corporation of which Alfred Polland is president, Albert Leavitt vice president, and Henry Marks secretary, also is completing a 52 unit Negro housing project covering the block bounded by 91st, 92d, and State sts., and Wabash av. It represents an investment of $312,000, financed thru Irvin Jacobs & Co., Marks said.

The Wentworth-91st development was financed with FHA insured mortgages thru General Mortgage Investments. Completion is scheduled early next year. Carl J. Kastrup is architect for both the L. S. corporation's projects.

SUPPLY OF HOGS DROPS TO 7,500; MARKET STEADY

Hog receipts, including direct shipments to packers, at the Chicago stock yards yesterday dropped to 7,500, the smallest Friday volume this year. This brought the week's total to 53,500, the lowest since last October.

The light offerings were sold quickly and ceiling prices were paid for most stock. The $14.35 a hundred pounds average was unchanged.

Cattle buyers showed a lack of interest in offerings because most of them expected a heavier run of stock from the western range next week. No highly finished steers were offered.

C. E. WILSON RETURNS TO GENERAL ELECTRIC; SWOPE, YOUNG LEAVE

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Charles E. Wilson, who resigned as vice chairman of the war production board two weeks ago, today returned to the presidency of the General Electric company.

Wilson's election was coincident with a second formal retirement of the veteran General Electric executives, Gerard Swope, 72, and Owen D. Young, 71. Swope and Young retired as president and chairman respectively in January, 1940, but were called back later in 1942 when Wilson and Philip D. Reed, chairman, entered government service.

Young decided to retire with Swope because, as he told the directors, "we took up these offices together and we wish to lay them down together." Reed is still in federal service and the chairmanship remains vacant for the present.

Wilson quit the WPB as a result of factional strife and dissension within the agency over reconversion policies.

Stocks Rally, but Recovery Lacks Impetus

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The stock market rallied today, but many leaders were unable to join the recovery move.

As in preceding sessions, numerous customers stood aside or lightened accounts as the allied push in Europe signaled the coming Nazi collapse and possible market repercussions because of transition difficulties. More courageous investors returned for modest purchases on the belief the recent reaction had discounted much of the expected post-war industrial problem.

The revival was accompanied by a substantial drop in dealings and altho gains of fractions to a point were well distributed, losers of as much were numerous.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Rail bonds made a substantial recovery today, but other market divisions showed narrow variations. Advances of fractions to about 2 points were general for obligations of Baltimore and Ohio, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Seaboard Airline, and New Haven. Other gainers included Milwaukee general 4s of 1989, North Western 4½s of 1999, Big Four 4½s, Lehigh Valley 4½s and 5s, and M-K-T 5s.

CHICAGO SHARES HIGHER.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange rallied yesterday in a reduced turnover of 27,000 shares. Volume leaders included Consolidated Biscuit, which closed at 6½, up 1; Chicago Corporation, 6½, up ⅜; and Commonwealth Edison, 27¾, up ⅛. Consolidated Biscuit was among three new 1944 highs.

Oil Production in Illinois Shows Increase in August

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 8 (AP).—Illinois oil production in August today was estimated by the state geological survey at 6,425,000 barrels, 64,000 more than in July. The daily production average was 207,000 barrels, an increase of 2,000 over July.

F. D. R. DEMANDS CURB ON WORLD CARTEL ABUSES

Holds Other Lands Back Practices.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt today called for international agreements to curb cartel practices of the kind which have been a large factor in Britain's development as a great commercial power. He demanded "the eradication" of German cartels, such as the I. G. Farben trust which the Nazis have used to penetrate peaceful countries for political and military ends.

The President issued his declaration against cartels in a letter to Secretary of State Hull and immediately afterward it was learned that the United States is preparing to propose to Britain and Russia the destruction of German cartels and also is making more long range plans for an allied nations conference—probably after a smaller meeting along the lines of the Dumbarton Oaks security talks — to work out anti-cartel measures.

Seek to Determine Value.

The President's pronouncement was studied by Washington politicians and diplomats who sought to evaluate its importance in this Presidential election year as a statement of international economic policy and its relation to the chief executive's conference with Prime Minister Churchill.

Washington authorities conceded that any major change in the cartel system would be difficult to bring about in Britain. They agreed that the declaration added another subject to the agenda which the President and prime minister may discuss at their meeting which coincides with the opening of a new period in Europe's economic and diplomatic history.

Mr. Roosevelt covered the whole subject of cartels in a single letter without distinguishing sharply between those of allied powers and those which have served the purposes of the enemy. A cartel is a system of controling prices, production, and patents, and of allocating markets by agreements among independent companies.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the American policy against monopoly "goes hand in glove with the liberal principles of international trade" espoused by Secretary of State Hull. He recalled particularly Hull's trade agreement program to lower trade barriers internationally and also the anti-trust laws intended to eliminate "monopolistic" restraints of trade in interstate and foreign commerce.

Encouraged by Some.

But many foreign countries do not "possess such a tradition against cartels," the President told Hull. "On the contrary, cartels have received encouragement from some of these governments. Especially is this true with respect to Germany. Moreover, cartels were utilized by the Nazis as governmental instrumentalities to achieve political ends.

"The history of the use of the I. G. Farben trust by the Nazis reads like a detective story. The defeat of the Nazi army will have to be followed by the eradication of these weapons of economic warfare."

PRICES OF OATS FALL ON CUT IN CANADIAN TAXES

Reflecting the announcement of a reduction in the Canadian export tax on oats, September and December oats and barley prices fell to new seasonal lows on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Altho oats rallied well at one time on short covering and buying by commission houses, the close was near the bottom at losses of ¾ to 2⅜ cents a bushel, September leading. Barley was 1⅛ to 1⅞ cents lower.

One export tax reduction, ranging from 4 to 6 cents a bushel, was announced Thursday. Another, amounting to 2 cents a bushel, was announced late yesterday, but does not become effective until today.

Despite the break in oats, wheat showed a much stronger undertone and closed unchanged to ⅝ cent higher. Rye finished ⅜ to 1⅛ cents lower, breaking late in sympathy with oats.
